A—Wait long enough to be sure that the mails have cleared, then write to the VA regional office which has your claim file. Include your name, if you're a veteran, or the deceased veteran's name if it is a death claim, and your claim number. Do not write to the treasury department because the VA will not receive your letter promptly, resulting in a delayed response.

Q—I am receiving on-the-job training. May I also take some college courses at night and still receive on-the-job training?

A—No. The Veterans administration pays full-time benefits for on-the-job training, therefor, you would not be eligible for additional benefits if you took the college courses.

Q—If I sell my home and secure a release of liability to the government for my GI loan, will I be eligible for a new GI loan?

A—No. To qualify for restoration of your GI loan entitlement, you must have sold your home for a compelling reason, and the loan must have been paid in full.

Q—I am a disabled veteran receiving additional compensation for my 17-year-old son who recently enlisted in the Navy. Must I report his enlistment to the VA, and will the VA stop the additional compensation because of his enlistment?

A—The answer to both questions is "no." The additional compensation will continue until your son reaches 18, regardless of his military service.

Air Freight Is Increasing For North Central

Air cargo shipped from Thief River Falls in February increased by more than 400 per cent over the amount shipped in February, 1970, according to local airline officials.

Freight loaded on board here totaled 23,120 pounds, while 13,580 pounds of freight were off-loaded. Only 5,500 pounds of air freight were shipped out of Thief River Falls in February, 1970.

Passengers getting on board here in February were 625, while 678 passengers arrived.

System-wide North Central airlines carried 255,324 passengers in February, a gain of 11 per cent over the same month in 1970, according to David E. Moran, vice president for traffic and sales.

He said that 62,508,029 revenue passenger miles were flown, up 39 per cent compared with 1970. Cargo, including air freight, express and mail, showed an 18 per cent increase as 691,117 ton miles were flown.

North Central operated 72 charter flights during February, carrying 9,042 passengers to such points as Nassau, San Juan, Acapulco, Mexico City, Las Vegas, Boston, Tallahassee, Orlando, Buffalo and Baton Rouge.

For the first two months of 1971, the airline boarded 567,193 passengers, an 17 per cent increase over last year. Revenue passenger miles reached 135,193,624, a gain of 42 per cent. A total of 1,471,585 cargo ton miles were flown, 22 per cent ahead of last year.

Minnesota GOP Raises $575,000 At Fund Dinner

Minnesota Republicans have raised in cash and pledges $575,000 from their annual fund raising dinner held Friday at the St. Paul auditorium.

"This dinner will be the best non-election year fund raising dinner the party has had if cleanup operations around the state are as successful as we expect them to be," said J. Robert Stassen, So. St. Paul, 1971 dinner chairman.

Stassen said the theme of the dinner was "Operation Comeback" and that "it looks as if the Republican party in Minnesota has made a real comeback to help pay off our 1970 election debt."

The final tally is expected to show that more than 15,000 people contributed an average of $38 each to the dinner. Last year, a record-breaking election year, more than 17,000 people each contributed $40 plus, Stassen added.

Preparation For High Water Is Urged By MPCA

Operators of flood-prone sewage and industrial wastewater treatment plants, owners of storage tanks and industrial stockpiles and managers of dumps may come in for fewer criticisms from down-river communities this spring if they are prepared for high water.

The Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA) has several recommendations for operators of flood-prone facilities.

(1) Many wastewater treatment plants which were inundated by recent floods now have dikes to protect them from another such flood. But operators of plants without such dikes must be prepared with sandbags and pumps to protect the plant so as to function without interruption.

(2) Minnesota law requires prior permission from the MPCA before operators may bypass their plants or discharge inadequately treated wastewater to the waters of the state. The MPCA's phone number is 612-378-1320. People to contact are Director Grant Merritt, Water Quality Director C. A. Johannes, Municipal wastes Chief John McGuire, Staff Engineer Edwin Smith, Industrial Wastes Chief George Koonce, Solid Wastes Director F. J. Forsberg or Solid Waste Enforcement Chief Blaine Seaborn.

(3) Concerning oil spills and stockpile-related industrial pollution, the MPCA requires dikes to prevent the problem and quick recovery of the pollutants and repair of the damage in case the prevention doesn't work. Concerning flood protection, some storage tank owners have tied down their tanks or filled them with water to keep them from floating away.

(4) Dumps in flood plains must be covered with soil to seal the refuse from water infiltration from top, sides and bottom. If possible, the site should be diked as well.

(5) Alternate dumpsites on high ground, near all-weather roads should be used during, and for awhile after, the flood. Operators of flood-prone dumpsites would be well advised to scout around for alternate sites and for sources of dry cover dirt.

(6) Since it may take a month for machinery, buildings and sites to dry out and for normal operations to resume, managers should be on guard for pollution hazards after the flood as well as before.

Land O'Lakes Requests Dairy Policy Study

In a letter to Secretory of Agriculture Clifford Hardin, Land O'Lakes, Inc., of Minneapolis has asked the secretary for immediate action in convening a committee to study and develop a proposed set of dairy policies appropriate to the current and developing status of the dairy industry and the national economy.

The request to the secretary was in accord with a resolution passed by the delegate body of Land O'Lakes at its annual meeting on March 12. This resolution pointed out that declining consumption of milk and dairy products, a continued erosion in the parity price for milk, an increase in total milk production, and sharp increases in costs of the government support programs for dairy products necessitated a thorough re-evaluation of present policies.

The problems related to the annual dairy price support announcement will persist until such time as updated dairy policies consistent with the dairy industry as it exists today are developed and agreed upon by all sections of the industry. Land O'Lakes promised full cooperation and assistance in formation of and working with a study committee.

Economist Says Law On Usury Requires Changes Or Repeal

The state usury law, which sets maximum allowable interest charges, should be modified or repealed since it appears "neither to protect the interests of the consumer nor to permit a rational allocation" of Minnesota's resources, a University of Minnesota economist said.

Mathew Shane, assistant professor in the department of agricultural and applied economics, said that rather than protecting the consumer, the usury law has reduced "severely the funds available for private home buyers, while expanding those available for other users of credit."

The law has prevented home mortgage borrowers from competing effectively with other borrowers, such as corporations and businesses, for funds. This has led "to the drastic reduction in one and two-family housing starts," he added.

The discriminatory impact of the usury law is the single most important factor in explaining a shift from home building to apartment building. The number of new one and two-family home starts declined 27.4 per cent from 1968 to 1969, when the usury law first became binding on mortgage loans. During this same period, new apartment building starts, whose financing is not subject to the usury law, increased 9.11 per cent, Shane reported.

But the level of mortgage lending is more closely related to the supply of savings deposits available to lenders such as savings and loan associations, savings banks, insurance companies, Federal Land Banks and contract mortgages. Savings institutions are restricted in the amount of interest they can pay on their time and savings deposit accounts with most ordinary accounts limited to 5-5½ per cent a year.

With interest rates for bonds rising continually from 1960 to 1970, many persons withdrew their money from savings accounts and bought bonds instead. By mid-1969, at least 80 per cent more could be earned on savings by holding bonds as compared to savings accounts.

Preventing savings institutions from paying competitive returns to small savers leads to a "flow of funds away from the mortgage market and therefore seems like a highly discriminatory policy at best," he said.

These trends affected Minnesota mortgage lending. Although the dollar volume of new mortgage loans of savings and investment associations increased 13.17 per cent in the first half of 1969, it fell 12.93 per cent in the second half of 1969 and 12.73 per cent in the first half of 1970. This coincides with a drop in new housing starts.

"The fact that there was an increase in new mortgage loans in the second half of 1970 implies that some increase in housing starts should be expected in the first half of 1971. The recent reductions of the prime interest rates also seem to indicate this," Shane said.

Minnesota's usury law is only one of many interest rate restrictions imposed on financial markets by state and federal legislation and agencies. Regulations on federal, state and local bonds also have undesirable effects. The 4¼ per cent interest rate on federal long term bonds has resulted in 33 per cent of the publicly held marketable bonds in 1970 having a maturity of one year or less. This means the treasury will have to refinance over $120 billion in short term debt in 1971 alone.

The situation is even more "drastic" with local school bond issues. "With an interest rate ceiling of seven per cent in Minnesota on local bond issues, the ability of local communities to raise money for school expansion since the middle of 1969 has been extremely limited. The result has been various local school crises," Shane said.

Restrictions intended to protect borrowers from "unreasonably" high interest rates, actually do the reverse by inhibiting borrowers from raising funds, he concluded.

Shane's remarks appear in his article, "The Impact of the Minnesota Usury Law," in a recent issue of the Minnesota Agricultural Economist, published by the agricultural extension service.

Light Of Split Rock Lighthouse Will Shine Again

Perched atop a sheer cliff overlooking the dangerous waters of Lake Superior's north shore, 1,400 miles from the Atlantic ocean, is Split Rock lighthouse. For 60 years its light and foghorn warned Great Lakes mariners of reefs and shallow waters, until it was mothballed by the U. S. coast guard.

But this summer its brilliant light will once again sweep the waters when it re-opens under the supervision of the Minnesota department of natural resources.

The lighthouse was completed in 1909 and its construction is a story in itself. There was no road along the lake at that point and the cliff on which it was built could only be reached by water. This meant that everything needed—brick, cement, metal and lumber—had to be brought over the lake and hoisted up the face of the cliff.

Another construction problem, that of building foundations for the lighthouse on the solid rock dome, was overcome by cutting trenches in the rock by dynamiting. Because the process often bombarded the whole work area with flying rock, blasting was done in the evenings when most of the men were off the job.

In spite of these and other unique problems, only one season was required for completing the dozen buildings which make up the station.

When modern navigation aids made the lighthouse obsolete, it was closed. But on May 1, the lighthouse will open as part of a 100-acre state park, offering tourists a touch of New England and the rocky coast of Maine.

Within easy driving distance of Split Rock are points where hundreds of picturesque small streams pour into Lake Superior. Many of these cascade down steep slopes and beautiful waterfalls.

Not far from Split Rock is Beaver Bay, one of the oldest towns in Minnesota, whose name recalls the fur trade which flourished there in the early days.

In fact the entire north shore offers a sightseeing tour that demands a good supply of color film.

And in the center of it all, the Split Rock Lighthouse state park will revive a bit of colorful Minnesota history.

Crop, Livestock Report Service To Be Updated

Modifications in scheduled reports issued by the crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture will provide more timely and more accurate production statistics of greater benefits to producers, processors and consumers, according to Commissioner Jon Wefald.

He said the state agency will coordinate future crop and livestock reports with revised schedules of the U.S. department of agriculture.

The April 1 forecast of winter wheat production, December rye acreage and condition report, and the July corn and hay production forecast by states will be discontinued, Commissioner Wefald advised.

New schedules will advance the initial national production forecast on soybeans, an important agricultural economy barometer this year, one month to July. Other July reports will include state and national production forecasts on wheat; national production forecasts on corn, hay, flaxseed, sugar beets and other late-harvest crops; and state and national acreage estimates for all field crops.

The first Minnesota forecast of late-harvest crop production will be issued in August, and those figures will be revised monthly through November.

Annual crop summary for small grains, estimating acreage, yield and value, by states, is scheduled for December report. The comparable annual summary for corn, soybeans and late-harvest crops will be issued in mid-January.

Commissioner Wefald said that only one production forecast will be made for states producing only a minor share of the national total of each crop. Minnesota has only three crops in this category, winter wheat, dry beans and apples.

Grain hay and clover-timothy hay will be listed with "all other hay" in future reports on acreage and production.

Schedules for reporting on vegetables, seeds, livestock and livestock products are unchanged, pending a review of information needs with report users.

Andrew Volstead Designed Act To Aid Cooperatives

In 1902 Andrew J. Volstead, mayor of Granite Falls, was elected to the U. S. House of Representatives, thus becoming among the first native sons to reach U. S. office and, eventually, one of few Minnesotans to hold positions of great power in Congress.

Volstead's name is remembered, unfortunately, only in the context of prohibition, the act which he authored in 1919 which obscured his many positive achievements.

Perhaps the greatest of these was his authorship of the Capper-Volstead Act in 1922, a bill which is often called the "Magna Carta" of farm cooperatives. This law legalized associations of producers to market their products without stipulations of incorporation or organization on a capital stock basis.

Until then the legality of cooperatives was often questioned and increasing court rulings against them threatened their very existence. Volstead's efforts to get the Capper-Volstead act passed in virtually the same form which he had composed it provided the legal backbone on which today's marketing cooperatives still operate.

Andrew Volstead was known to his friends and associates as a kind man who wished to pursue his work with as little public notice as possible—an odd attitude for a man who successfully represented the state for 20 years.

His house in Granite Falls, built in the late 1800's, still stands and some of the original Volstead family effects remain in it. Many local historians would like to see the house made into a museum, and several regional cooperatives may give the project a boost.

Should this happen, it will only be a partial tribute to a man whose one mistake was not forgiven while he lived, yet who served Minnesota and his country to his best ability for two decades.

If you have the trees but the neighbor gets the leaves—help him.

Bankers and Farmers

Minnesota bankers have shown their concern for farmers of the state through a resolution adopted by the Independent Bankers of Minnesota. The resolution endorses H.F. 909 and urges its passage during this session of the Minnesota legislature.

The resolution notes that "the family farm system of agriculture has provided food and fiber in abundance for the people and industry of Minnesota and the nation, and that continuance and safeguarding of the family farm system is in the best interest of the people of Minnesota."

According to the resolution, the passage of H.F. 909 would:

(1) Prohibit corporate take-over and control of Minnesota agricultural lands;

(2) Assure the continuance of the family farm in Minnesota;

(3) Slow down migration of people to Metro and urban areas;

(4) Encourage entry of young farmers into agriculture as owners;

(5) Assist President Nixon in his proposed program "to revitalize our rural heartland and enhance the quality of life throughout America;" and

(6) Reduce the potential for nationalization of agricultural lands.

We think that the bankers' statement expresses a concern which most rural communities share and we are happy to see their organization express itself.

Who Are The Poor?

Frank Carlucci, director designate of the Office of Economic Opportunity, describes the poor in an article in the National Association of Counties publication. The following are his comments and statistics:

Thumb through the classified advertising pages of any metropolitan newspaper and you'll find hundreds, even thousands of jobs apparently going begging. At the same time, chances are good that in that same newspaper you'll find a story about another increase in the number of people on the local welfare rolls.

In the face of this apparent contradiction, it is not unusual—or a sign of hard-heartedness—that many Americans conclude the nation's poor are a shiftless, ne'er-do-well group who could get jobs if they wanted to.

There's only one problem with that conclusion. To a very large degree, it is simply and almost totally false.

Who, then, are America's poor?

— 33.9 of every 100 are children under age 14.

— 19.4 of every 100 are persons over age 65.

— 4.5 of every 100 are people who, while not under 14 or over 65, are so ill or disabled as to preclude their holding jobs.

Together the old, the infirm and the very young comprise 57.8 per cent—nearly three of every five—of the Americans whose incomes place them below the federal poverty guidelines. They not only don't work, they can't work.

But what about the other two-fifths?

Well, 6.5 per cent of all the poor are in school—still working on acquiring the skills and knowledge that might help them break the poverty cycle. Add them to the ill, young and old and you've raised the percentage to 64.3 per cent—nearly 65 of every 100 poor Americans.

An additional 8.1 per cent of all the poor work full time more than 40 weeks per year but still earn too little to lift themselves out of poverty.

Another 5.8 per cent of the total poverty population are boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 21 who do hold jobs. But while they work, the fact is that most are unskilled and the job market—and the pay—for unskilled workers is always limited.

Still another 10.1 per cent are adults who work—but not enough to get above the poverty line. They are males and females of "prime working age"—22 to 64—who work full-time less than 40 weeks a year, or who work only part-time. There are many reasons why they don't work enough. For some, full-time jobs to fit their meager skills simply aren't available in our increasingly technological society; for others, jobs may be available—but not necessarily where they happen to live.

Finally, some people in that 10.1 per cent don't work enough because they don't want to. There are no figures to measure this percentage precisely; but economists and sociologists are generally agreed that their numbers are quite small. After all, they do work, indicating that circumstances limit their earning ability.

There is one final segment of the poor—the 11.6 per cent who are total nonparticipants in the labor force. These are the people against who charges of laziness are most often directed.

Are the changes accurate? The statistics indicate they are not.

In the first place, of the nonparticipants in the labor force, more than [illegible] women—the great bulk of them, or 8.2 of 10, are adult women aged 22 to 64. About one of ten are girls aged 14 to 21. Many of the women have children at home; many are at the upper age range and cannot find jobs; many of the remainder are still teenagers, for whom job opportunities are scarce. And some simply won't work, or wouldn't if they had the opportunity.

Finally there are the men who do not work—part-time, full-time, any time. The stereotyped image of such men is that they are able-bodied, skilled enough to perform some kinds of jobs, yet simply will not. Clearly, some of these chronically unemployed men do fit that stereotype. Yet even if all of them did, they total less than 1 of every 100 poor people—nine-tenths of one per cent—and many are not really men but boys aged 14 to 21.

They say statistics lie. But in the case of America's poor, the lie is in the myth—not in the reality—of poverty.

About Commentators

Vice President [illegible] another hornets' nest last week when he criticized a couple of CBS television specials as being something less than completely honest. Public officials aren't supposed to be critical of news media, you know, especially television "documentaries" which "tell it like it is."

A certain amount of blame must rest with the television networks, for their show business approach to news. It is not enough to report the happenings in a factual manner any more, or so it would seem. A commentator must inject his or her own opinions and interpretations, and the story is too often developed to coincide with that pre-determined viewpoint.

People may recall a television documentary on the polar bear, one of the endangered species. We didn't see it, but one of our fellow editors noted in his column that it ended by showing the cubs of a female polar bear—supposedly taken with the aid of an airplane—left alone on the ice. That was truly a dramatic ending, but actually it had been "staged" for effect and was not a real happening.

We have been highly suspect of other programs which proclaim to analyze the news but which seem more concerned with supporting a pre-conceived idea.

Television interviewers are also guilty of creating false impressions of prefacing their questions with false information. An example is an interview by Barbara Walters on the "Today" program, when Mrs. Martha Mitchell, the attorney general's wife, was a guest. Mrs. Mitchell fielded the prefaced question admirably, but it is not done in that manner often enough. The interview went as follows:

Mrs. Walters: You've made headlines because of your habit of making telephone calls late at night. At those times, do you know what it is that impells you to do it?

Mrs. Mitchell: Well, let's straighten that out. May I ask you a question?

Mrs. Walters: Certainly.

Mrs. Mitchell: How many telephone calls have I made late at night?

Mrs. Walters: Well, the one that comes to my mind—and really, if you had to pin me down, as you are, I would think of the one about Senator Fulbright. There have been others, though, have there not?

Mrs. Mitchell: Can you name them?

Mrs. Walters: No.

Mrs. Mitchell: Can anyone else name them?

Mrs. Walters: I don't know. Is that your answer—that you've really just made that one?

Mrs. Mitchell: That is the only one late telephone call. And furthermore, why should everybody get excited about it when I was making it on my own time to a newspaper which is open at night?

Had Mrs. Mitchell chosen to ignore the introductary statement and simply answer the question, the viewing public would have been left with the impression that such calls were a quirk in personality. We applaud her for her handling of the situation, but the willingness of the commentator to use assumption for fact should tell us something about the credibility of similar fare on the tube.

Borrowed Nonsense

"Doctor, come quick," said the man's voice in a late night phone call. "My wife is having an appendix attack."

After determining the identity of the caller, the doctor said, "Nonsense. I took your wife's appendix out three years ago. I never heard of a second appendix."

"But doctor," the man replied. "Did you ever hear of anyone having a second wife?"

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor

On behalf of the Vocational Technical Education section and the Minnesota FFA Association, we wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for your assistance in publicizing FFA Week activities.

Your local high school FFA chapter adviser has advised us that your newspaper has been very generous in publicizing FFA programs and activities not only during FFA Week, but also during the entire year. Your portrayal of a variety of FFA activities helps us to tell the stories of Vo. Ag.—FFA in the areas of agribusiness and natural resources occupations.

It is only the cooperation and assistance of such loyal supporters of FFA as you, your staff and local business firms that makes it possible to tell our many friends of FFA about the 1971 theme, "FFA—Involved in America's Future." Your personal interest and confidence in the FFA program is gratefully appreciated.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

I am writing about one way in [illegible] Falls and surrounding area can have a part in ending the war in Vietnam.

The Selective service system is a fact accepted by many people as truly "American," even though it is basically "Un-American", for it was rejected by our Founding Fathers.

Soon the United States Senate will be debating "Draft Repeal." The Stennis-Smith bill No. S. 427 is to arrive on the Senate floor in a few weeks. More and more people are becoming aware of this issue. But too many people are uninformed. For the most part, the national coverage during the Senate and House hearings was held to a minimum. In fact, most people did not know that these hearings were taking place.

I look to our newspaper to help the people in our community to understand the draft in relationship to Vietnam. The facts and figures are available to prove a direct relationship. If the Senate ended the President's power to draft men on June 30, 1971 there would be less manpower to wage war in Vietnam. The draftees have become "cannon fodder." If the Stennis-Smith Bill is not defeated, Vietnams will continue to grow—that seems inevitable.

I want to encourage all the people in this community to express their feelings on this issue to our two Senators, Mondale and Humphrey, and our Representative, Robert Bergland. Write to them in Washington, D.C. Wire them a message by Wester Union ($1.00 for 15 words, plus signature and address) or call them in Washington, D.C. Senator Mondale, (202) 225-5641 and Senator Humphrey, (202) 225-3244. The matter is urgent. Please do not delay your response.

Sincerely
Anna E. Koglin

P.S. If you are interested in more information about the meaning of the draft and how to promote repeal of the draft, write to the American Friends Service Committee for their draft repeal packet or order the paperback, "The End of the Draft" by Thomas Reeves and Karl Hess. The address is: American Friends Service Committee, 4211 Grand Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa 50312.

Dear Editor of the Thief River Falls Times:

I am writing you on the documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon". I do not know how many of your readers were able to view the program. If they were unable to see it, they missed a prime example of what is happening in this country at the present time.

The criticism offered by the critics of the program did not, and I emphasize did not, direct their criticism at the prime directive of the program. Instead they made an issue out of whether the people of this country have a right to know whats going on.

Their criticism should not have been, as to whether the people of this country are educated enough to make their own judgement, on what the Pentagon should or should not be able to do.

Instead of bringing out in the open as to whether things like this are going on. They try to make the average American look like a child, who has to be told what he or she can or can not watch.

The American people do not need to be protected from the truth. In fact when the people of a democracy are, their system of free choice begins to decay. A government like we have needs to have the stimulation of debate of issues to really survive as a true democracy. We do not need men who are puppets to divert the main issue of the controversy to a matter of lesser importance.

In short, what is happening is when a matter of controversy arises, instead of making speeches on the matter at hand, they divert the attention of the people to something of a lesser importance.

We the people of this country must again raise our objections to this kind of hedging of the subject by our representatives. It is time that we again assume the position of watchdog over our representatives. Instead of them being our nursery maids, protecting us from the cruel world outside.

Yours Sincerely,
Dean Hawk

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter in regards to the great number of "Downtown Quarterbacks" in Thief River Falls. I am referring to the people who insist on trying to do the coaches job from the sidelines. I don't see any of these "Vince Lombardi's" going to the school board and applying for a job as coach. They will sit on the sideline and gripe and complain about a bad coaching job but none of these people seem to have the "GUTS" to take it on themselves.

I really don't know why the people of this community haven't begun to realize the fine caliber of coaches Lincoln High has had on its staff in the past years. I recall back in 1960, the last time T.R.F. went to the state tournament in basketball. We had a coach by the name of Story. He had fielded what was probably the best basketball team in the last 30 years. How long was he here? One year. He decided to leave the job because of the pressure of the so-called fans and the assistants that call themselves "School Board Members". You can't expect him to stay with one assistant along side him and the bleachers full of them.

Then came John Junker and Whitey Olson soon after. I played under both of these coaches and in my opinion, and the opinion of many of my former teammates, they were two of the finest coaches T.R.F. has ever had. Junker hadn't been here too many years before he left for the same reason that 95 per cent of the other coaches have left Lincoln H.S.

I played for Whitey Olson for two years, 1966-67. Both years the team should have gone to the big one down in the Twin Cities, but we just couldn't put it together when it really counted. At the conclusion of both of those seasons I never heard that it was the teams lack of ability, but it was always the coaches fault. Now it has been brought to my attention that Whitey Olson is resigning. Myself, I don't think that it is voluntary, I believe that he's more or less being pressured out of the job.

I really don't know when the people of T.R.F. are going to wake up and realize that there is more to the job than sitting in the stands and taking notes on what the coach is doing wrong. It wouldn't be hard for me to name a long list of these "Quarterbacks" for the job as coach at Lincoln. None of them would have the GUTS or the ABILITY to go through what Whitey Olson and many of the other coaches at Lincoln have gone through. They only have the ability to critisize the coach's job and whisper about it behind his back.

I would like to commend Whitey Olson, not only as a coach, but as a "MAN". I only hope that where ever he goes he will not receive the same treatment that he did in Thief River Falls.

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

As of Thursday, March 18, 1,699 House Files had been introduced in the 1971 session of the legislature. Each of these is assigned to a committee for their consideration. To give thorough consideration to this number of bills is a big job.

We appreciate and need all of our 135 House members in manning the committees and subcommittees necessary to properly consider the various proposals which these bills encompass. Our committee system is often the target of criticism, most of which comes from people who are not familiar with the legislative process. The committee system is sound.

One of the most important series of hearings in the area of highways will be coming up soon in the House transportation committee when several bills extending the legal use of studded tires receive a thorough airing.

These hearings are expected to be among the most thorough of the session, with a number of experts on both sides planning to testify. Among them will be authorities from the tire industry safety council in Washington and the deputy minister of the Ontario highway department.

On the state level the Minnesota AAA will be backing studded tires while the Minnesota highway department will oppose the proposal. One of the highlights of the hearing will be the report of the findings of the studded tire study directed by the 1969 legislature and conducted by independent researchers.

Among the bills to be taken up is House File No. 320, of which I am a co-sponsor. This bill would authorize the legal use of studded tires in Minnesota through the winter of 1972-73 and would shorten the period for their use to five months (November 1 to April 1) from the present six and one-half months.

This week the transportation committee gave its approval to a bill requiring eyesight tests for all applicants for a drivers license renewal. This bill is expected to benefit highway safety by removing drivers with dangerously poor vision from the road but it should also benefit individual motorists by informing them of possible visual deficiencies of which they might otherwise have remained unaware.

One of the most important bills from a recreational standpoint was approved by the House this week. This is House File No. 1209 of which I am a co-author. This bill removes the liability of the land owner if he permits his land to be used for any recreational purpose.

It was necessary to pass this bill if we are to develop a system of trails that can be used by the sporting public. This would include snowmobiling, hiking, bicycling, horseback riding, nature study or any other recreational use. It would also be beneficial for the public access program which permits the public to use our lakes and streams.

To establish trails or access to a lake it is often necessary to cross private property. In many cases the land owner does not wish to sell his property but would be willing to grant permission to cross his property if he would be released of liability. This bill will relieve the land owner of such liability and should make possible the development of a system of trails that is badly needed by the sporting public.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I receive VA compensation for a service-connected disability. Am I also eligible for medication from the Veterans administration?

A—Yes, a veteran is eligible for medication from the Veterans administration if it is required for a service-connected disability.

Q—I have recently been awarded dependency and indemnity compensation as the widow of a veteran killed on active duty. I am also a veteran and have my certificate of eligibility for a VA home loan. May I now obtain two VA home loans—one on my husband's service and one on mine?

A—No. An unremarried widow of a man who died while on active duty or who died from a service-connected disability is eligible for a home loan based on her husband's entitlement, but only if she is not eligible on the basis of her own active duty.

Q—I have a national service life insurance endowment policy which will mature in six months. Must I take the face value of the policy, or can I convert to another type of insurance?

A—You may exchange it for a policy of lesser cash value if you are in good health. You would receive the difference between the endowment amount and the cash value of the new policy. This must be done, however, before the policy matures.

Q—My husband was a peacetime veteran. Is he eligible for a flag for burial purposes?

A—Yes, providing he served one enlistment, or was discharged because of a service-connected disability.

Q—I cannot find my GI insurance policy. Does this jeopardize my protection in any manner?

A—No. Notify the Veterans administration that the policy was lost, destroyed or never received, and you will be issued a duplicate. Be sure to include the insurance policy number if you know it. Otherwise, send your full name, VA claim number, military service number and date of birth.

Q—I served four years in the Marines, and will be honorably discharged in a few weeks. Will I receive 48 months of educational assistance?

A—Your maximum entitlement is 30 months under the GI bill. However, if you are also eligible under some other law—such as the child of a permanently and totally disabled veteran—you may receive a combined total of up to 48 months.

Q—My wife has indicated an interest in serving as a hospital volunteer worker. However, she can serve at only odd hours, can this be done?

A—Yes. The volunteer service can use help at any hour at Veterans administration hospitals.

Q—I am 68 years old and have been unemployed for the past four years because I am totally disabled. I have just learned that my $10,000 national service life insurance policy carries a waiver of premium clause for total disability prior to age 65. Can this waiver be granted on my policy now?

A—Yes. However, you must present evidence that your total disability began prior to your 65th birthday, and has existed continuously since then. Refund of premiums cannot be made for the entire period, but only for the period beginning one year prior to your application.

Q—I am a student in a flight school and would like to assign my Veterans administration educational assistance payments to the school to guarantee payment of tuition. Can this be done?

A—No. VA educational assistance payments may not be assigned.

Q—I served three years on active duty from 1958 to 1961, and have become totally disabled since discharge. Am I eligible for a pension?

A—No. In order to qualify, you need 90 days of active duty, some part of which must be during wartime. The dates you served are classified as peacetime service. (The ending date for the Korean Conflict was Jan 31, 1955, the Vietnam Era began Aug. 5, 1964.)

Q—How many months can a veteran take training under the GI bill?

A—Veterans with 18 months or more of service who have satisfied their active duty requirements have full entitlement of 30 months. A veteran with less than 18 months earns one and one-half months up to a maximum [illegible] fraction of a month of service on active duty on or after Feb. 1, 1955.

Q—How does a veteran go about establishing service-connection for a disability?

A—Make application to your nearest Veterans administration regional office and submit proof that your disability was either incurred or aggravated during military service. The best proof would be records of treatment received while in service.

Q—I understand that the Veterans administration will pay me full-time benefits for taking 12 hours at college, is this correct?

A—Yes, if the college considers 12 semester hours full time.

Q—I was a chaplain attached to an army unit in Vietnam. Am I entitled to any veterans' benefits?

A—You are entitled to the same benefits as any honorably discharged veteran. See or write your Veterans administration regional office for specific information on any benefit in which you are interested.

Q—I am a Vietnam veteran discharged May 2, 1967, attending school under the GI bill. Does this bar me from the home loan benefit?

A—No. The availability of the home loan benefit is not affected by the education benefit in any manner whatsoever.

Q—I am a recently discharged veteran. Is there some type of insurance available to me?

A—If you have a service-connected disability, you may qualify for service disabled veterans insurance. You must apply within one year of the date of notice that service-connection is granted, but you may apply before requesting or receiving a grant of service-connection. Upon receipt of your application for this insurance, the VA will determine if you are eligible. Also, a veteran may convert his servicemen's group life insurance to an individual, permanent policy within 120 days after separation from service.

Q—I want to enter college next summer. Should I advise the VA now, or enroll and advise the registrar of my veteran status at that time?

A—You should inform the VA as soon as possible of your plans to enroll.

Q—My father has a service-connected gastritis condition which, for several years, the VA rated him at 60 per cent disabled. Since the condition prevents him from being employable, am I eligible for an educational allowance as a child of a disabled veteran?

A—No. The veteran must be rated by the VA as permanently and totally disabled. However, since you indicated that your father may be unemployable, he should submit proof of this fact and request his claim be [illegible] should be rated 100 per cent disabled based on individual unemployability because of his disability, you might then become eligible.

Q—I am married to a World War I veteran who receives 100 per cent service-connected compensation. Would I be entitled to benefits as the widow of a disabled veteran?

A—Possibly. You would qualify for a higher rate with no income limitations if the veteran died of a service-connected condition. However, if the condition which caused his death was not service-connected, you might qualify for a widow's pension, provided you are within the income and estate limitations.

Q—My husband and I are both veterans, entitled to schooling under the GI bill. May we both claim our two children as dependents and be paid for them, and may we both claim each other as dependents?

A—Both of you may claim the children as dependents and your husband may claim you as a dependent; however, you may claim your husband as your dependent only if he is physically or mentally incapable of self-support.

Q—I was discharged last year after three years of active duty, and want to buy a small grocery store. Can I get a GI business loan for this purpose?

A—If this was your only period of service, the answer is no. You might contact an office of the Small Business administration or attempt to obtain a loan through private sources.

Q—Is it to my advantage to complete my high school studies on my own and save my GI schooling benefits for college?

A—No. The Veterans administration will pay you an educational allowance for high school, and not charge it against your entitlement for college.

Q — How may I use my dividends to prevent my national service life insurance from lapsing or to pay my premiums in advance?

A — You have the choice of a "credit option" or a "premium option." If you use the former, you must notify the Veterans Administration before your next dividend is due, and request it be held as a credit. Then, whenever needed to prevent a policy lapse, one monthly premium at a time will be deducted from the credit, and you will be notified. If you use the latter option, your dividend will be applied to pay your premiums as far in advance as possible, and you will be notified. You will not be billed for premiums again until at least one month in advance of the date your next premium is due.

Q — I am a veteran who receives compensation from the Veterans administration. Are my children eligible for educational assistance?

A — Yes, if you are 100 per cent permanently disabled from a service-connected cause. If less than 100 per cent disabled, no.

Q — The veterans administration guarantees 30 per cent of $9,000 loan for a mobile home. If a veteran pays up the loan, can he obtain a second loan for a mobile home purchase?

A — Under the provisions of the veterans housing act of 1970, if the first mobile home loan is paid in full, a veteran may have his mobile home loan eligibility restored a single time to purchase another home.

Q — After obtaining a second veterans administration guaranteed mobile home loan which has been paid up, can a veteran buy a conventional home, and how much guarantee will he have available?

A — Under the provisions of the veterans housing act of 1970, if the veteran has paid in full his mobile home loan, he is entitled to a conventional home loan guarantee of $12,500.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

"You have a tennis court in your chest," my physician told me.

I looked down. "A tennis court?" I repeated dumbfounded.

"A tennis court. Well, not exactly, but if the walls of the millions of air sacs inside your lungs were stretched out like a tarpaulin, they would cover a tennis court."

"Wow, that's a large surface area," I gasped.

My physician explained further that the lungs provide the largest body area in contact with the outside world. He said that skin covers only two square yards. Let's look at how lungs work.

According to the Minnesota State Medical Association, when you breathe, you take in air containing oxygen which is needed by every cell in your body. The air travels down the trachea or windpipe and through the two bronchi, one going to each lung. The bronchi pass through the base of each lung and divide and subdivide into ever smaller air tubes. The system resembles an upside-down tree.

The tiniest lung tubes terminate in the globular air sacs mentioned earlier. They resemble microscopic clusters of grapes. Each of us has some 400,000,000 air sacs.

In the air sac walls, the blood picks up oxygen for distribution to body cells and drops off carbon dioxide for exhalation.

If some of the air sac walls become damaged, you lose some of your breathing reserve. You will probably have plenty left, but if the holes continue to occur and grow larger, you will eventually lose enough breathing capacity to find it troublesome and, in time, dangerous.

You have suffered a coronary attack, now what?

Understandably, you have had a frightening experience which has left behind many doubts and fears. This is perfectly natural, says the Minnesota state medical association.

You will be comforted to learn that a great majority of patients survive their first attack and most recover fully to enjoy many years of productive activity.

To help your recovery, it is important to bring your fears and worries out into the open. Your physician is the best person to answer all of the matters which puzzle you.

Once you have received his instructions and he answers your questions, it is time for you to answer several questions on your own.

Do I fully understand my physician's instructions about activity, medicine and diet?

What situations have upset me in the past? Can I avoid these situations? If not, can I do anything to make them less upsetting?

What plans can I make so that no more is crowded into one day than I can manage without pressure? What activities can be eliminated if I tire?

How can I arrange my daily affairs to give me regular physical activity?

The majority of patients who recover from a heart attack are able to take up life where they left off with few modifications. Answering these questions truthfully will enable you to better adjust and enjoy life.

A cough seems like such a common thing, most of us ignore it or treat it with cough medicine or drops.

Do not do that, warns the Minnesota State Medical Association. Your cough may not be as common as you think. It may be a serious, chronic cough.

Have you been coughing for a month or more? If so, you have a chronic cough—even if you cough only in the morning or at night when you lie down. Even if it occurs only in the winter months.

Does the cough following your colds hang on longer than usual, more than two weeks? If so, you may be developing a chronic cough.

Do you have a cigarette cough? Do not dismiss a cough that hangs on as just a cigarette cough. A cigarette cough in itself is not anything to ignore. It means that damage has been done to your breathing passages. Then, too, it might mask a developing chronic cough.

Coughing is not a disease but a symptom and might mean the onslaught of a respiratory disease such as tuberculosis, lung cancer, or bronchitis. It might even signify heart failure or any number of other causes.

Do not delay. If you have a chronic cough, find out why. The earlier treatment is begun, the more successful it will be.

Why are people so tense today? Some say it is because life is more dangerous than it used to be. Is it really?

So far as bodily danger is concerned life is probably less threatened today than it was 100 or 200 years ago. But, so far as psychological safety is concerned, some feel we are much worse off than our ancestors.

Much psychological danger results in tensions. When stress and strain of a complicated world begin to get you down, do you know how to deal with it? Here are some suggestions from the Minnesota State Medical association.

Talk over your worries with a level-headed person you can trust.

Escape from a problem for awhile—then deal with it when you feel refreshed.

Work off anger by pitching into some physical activity or hobby.

Give in occasionally, admit that you can be wrong.

Do something for others; it takes your mind off yourself.

Take things one at a time.

Shun the superman urge; give yourself a pat on the back for the things you do well but do not try to be perfect.

Go easy with your criticism—others have faults and virtues too.

Give the other fellow a break—cooperation is contagious.

Make yourself available often; others are waiting for you to make the first move.

Schedule your recreation; it is essential to good physical and mental health.

The writing is on the wall. You have a friend who appears to be an alcoholic or moving in that direction. He displays almost all of the symptoms which might indicate alcoholism. He:

Drinks increasing amounts and becomes intoxicated often.

Is obviously preoccupied with drinking.

Attempts to conceal his drinking.

Makes weak excuses for drinking.

Refuses to admit he drinks excessively and becomes annoyed if the subject is mentioned.

Misses work frequently, particularly on Mondays and days following holidays.

Changes jobs repeatedly, especially to successively lower levels, or is employed in a capacity clearly beneath his level of ability.

Pays little attention to personal appearance or hygiene.

Has been arrested for drunkenness and drunken driving.

Has had some marital and family difficulties.

Your friend needs medical attention or at least medical evaluation to determine if he is alcoholic.

And, he needs love and understanding.

There are ways to help an alcoholic but no one approach is successful with every alcoholic. Because one or two approaches have failed, there is no reason for you to give up hope. Keep trying.

Out of breath? So what? You are not worried.

Everyone has spells of breathlessness from exertion or emotional experiences.

Your breathing troubles may be nothing to worry about. But if breathlessness occurs after ordinary exertion or if it has become difficult to breathe without apparent cause, it is time to assume that something has gone wrong, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

There are many possible explanations for breathlessness—obstructions in the nose or throat, pressures on the windpipe, various conditions in the lungs, weakening of the heart muscle, anemia and other changes in the blood, allergic asthma, disturbances in brain and nerve function or emotional causes.

They may also be due to poor physical condition, the beginning of heart and blood vessel disease or a variety of other conditions. All demand investigation and all can be treated more successfully if they are discovered promptly.

If shortness of breath comes at a moment and in an activity which did not bother you before, stop and think. It may be time to make a date for a medical examination.

OUT THE DOOR of the Oklee Lumber yard goes a load of building materials on one of the Oklee Dray Line's wagons. Tom Toulouse drives his team of Belgians to make a number of local deliveries. The horses don't seem to mind a bit as they walk insolently past the lumber company's delivery truck—standing idle as they do the work.

CHECKING A SHIPMENT of lumber which he needs hauled is Tom Melby (seated), owner of the Oklee Lumber yard. At left is Tom's assistant manager, George Desseillier. Tom Toulouse and Omer Boucher (right) await instructions as to what is to be hauled and where it is to be delivered. The lumber yard has been one of the most regular customers for Toulouse's Oklee Dray Line for the past couple of decades.

Toulouse Has Last Horse-Drawn Dray Business

From 1920 until 1959 Tom hauled mail, including express and parcel post, from the Soo depot in Oklee to the post office, and from the office to the depot. He was also caretaker of the depot for a number of years when the agent had time off and four trains went through the town daily.

The comfortable house which Tom lives in was originally his dray line's first barn. In the early 1920's he bought a lot and a stable which had been moved to Oklee several years earlier from the townsite of Lambert about three miles southwest of Oklee. Using that building to shelter his horses, he remodeled the barn into living quarters for himself and family.

Only once in the 50 plus years of the Oklee Dray Line has there been a direct competitor in the dray business, "and he only lasted a few months before he saw he couldn't make it", Tom recalls. Truck replacement of trains for hauling the mail took part of the business, and truck shipment of freight to stores also reduced the dray business volume.

"But I still haul most of the local building supplies for the Oklee Lumber Yard," Toulouse says, "and there are other jobs to keep me busy. I plow gardens, work for the village in blading the streets and alleys (with a horse-drawn grader), cut grass and weeds on roadsides and vacant lots and I don't know how many cars I've pulled to get them started in the winter."

In prior years the dray line hauled ice to 40 or 50 houses several times a week, delivered coal for heating and hauled butter from the creamery to the depot for shipment. And as a side benefit youngsters have enjoyed thousands of rides on the sleighs and wagons of the dray line over the years.

During the depression years, Tom recalls that a man and team of horses did well to earn $3 to $4 a day. Since 1947 he has been assisted in his operations by Omer Boucher who can handle the team when necessary and helps load and unload materials.

In addition to his horses, however, Tom added a truck to his company in 1943, using it for the longer hauls. He also works for Cyr Truck Lines in Oklee, was policeman in Oklee from 1925 to 1952 on a full-time basis and until 1966 part time. From 1924 to 1959 he was a deputy sheriff for Red Lake county, and a charter member of the Red River Valley Peace Officers association, from which he received his 25-year certificate at a meeting in Thief River Falls.

Toulouse is also a charter member of the Oklee Commercial club and has taken part in many community activities over the years.

One thing is certain. As long as Tom maintains his team of horses, nobody can get away with calling Oklee a one-horse town.

OMER BOUCHER has been an employee of the Oklee Dray Line for a number of years and enjoys working with horses almost as much as the owner, Tom Toulouse. Omer's smile is prompted by attempts to catch the horse's attention and make it look alert, but windy and wet weather had more of an influence on the Belgian mare.

U of M Is Leader In Telelecture System

University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service is using a variation of the telephone party line to hold nearly 75 meetings a year reaching 375 groups in two-thirds of Minnesota's counties.

In recent years the Minnesota agricultural extension service has become the acknowledged national leader in the use of this two-way teaching system via telephone known as "teleteaching" and "telelecture."

"Telelectures" originate in the radio studios of the department of information and agricultural journalism at the university.

Interested groups are selected by county extension agents for the "telelectures." They gather in meeting rooms, which have receiving units enabling an audience of 125 to hear satisfactorily, providing the room has good acoustics. Each receiving unit has a transmitter so listeners can ask the speaker questions.

As many as 11 county groups [illegible] these two-way learning programs on subjects such as 4-H leadership, horse care, dairy management, fabrics, floor covering, consumer buying problems, veterinary medicine, water quality, drugs, landscaping, gardening, nutrition and household equipment.

Except when programs are directed at only one location, each program is transmitted through a conference call placed by a central operator. Probably more than 20 groups could participate in a "telelecture" and still allow for feedback from each group. "Telelectures" usually start in November and end in March.

In most cases, speakers plan talks no longer than 20 minutes and then answer questions or allow local discussions. Color slides, overhead transparencies and other visual aids are coordinated with the "telelecture."

Average out-of-pocket cost has been less than $30 a meeting, which is considerably less than sending University staff members to all corners of the state to conduct meetings. Average line charges for the listening groups have been about $15 for an hour-and-45-minute meeting. Registrants are charged a fee for some of the courses, but most of the courses are free. Usually two to four meetings are held for each course.

Costs might be lowered if a number of university and state departments and agencies could schedule programs over a system during a major portion of the day.

A survey showed that 33 per cent of the course participants liked the "teleteaching" method "very much" and 60 per cent, "fairly well." Eighty-eight per cent of those surveyed had participated in "teleteaching" for the first time.

Wear Bars Tell Motorists Time To Change Tires

It's modern lingo, but the story is the same—when the seat of your pants wears out, it's time to get new threads, and when the tread on your automobile tires wears to one sixteenth of an inch, it's time to get new tires.

Federal law now requires all tire manufacturers to place "wear bars" on all new passenger car tires. The bars, officially known as "tread wear indicators," serve as a warning to motorists when the tires are worn to the danger point. The "wear bars" appear as smooth, narrow bands running across the face of the tire tread when it is worn to the one-sixteenth level.

"When these bands appear in two or more adjacent grooves, it's time to get new tires," says Ross R. Ormsby, chairman of the Tire Industry Safety council. "Tires with tread worn to this level are up to 44 times more likely to suffer disablement than new tires."

"The risk of skidding on wet pavements is up to 10 times greater than on a dry road, even with average tread depth," Ormsby added. "That risk doubles if the tire is bald."

A new government publication, "Tires: Their Selection and Care," by Dr. F. C. Brenner, chief of the tire systems section of the U.S. national bureau of standards, also emphasizes the danger of riding on bald tires.

"When your tires are worn to a tread of one-sixteenth inch, it is time to replace them," Brenner says. "Bald tires endanger not only you and your family, but every motorist you pass on the road."

There are many keys to longer tire life, according to the Tire Industry Safety council. The two most important are proper inflation for the load being carried, and never exceeding the maximum inflation and load carrying limits designated on the sidewall of the tire.

Another good economic as well as safety practice is to rotate the tires, including the spare, every 5,000 miles.

Fatalities From Auto Accidents Down In State

Minnesota experienced another reduction both fatal and non fatal accidents in 1970, preliminary accident reports indicate.

As the year drew to a close, Minnesota Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund reported that present figures point to a seven per cent reduction from 1969 in all accidents and a reduction of 33 fatalities.

This figure of 33 will drop off some as a certain number of traffic victims will die within 30 days of the accident.

"This continues a trend that appeared last year, when there was a seven per cent reduction in fatalities from the year before and an 18 per cent reduction in personal injuries, although there was an increase in the total number of accidents.

"The improvement will be reflected even more in the accident rates based upon miles of travel. The reduction in accidents is taking place in the face of an annual increase in travel on Minnesota highways of around a billion vehicle miles, or five to seven per cent. It appears that the fatality rate will reach a new low for 1970, around 4.28 compared with last year's 4.75 and 1968's 5.31.

"We are working on accident control on so many fronts that it is impossible to pinpoint the reasons. But the trend is clearly evident, and we feel it is safe to draw the conclusion that the highway safety program is working.

"One of the efforts is the campaign to get drunken drivers off the road. Revocation of licenses for driving while intoxicated have been increasing. This is an index of enforcement, since revocation is mandatory upon conviction of the driver. In the first 10 months of 1970, the driver license office revoked 7,076 licenses for this reason, compared with 6,891 revocations for the same period in 1969.

Plants Provide Weapon Against Air Pollution

Man can live only a few minutes without oxygen, yet he has been treating the air he breathes as though it were completely expendable.

During the Twentieth Century the air over the United States has been used as a repository for an endless list of pollutants, [illegible] air pollution crisis.

Drastic measures must be taken to stop the pollution, and ways must be found to immediately improve the quality of the air we now breathe. Strangely enough, one of nature's most abundant creations offers us a means of purifying the air. It is the plant—the green, growing plant.

Plant life, both on land and in the sea, provides man with his sole source of oxygen. "As incredible as it may seem, it is the simple, beautiful trees, shrubbery, grasses, and flowers of land and the vegetation in the seas that provides us with this life dependent thing called oxygen," said Robert F. Lederer, Executive Vice President of the American Association of Nurserymen.

Plants produce oxygen through the process called photosynthesis. Basically, photosynthesis is the absorption by plant life of carbon dioxide, which is converted into plant food, with the end result being the release of oxygen into the air.

Without photosynthetic activity of green plants, there would be no oxygen for industrial furnaces or for animal and human life. Without the action of plants and animals in aquatic systems, there would be no pure water supply, agriculture, industry and homes.

Plant life is, therefore, one of America's most important weapons in the fight for environmental quality. Whereas automobiles, factories and jet planes release tons of pollutants into the air, mass plantings of trees and shrubbery can absorb much of the carbon dioxide and other harmful gasses and release oxygen in their place.

Research conducted by the University of California shows that people who live near freeways breathe air containing less than 1,000 parts fresh air to one part auto exhaust. A healthful ratio is considered to be 2,000 to one. By planting trees or thick shrubbery along freeways, the present ratio can be improved.

Most importantly, homeowners can create their own oxygen-producing factories by planting trees and shrubbery in their own yards to offset the harmful air flowing from freeways, congested areas, or industry.

VA Voluntary Service Week Is Proclaimed

Gov. Wendell R. Anderson has officially proclaimed the week of March 28 as "Veterans Administration Voluntary Service Week" in Minnesota.

He also paid tribute to the 25th anniversary of the VA's voluntary service which is being observed this year.

The Governor said he issued the proclamation [illegible] honor their (the volunteers') efforts, as well as to alert other warm-hearted Americans to the existence of this field of service, in which their added efforts will be most welcome."

Approximately 1,230 regularly-scheduled volunteers are presently serving in the state's two VA hospitals—1,000 at the Minneapolis hospital, which is classified as general-medical-surgical, and some 230 at the St. Cloud neuropsychiatric hospital.

Volunteers have served over 2½ million hours in the Minneapolis VA hospital since 1946. [illegible] gave almost 134,000 hours of service. At the St. Cloud hospital, some 3,000 volunteers have put in approximately 557,000 hours during the past 25 years.

In his proclamation, Governor Anderson said that many servicemen and women "who served our nation well in the armed forces during times of conflict and trouble are now veterans undergoing treatment in Veterans administration hospitals."

He said that thousands of men and women, both as members of [illegible] unattached individuals "have devoted unselfishly of their time and efforts by volunteering to assist the busy professional staffs" in these VA hospitals.

"For the past 25 years these volunteers have cheered, comforted and aided in all possible ways these veteran-patients, many of whom have no kin living or are located far from friends and relatives," said the governor, declaring that "these devoted volunteers deserve the plaudits and recognition of all citizens."

Bemidji State Council Permits Course Creation

Students and faculty at Bemidji state college now have the opportunity to fashion programs and courses never before offered in education, as the formation of the BSC developmental council is a reality.

Established to recommend action on proposed experimental educational programs, the council consists of a faculty member from each of the seven BSC divisions, six members of the student body, and chairman Dr. Robert Anderson.

Anderson explains, "Our purpose is to encourage and screen proposals for experimental courses for different methods of instruction for explorative endeavors. We hope that some of these proposals will cross division or department boundaries and encourage students and faculty to try new things in education."

Any course or program that is tried at the college under the developmental council may be adopted as part of the curriculum of the college, after it has been taught twice.

For instance, an instructor determines that he would like to attempt a program on ecological legislation.

The program is set up to offer equal portions of biology and political science. Since the two disciplines are in different divisions, it is doubtful that such a course would be established under the normal policies of the college—but the developmental council can approve cross-discipline programs and cut through the sharp boundaries of academic departments and divisions—making it easier to obtain such classes.

If the ecological legislation course were offered on a quarterly basis and was successful for two quarters, it could then be added to the college catalog as a part of the regular curriculum of BSC.

"We can recommend that the course or program be dropped at any time, if we feel it is not a successful experiment—but it must be offered twice before it can become part of the curriculum," Anderson emphasizes.

The developmental council was formed [illegible] after several months of planning. Two proposals are already under consideration and target date for the first experimental classes under the program is September of 1971.

Anderson states, "At the outset, we're primarily concerned with establishing a sound program that will survive and offer an alternative for students and instructors with specialized interests."

Anderson notes that proposals for experimental programs or courses will be accepted by the council through spring quarter and that academic credit for any program will be given with approval by chairmen of the departments involved in the courses.

"I believe that the developmental concept will give use some freedom in our selection of courses. We're entering a new area in education, and we expect some problems, but I feel this is a valuable addition to our college," Anderson concludes.

Researchers Get Hearing Grant

Running a jackhammer or a rivet-gun or playing a hard-rock guitar, some jobs are hard on the ears; so hard, in fact, that permanent damage to the hearing may occur.

University of Minnesota researchers Professor W. Dixon Ward and William A. Ahaus of the hearing research laboratory have recently been aided in investigating the limits of such noise exposure. The deafness research foundation has awarded them $5,500 to study the auditory fatigue caused by exposure to intermittent noises such as those encountered in riveting operations.

The experiments are necessary for establishing realistic noise exposure limits for industrial workers, known as damage-risk criteria.

The grant was announced in New York City by Dr. Lawrence R. Boies, deafness research foundation president. Now in its 13th year of operation, the foundation is the only national, voluntary health agency devoted primarily to furthering research into the causes, treatment and prevention of hearing impairment and other ear disorders.

County ASC Board May Adjust Farm's Conserving Bases

A producer whose farm conserving base is a limiting factor in operating his farm in line with good management practices may appeal for an adjustment of the base through the end of farm program signup, April 9.

Three important provisions will be observed by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) county committees in adjusting conserving bases for changes in farming operations, according to Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington ASC committee. They are:

(1) Downward adjustment of a conserving base will be made only upon a determination that farm operations have changed from conserving crops to nonconserving crops in recent years, or in the judgment of the county committee, such a change will be made this year.

(2) Acreage removed from the conserving base will be limited to that determined to be suitable for continuous cropping.

(3) Downward adjustment will not be made to accommodate a farm's required set-aside acreage under the 1971 farm programs.

"Basically, the rules on conserving bases are being updated in line with modern farming operations," Knutson said. He pointed out today's market-oriented farm policy requires that farmers have more freedom for decision making about their farm operations. The set-aside farm programs of 1971 provide for this by getting away from the rigid crop limitations of previous programs.

"As for conserving bases," he said, "although adjustments have been made over the years for tangible changes in farm operations, in some instances conserving bases still tended to keep producers locked into types of farming operations that were no longer in their best interests. "Or they may have had to choose between staying out of farm programs or continuing an uneconomic farm operation.

For instance, a dairy farmer with 320 acres was following the recommended grass-silage feeding program when his conserving base was established. So his conserving base was set on this basis. Since that time he has determined that grain silage would be the most efficient feed for his herd, and he has been growing corn. But he couldn't participate in the feed grain program because he didn't maintain his conserving base. Now his county ASC committee can adjust his farm's conserving base in line with his actual farm operations, if the farmer asks for a downward adjustment." Winton Knutson said.

Knutson emphasized that adjustments cannot be made to accommodate set-aside acres. "By that, we mean producers cannot be given an adjustment in their conserving base simply to make up for the land they must set aside in order to participate in the 1971 farm programs. The county committee will review the entire farm operation on the basis of intended cropping."

He also emphasized that conserving acreage which is recommended only for conserving uses, such as grass cover, must remain the conserving base. "No authority is given for making an adjustment that will result in a conserving base of less than the acreage recommended for conserving uses," he said.

"Naturally, we don't know how many adjustments will be requested and granted locally, nor for how much acreage," the ASC committee chairman said. "But U.S. department of agriculture officials feel that conserving base adjustments on a national scale will not be of major consequence. For individual farmers involved, of course, it could be quite important."

Hydroplaning Is Driving Danger On Wet Surfaces

Minnesota highway department cautions that with all wet surfaces, drivers must be doubly alert to the dangers of hydroplaning at higher speeds.

Hydroplaning is a phenomenon whereby, as the speed of a vehicle increases on a wet surface, the tires actually begin to float. This can begin at speeds as low as 35 miles per hour, if the tires are not new and with good tread. Even with new, top-grade rubber, practically all wheels will lose contact with a wet surface at speeds of 50 mph and up.

Hydroplaning was first brought to the attention of engineers at the national aeronautics and space administration research center while studying a rash of military aircraft accidents during landings. A series of tire-treadmill studies finally revealed the cause of the trouble.

The highway department points out that hydroplaning is most apt to occur during acceleration, on curves, when wind velocity is high, and certainly at high speeds.

There is no sure-fire method for avoiding hydroplaning, but the best general advice is to drive well below hydroplaning speed and be especially alert when approaching curves or other changes in pitch or incline. If hydroplaning should occur, slow down immediately without using the brakes. In this way a driver can determine his safest maximum speed with good surface contact.

Highway engineers are also working to help solve this problem by cutting shallow, longitudinal grooves in highway surfaces on curves. These grooves provide an escape route for accumulated water and permit tires to remain in full contact with the surface.

Minnesota Study On Alcohol And Driving Noted

Minnesota's program dealing with the alcohol-traffic safety problem was highly acclaimed by hundreds of women who met in the nation's capitol last week.

The presentation on Minnesota's program was made to the National Womens' Organization conference by Minnesota Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund.

Particular interest was shown in an assessment report, "The Alcohol-Impaired Driver and Highway Crashes," and Hoaglund's description and analysis of a recent testing program conducted by the department.

Hoaglund told the assembled group that recent tests, which included administering alcoholic drinks to voluntary subjects and then testing their driving skills, show that there is no simple rule as to how much a person can drink before impairment of the driving skills sets in.

He cited tables which indicate a direct relation between number of drinks and a person's weight. "These tables," he said, "do not take into account many other important factors, such as physical condition, amount of food in the stomach, drinking experience, type of body build, etc."

"We also found," he said, "that though some people tested out at approximately the same percentage-of-alcohol-in-the-blood, there was a marked difference in their depth perception, reaction time, and other skills."

Hoaglund reported that, from discussion with representatives from all parts of the country, Minnesota's program stands out as one of the most progressive. "Though our program is considered one of the best in the country, we know that more lives can be saved if we make it better, and we intend to do this with several important proposals to our new legislature."

Trailer Width May Require Special Lights

Users of snowmobile trailers were advised today to check the dimensions, as some of the trailers in-use are of a size that requires special lighting.

"Trailers which exceed 80 inches in width require clearance lamps, front and rear. If the trailer and towing vehicle exceed 30 feet in over-all length, the trailer must also be equipped with side marker lamps, which can be combined with the clearance lamps," according to Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund.

"While most of the trailers in use are well within the dimension limits," he explained, "it has come to our attention that some of the double trailers now in use should be equipped with these lights.

"Since clearance and marker lamps are safety devices for the protection of both the trailer owners and other motorists, trailer owners should check their vehicles now.

"If the trailer is more than 80 inches wide it must be equipped on the front with two white or amber lights visible 500 feet to the front, and on the rear with two red lamps visible 500 feet to the rear. They must be mounted not more than six inches from the sides of the trailer. These are in addition to the regular rear lamps required by law.

If the trailer and towing vehicle measure more than 30 feet in length, the trailer must also be equipped with four side marker lamps, white or amber near the front, red near the rear. All lamps must be of a type approved by the department of public safety for this purpose.

Trailer owners should check on their signals also. If the brake and turn signals on the towing vehicle are obscured, and if hand signals are not clearly visible to following drivers, the trailer should be equipped with such signals.

Pool Safety Takes More Than Just Caring

Pool safety takes preparing. Knowing the rules of safe conduct — knowing the use of first aid — knowing the right pool chemicals and how to handle them, including a new flame-proofed chlorine product.

Caring about pool safety isn't enough. It takes full awareness of potential dangers and a number of preventive measures as well, to make a backyard swimming pool really safe for fun and recreation. Setting rules for your pool is one important step: 1) No swimming alone. 2) No horseplay. 3) No swimming when too tired or too cold. 4) No glass in the pool. 5) No tools or other stumbling hazards. 6) No children without adults. 7) No swimming for one hour after eating.

Every pool owner should know, and periodically practice, basic lifesaving. He should have a good first aid kit on hand and know how to use it.

Another key area of safety is the handling of pool chemicals. The manufacturers' directions should always be observed in use and storage.

Pool water must be treated to control bacteria and algae. By far the most popular pool sanitizer is calcium hypochlorite, a convenient to use "dry chlorine" product. Nothing kills bacteria faster. It helps control algae, too. But conventional dry chlorine is reactive. Many people don't realize that it can burn violently in contact with dirt, suntan lotion, food, soft drinks, even grass clippings.

A flameproofed dry chlorine called Sentry was recently introduced by Pennwalt Corporation. A unique patented product, Sentry would fit well in any effective pool safety program. It does everything conventional dry chlorine will do, while greatly reducing the chance of fire or explosion. Sentry is currently available from dealers handling the Pennwalt line of pool water treatment chemicals.

Motor Vehicle Spot Inspection Starts In April

April 1 will be the starting date for a seven-month spot inspection program during which approximately 100,000 Minnesota vehicles will be inspected, according to Minnesota department of public safety commissioner W. R. Hoaglund.

The annual program is conducted in random areas throughout the state by the highway patrol, assisted by highway maintenance men and vocational school students.

The majority of vehicles inspected during the period will be passenger cars, station wagons and light trucks, since heavier equipment is inspected on a year round basis at the state's weight stations. There is no charge for these inspections.

In addition to the normal classes of vehicles checked in prior years, inspection teams will check all state units driven by highway department personnel, vehicles owned and operated by the U.S. post office, and all military vehicles in general use.

Each of the 11 highway patrol districts will be required to conduct not less than 60 eight-hour periods of random inspections during the period from April 1 to November 30.

Inspection procedures and correction will not be changed, i.e., if a vehicle passes the inspection, an orange sticker will be placed in the lower left corner of the windshield. If the car has some minor defects, the owner will be given a notice of equipment repair on which the defects are listed. He must then have the vehicle repaired and return to the highway patrol for re-examination. He will then be given a sticker. If extreme deficient conditions of equipment are found, a citation will be issued.

Last year 00,000 vehicles were inspected, of which 54 per cent had defects. A breakdown of types showed 55 per cent of the cars, 54 per cent of the trucks, and 46 per cent of the school buses with defects.

Predict Growth In Ag Economy For Minnesota

Income generated from farming and horticulture totaled $4 billion in Minnesota during 1969, and there's tremendous growth potential, according to a University of Minnesota economist.

"Nearly 30 per cent of the state's total employment—about 455,000 jobs—comes from the agribusiness economy," points out Dale Dahl of the university's department of agricultural and applied economics.

This is the total of farm employment plus farm related industries. However, there are two persons employed in the food and fiber chain for each farm operator in Minnesota. And, one of every four persons employed in the major metropolitan areas of Minnesota are engaged in farm input and output industry activities.

"But if 1947 technology and adaptation were still in effect, the value of Minnesota's farm products would be $500 million less than that recorded in 1969," Dahl says.

"This $500 million represents the payoff of increased research and extension activities conducted by both private industry and the university. Research work in universities and federal laboratories across the United States contributes to our productivity just as Minnesota research results contribute to the productivity of farming in other states," he adds.

"If present trends in technological advances continue, Minnesota farmers will be producing $500 million more in agricultural commodities by 1980 without using any more inputs than are being used today. This will mean an additional $1.4 billion of income generated for businesses related to agriculture.

"At today's prices, income generated in farming and related businesses will reach the $6.1 billion mark in 1980," the economist concludes.

Duluth & Melrose Claim Titles In State Tourney

With still one more championship session remaining, the new two-class Minnesota state high school basketball tournament proved to be extremely successful as a record 125,888 fans turned out to see the four-day event last week.

Duluth Central nudged North St. Paul 54-51 to claim the class AA, or large school, title while Melrose hung on to defeat Red Wing 64-53 for the class A title. The two winners will meet next Saturday, April 3 for the over-all state title.

The record number of fans viewing the new 16-team field bettered the old attendance record by some 37,937 with the title game bringing in a possible 18,000 more fans.

Duluth Central won its third state championship in basketball with its 54-51 win over North as the Trojans connected on a long jump shot with 1:41 remaining in the game to break a 48-48 tie and propel the Duluth quint to their title.

Star center Como Pontiliana led the Trojan scorers with 18 points and finished second in scoring in the AA games with 78 points in three games. Rugged Jim Petrich of North topped the title game scorers with 22 points while Central's Larry Potter collected 14 and Mike Stephens of North 11 to reach double figures.

Melrose won its first basketball title with a 64-53 win over a small Red Wing quint in Saturday night's class A finale before the tourney's largest crowd of 17,164.

The Dutchmen took a 13-3 lead with less than five minutes gone in the opening period and led 22-9 at the end of the first quarter. Melrose maintained a ten point lead throughout the second quarter and led 33-23 going into intermission. The Wingers surged to within a point at 36-35 in the third quarter but couldn't take the lead as the Dutchmen climbed to a 42-39 advantage after three quarters.

Classy John Thelen led the winners in scoring with 23 points while teammate Butch Moening collected 12. Red Wing had three players reach double figures with Dan Meyers getting 19, Steve Bohmbach 13 and Mike Plass 11.

Melrose shot 57 per cent from the floor during the title game although committing 23 turnovers to the Red Wing press but the Wingers shot only 36 per cent from the field against Melrose.

In other class A tournament games East Grand Forks started the 1971 action with a 63-49 win over the Albany Huskies as Kurt Knoff tallied 19 points, Scott Gravseth 14 and Rip Thompson 12 for the Green Wave who led just 18-17 after one quarter. Joe Hasbrouck paced the losers with 19 points.

Melrose dropped foul plagued Two Harbors 70-66 in the tournament's second game Wednesday afternoon before 14,049 fans. Ace Two Harbors center Scott MacDonald collected 20 points although he sat out an entire quarter because of foul trouble.

In Thursday night's first round class A action Red Wing tripped Rosemount 71-68 and Renville blasted out-manned Luverne 74-55. Red Wing ran up a ten point halftime lead and managed to hold on for their win while Larry Mulder of Renville poured in 26 points to break open a 45-43 ball game in the third quarter for an easy win.

Melrose and East Grand Forks were tied 13 times in their semi-final game Friday night as the Dutchmen led 19-18 at the half and each team scored 15 points in the third quarter and 10 points in the final stanza for the 54-53 Melrose win. Ron Maus led the winners with 19 points followed by John Thelen's 14 and Butch Moening with 11. Kurt Knoff once again led the Green Wave with 17 points while Don Johnson added 16 and Stan Leach came off the bench for 12.

East Grand Forks stormed to a 22-12 lead after one period enroute to their 80-77 win over Renville to capture third place in the class A tournament Saturday night.

The Green Wave held an 11 point advantage at the start of the final quarter before time ran out on the Indians who had cut the margin to just three points behind guard Doug Reetz who finished the game with 20 points. Kurt Knoff played brilliantly in the first half as the junior forward connected on 13 of 16 field goal attempts and four of five free throws for 30 points at the intermission before ending up with a tournament high 39 points.

Duluth knocked off Hopkins Eisenhower 68-54 to open the class AA portion of the state tourney Wednesday night as 6-8 Como Pontiliana scored 26 points and pulled down nine rebounds although getting into foul trouble early in the game. Junior forward Paul Taylor raised a few eyebrows as the senior guard connected on his first eight shots from the field and ended with 18 points on eight of ten field goal attempts and a three for three performance from the free throw line.

Brainerd and Robbinsdale seesawed back and forth in the second AA game Wednesday night before the Warriors were able to pull away in the final minutes for a 67-56 win with rangy Larry Bunnell collecting 17 points and 14 rebounds.

Minneapolis Central nudged Mankato 79-76 Thursday afternoon as the Pioneers hit on over fifty per cent of their shots from the field behind play-maker Emanuel Rogers' 33 points.

North clobbered an out-classed Alexander Ramsey quint 64-50 in the other AA game Thursday night as the Polars outshot Ramsey 59 per cent to 27 per cent from the field.

Duluth advanced into the AA finals with a thrilling 63-59 win over Brainerd Friday night behind the one-man wrecking crew of Como Pontiliana. The two teams played to a 25-all tie at the half and the Trojans trailed 40-39 going into the final eight minutes of the game. Pontiliana paced the winners with 34 points and 19 rebounds as Brainerd had four of its starting five foul out of the game.

North dropped Minneapolis Central 69-58 in Friday night's second game as the Polars overcame a 22-13 first period deficit for a 37-32 lead at the half behind Tom Bock's 23 points.

Central staved off a Brainerd come-back in the second half to claim a 54-53 decision in the class AA consolation game. The mill city quint grabbed a 15-13 lead after one period and ran up a 32-20 lead at the half before the Warriors trimmed the margin to 44-43 going into the final period and both teams collected 10 points in the last stanza.

Emanuel Rogers paced the game's scorers with 26 points while teammate Ron White earned 12 with Wayne Coughey and Mike Morgan each getting 12 points for the Warriors.

Melrose with a school enrollment of 605 in the top three grades will face Duluth Central, 1,610, Saturday at 7:35 p.m.

The Outdoorsman of the year is chosen by a national poll of more than 5,000 outdoor writers and conservationists and the award is donated by the Winchester-Western Division of Olin Corporation.

Congressman Dingell's award was presented by William E. Talley, vice president for marketing, Winchester-Western Division, and consisted of an award scroll and a Winchester Model 101 over-and-under 20-gauge skeet gun with interchangeable extra barrels in 410 and 28 guage.

Previous recipients of the Outdoorsman of the Year Award include Roger Latham, Lee Wulff, the late Nash Buckingham, the late John Alden Knight, Stewart L. Udall, the late Dr Logan Bennett, General Curtis LeMay, and Walter Alston and the late Robert Taylor.

PLAY BY PLAY ON SPORTS

with Mike Lundgren

We'll go on record as being 100 per cent in favor of the new class A and AA basketball tournament that was employed this season on a two-year experimental basis.

125,888 fans were able to attend the state classic this year and there was always room for any late arriving fans at spacious Williams arena. The largest single session crowd was the 17,164 which saw the consolation and title game of the class A teams Saturday night, which was still shy of filling the 18,000 seat arena.

Surprisingly enough the smaller school crowds (A) outdrew the AA sessions over the four day tournament. Class A sessions drew 63,628 fans while the class AA games were played before 62,260 spectators.

We were going to suggest a switch to the Met Sports Center for the games in the future but then the problems would arise with the scarcity of tickets as in the past so we'd like to see the event stay at Williams arena. More people should be able to see this great sports event and the arena seats 3,000 more fans than the Met.

Other one-sided thoughts from the tourney were:

East Grand Forks picked a poor time to play its worst ball of the year as they did against Melrose in the class A semi-finals.

"East Side" committed 16 turnovers against the Dutchmen and were out-rebounded 37-27 for the game. Don Johnson managed to pull down just six caroms and Mark Syrstad nine while Scott Gravseth scored only six points and Rip Thompson failed to score a single point.

Thompson's downfall the second night was surprising after his performance in the tournament's first game when he scored 12 points and played what we thought his best game of the year.

Renville's 70-65 loss to Red Wing in the class A semi-finals was the first athletic event the school lost all season. The Indians ran up a 9-0 record on the gridiron this past fall and had won 22 straight basketball games before the loss to the Wingers. One of Renville's better players was 6-4 freshman Greg Mulder who started for the Indians.

The officiating, although not bad, was very inconsistent throughout the tournament's 16 games. The poorest game the officials called was the Brainerd-Duluth Central contest where Brainerd lost four starters on fouls and were called for 25 personals for the game.

Duluth center Como Pontiliana was one of the best big men we've seen in the Minnesota prep ranks. The 6-8 senior scored 78 points during the tournament, just two behind Emanuel Rogers of Minneapolis Central.

It was too bad the fans weren't able to see more of Two Harbors' Scott MacDonald in the tourney. The 6-5 senior center is a great college prospect and had a 54-point game this past season. The Agates lost their opening round class A game to Melrose 70-66 and were eliminated from further consolation honors.

The general consensus around the press room was that all the teams were very respectable tournament entrants except Alexander Ramsey. The Rams finished their season 13-6 but in their 67-42 loss to North they shot a poor 27 per cent from the field and played a very sloppy game for a state tournament contest.

Melrose wasn't expected to advance very far in the tournament. The Dutchmen lack the speed or the height to match their opponents but are a very aggressive and physical team led by All-Stater John Thelen.

Our pick is Duluth Central over Melrose 61-54.

Anton Instructs Electric Class

DOUG ANTON, second from left, has been using his background and experience in basic electricity and electronics to work with youngsters in fourth, fifth and sixth grades in a special electric program. Here he is helping with the construction of miniature electric motors.

Pennington county extension service, with help from a young man employed by the Inter-County Community Council Outreach program, has been working with 50 to 60 boys and girls for the past several weeks on a special electric program.

Doug Anton, under the supervision of County Agent Terry Courneya, has been using his background and experience in basic electricity and electronics, to work with youngsters in grades four, five and six on this program. The program provides the boys and girls with an opportunity to become familiar with magnetism and its close relationship to electricity through the use of simple devices such as buzzers, door bells and small DC motors which they construct themselves.

Those whose interests and skills develop sufficiently, are able to move on into the construction of a crystal radio set and some will progress to the point where they construct a transistor radio.

Kits containing the basic components of the devices they construct are made available at a nominal fee and the work on them is supervised at a weekly meeting after school. Most of the children participating were able to do much of the work at home, bringing their projects back to class each week for inspection and help with problems that they had.

Doug's original schedule was planned for only one day each week to work with the program designed by Courneya to enroll 12 to 15 boys and girls. The project was publicized through the local schools and at the first meeting 63 youngsters showed up to enroll.

This necessitated a quick change in plans and the cooperation of several other offices for whom Doug was working in his Outreach Program—namely ASCS, SCS and the sheriff's office. With their approval he was able to finish his day at 3:30 p.m. to allow him to meet four days a week with a smaller group of youngsters in the electric project. Doug says it has been a challenge. "I run into a lot of unexpected things, even the fact that girls are interested in electricity; but it has been enjoyable and a good experience for me."

County Agent Courneya now is planning to offer another series of lessons on some special interest topic to be named later. When that program begins, Doug will likely find himself surrounded by eager youngsters learning by doing something they find interesting.

Diamond Jubilee Plans Discussed

Initial promotion and publicity plans for the Diamond Jubilee in Thief River Falls were revealed at a meeting held recently at the Hi-Bi Apollo room in Thief River Falls. Dennis Wojahn is chairman of the advertising committee of the jubilee.

Others in attendance at the meeting were William LaFave, general chairman of the jubilee; Merle Smith, Mrs. Robert Henry, Carl Anderson, Marvin Lundin and Donald L. Olson.

Wojahn noted that colorful vests are being ordered for men to wear in promoting the event, and that women are being encouraged to secure dresses of another era to add to the pageantry of the observance. Some talk had been heard of a whisker club, he said, but as of yet no plans are being made to promote one.

Our caravans to other communities to promote the celebration on September 16-17-18-19 were also mentioned as summer projects. LaFave outlined activities planned for the celebration and said that committee chairmen will be providing information on their portions of the event as arrangements are completed.

United Fund Mails Research Donation

EAGLE SCOUT awards were given to two recipients Monday evening at a court of honor held in St. Bernard's Catholic church in Thief River Falls. Both recipients are from Troop 53 in St. Hilaire. In the top photo, Neil Sjulson receives his pin from Morris Owen while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sjulson, look on. Receiving his Eagle pin in the bottom photo is Chad Rolland, pictured with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Rolland.

Donations of $1,000 each to the Mayo foundation and the University of Minnesota—to be used for research into the causes and cure of cancer—have been made by the people of Thief River Falls through their United Fund. Fred Dallmann, treasurer of the United Fund, and David Swanson, chairman of the commercial drive, mailed the checks today.

In a letter to Mrs. James Carlson, secretary of the United Fund, Lowell Linnes of the Mayo Foundation stated, "We do have a wide range of special projects within the area of cancer research, and funds can be earmarked for a special area of interest. We would be happy to confirm whether or not we do have a program in any particular area that you might be interested in. The same can be said, incidently, four our programs in heart research."

The following quote is from a letter from Lyle French, M.D., acting vice president, health sciences affairs of the University of Minnesota:

"I want to thank you very much for the check for $2,000 which the people of Thief River Falls, through the United Fund, have donated to the University of Minnesota for heart and cancer research. This sort of thing is extremely important to our ongoing and new programs. We will certainly use it to our fullest ability. We appreciate it very much. It is through such unselfish contributions as this that real progress is made in specific areas in medicine."

A total of $4,000 has now been donated by the United Fund of Thief River Falls for cancer and heart research, including $1,000 for cancer and $1,000 for heart research to both the Mayo Clinic and University of Minnesota.

Mrs. Carlson also cited the following article, taken from the "Executive Newsletter" of the United Community Funds and Councils of America and dated Feb. 22, 1971:

"The Red Cross sheltered and fed 8,000 persons the night following the earthquake in California's San Fernando Valley. Disaster workers and some 300 Red Cross volunteers,

Debi Liden-John Anderson Marriage Vows Exchanged

Miss Debi Liden and John Anderson exchanged marriage vows on Friday, February 19, at 5:30 p.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Rev. Frank Reid.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Liden of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Anderson of Stephen.

To correspond with the bride's chosen colors of lavender and white, the chancel was graced with baskets of white gladioli accented with lavender carnations. Miss Brenda Burger, a friend of the bride, presided at the organ. She played the traditional wedding march and also accompanied Mrs. Sherman Idso as she sang "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a floor-length gown of white organza styled in empire fashion with a satin ribbon at the high rise waistline. Lace trim accented the fitted bodice and edged the trumpet sleeves. Creating back interest was a peacock train of sheer organza highlighted by lace edging and wide lace trim down the center. A crown of pearls held her veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade of white sweetheart roses and carnations centered with a large lavender orchid.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Mary Liden of this city. Bridesmaids were friends of the bride, Misses Sue Delorme and Jan Joppru, both of Thief River Falls. They were attired in identical, floor-length gowns of a sheer orchid print styled in baby-doll fashion. White lace trimmed the stand up collars and the wide bands around the short puffy sleeves. Their headpieces were wide flat bows of the same material as their gowns. Each carried an arm bouquet of three long-stemmed white roses tied with ribbon streamers.

Ned Johnson of East Grand Forks, a cousin of the groom, was best man. Serving as groomsmen were brothers of the groom, Jason Anderson and Forrest Anderson, both of Stephen. Ushers were cousins of the bride, Larry Liden and Mike Liden, both of Thief River Falls. All the men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with white rose boutonnieres.

For the wedding of their son and daughter, Mrs. Liden and Mrs. Anderson chose off-white dresses with corsages composed of white cymbidium orchids.

Attending the ceremony as honor guests were grandparents of the bride, Mrs. Julia Liden of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Doule of Red Lake Falls; grandparents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Kelin Anderson of Stephen, and the bride's godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Haule of Red Lake Falls.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride hosted a wedding supper at the Rex cafe for 55 relatives and close friends. Ginny Liden, a sister of the bride, registered the guests as Kathy Holmstrom and Kathy Hull, friends of the bride, served the punch.

Centering the serving table was a round three-tiered wedding cake, trimmed with lavender hearts. Yellow roses complemented each tier, separated by pillars. Topping the cake was a triple wedding bell ornament with lilies of the valley. Mrs. Lyle Liden, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake.

Guests attending were from Maryland, East Grand Forks, Warren, Stephen, Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Grand Forks, N. D., and Winnipeg, Man. Canada, the bride wore an aqua empire fashioned pantsuit.

The bride is a senior at Lincoln high school and is residing with her parents while completing the school year. Upon graduation she will join her husband who is stationed with the United States Army at Fort Benning, Ga. He is a 1968 graduate of Stephen high school and a 1970 graduate of Northland State junior college. Photo, Lund Studio, Raseau

A report to city police March 23 by Albert Swenson led to the apprehension of a Navy deserter.

Swenson told police that gas had been siphoned from his truck the night of March 22-23. Police then contacted Gary Hammond, 26, of Levant, Mo., who admitted the theft. It was later learned that Hammond was a Navy deserter, and he was then turned over to naval authorities.

In other police cases in Thief River Falls in the past week, a car driven by Llewellyn Lane, Thief River Falls, hit the rear end of a car driven by Bruce A. Baken while both cars were traveling east on Third at about 8 p.m. March 23. The collision resulted in $400 in damage.

On Thursday the theft of seven dollars from a locker in Lincoln high school was reported. The matter is being investigated.

A car driven by Robert LaValley was stopped in a lane of traffic waiting for another vehicle to turn at 7:50 a.m. Friday when LaValley's car was struck in the rear by a car driven by Gary Iverson, rt. 3. Iverson's car then spun around and hit a parked car owned by Ruby Sorenson, also of rt. 3. Damages to the three cars totaled $725.

Also on Friday, Gladys McAdam reported that a storm window and an interior window of her home had been broken with a length of chain. Damage was estimated at $30.

John Kotaska reported March 30 the theft of a tire, rim and sprocket from some farm machinery and reported the value at $25.

Wefald Applauds Raise In Dairy Support Freeze

On behalf of Minnesota's dairy industry and Governor Wendell R. Anderson, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald today expressed appreciation for U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin's reversal of his earlier freeze on the federal milk price support.

"The 27 cent increase, to $4.93 per 100 pounds of manufacturing milk, will benefit Minnesota's dairy industry by approximately $20 million a year at an increased cost to consumers of only about a penny and a half per half gallon," Commissioner Wefald stated.

However, he said the boost is "stop-gap, only the bare minimum pleaded for by the dairy industry spokesmen with full support from Governor Anderson, myself, and by government leaders from all of the key dairy states."

Commissioner Wefald pointed out that the increase in the support price will bring the milk parity level to only 85 per cent.

He said the federal milk price support is particularly important to Minnesota and Wisconsin agricultural economy, because the two states produce nearly half the nation's total supply of manufacturing milk, and nearly one fourth of the nation's total dairy products, while the milk price structure here is the lowest in the nation.

4,000 Apply For Added Benefits On Unemployment

Approximately 4,000 Minnesotans who have exhausted their unemployment compensation benefits applied for additional emergency payments during the first week of the new extended benefits program, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of manpower services said today.

"This is about half the number we expected," Commissioner Cushing said. "Apparently some people either haven't heard about the program yet or are unaware that they are eligible."

Persons eligible for extended benefits are those who filed new claims for unemployment benefits under either state or federal programs on or after March 29, 1970, he said. They must since have exhausted their regular benefits and currently must be unemployed although they may have been employed temporarily since their benefits were exhausted.

Persons who think they are eligible should contact the same office with which their original claim was filed, Cushing said. Persons who have moved should contact the nearest state employment service office of the Minnesota department of manpower services.

"When you come to claim extended benefits, you should bring your identification booklet," Cushing said. "If you don't have your booklet, you must have your social security card."

Under the terms of the extended benefits law, persons who have exhausted their ordinary benefits may collect extended benefits equal to one-half of the maximum benefits authorized in their original claim.

Commissioner Cushing noted eligibility for payment of extended benefits begins the week [illegible] should be filed as soon as possible.

The extended unemployment benefits program became effective Sunday, March 21, after Governor Wendell R. Anderson signed the enabling legislation March 18.

Local Residents Can Help Orioles Build A Nest

Thief River Falls residents can do something different this spring: Help an oriole family build a nest.

Orioles start arriving in Minnesota each year toward the end of March. They then begin building a fiber bag for a nest. The birds build a hanging framework, then work from the inside to weave a nest. The fibers used in these nests vary from one location to another, with carefully stripped milkweed fibers being very popular.

University of Minnesota bird experts, with the cooperation of several hundred people last year, found that the orioles also like to use binder twine fibers.

This year, as a result, the Bell Museum of Natural History is offering to supply bundles of untwisted binder twine fibers for Minnesotans who want to watch an oriole family set up housekeeping.

To receive a complete kit, send 70 cents to the Bell Museum of Natural History, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn. 55455. The kit includes an instruction sheet for placing the fibers outdoors, a bundle of fibers and two complete bird booklets. Cost includes postage and handling.

State Recovers Treated Wheat Sold As Food

Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald today warned Minnesota "nature food" consumers against eating poisonous and possibly deadly grains. He also warned farmers not to feed animals or poultry this type of grain.

Commissioner Wefald announced recovery by Minnesota department of agriculture inspectors of half of a 60-pound bag of wheat treated with a poisonous mercury compound and said possible legal action is being considered against the firm for alleged mishandling of the poisonous material.

He warned that disposition of the other 30 pounds of the treated wheat, intended only for use as seed, is still unknown, presumably sold to "nature food" fans.

"If you recently purchased a small quantity of wheat, or any other grain, for use as 'nature food', beware if it has an artificial coloring. That is the special warning identification required by law for treated agricultural seeds. The warning color usually is a pink or red, an obvious contrast with the normal yellow or yellow-gray appearance of ripe grain," Commissioner Wefald cautioned.

The commissioner said that current laws and regulations require that material removed from an original, properly labeled container and repackaged into smaller lots must bear the same label identification as the original container. The consumer should also request a sales slip from the vendor when such purchases are made.

The warning and pending action stemmed from a telephoned inquiry to the department from a metropolitan area woman, who luckily inquired about the odd red coloring she had been unable to wash off the wheat she wanted to prepare for "nature food."

Department inspectors obtained samples of the material and laboratory analysis confirmed that the wheat was treated with a mercury seed treatment compound. Inspectors also visited the retail establishment that had repackaged the material and where the wheat had been purchased, allegedly without the package bearing a proper label.

The retail dealer was able to recall only one other transaction, 30 pounds of the treated wheat had been supplied to a poultry farmer near Northfield. Inspectors obtained the balance of the lot from the farmer and also obtained samples of the eggs for laboratory analysis.

Department inspectors also traced the initial shipment of treated wheat back to the manufacturer, and are satisfied that the firm is properly labeling as treated grains and for use as seed only, all such material.

Commissioner Wefald explained that the seed treatment is a form of pesticide application, intended to protect agricultural seeds and the early roots formed against a wide variety of insect and disease problems.

The commissioner also stated that the various laws and regulations of the state, if properly complied with by manufacturers, processors and distributors, will insure that foods offered to consumers will be pure and wholesome.

Private Fearing Completes Basic

Army Private Lawrence P. Fearing, 23, recently completed eight weeks of basic training at the U.S. Army Training Center, Armor, Ft. Knox, Ky.

$108 Million In Taxes Refunded To Minnesotans

More than $108 million has been refunded to Minnesota taxpayers, according to George Lethert, IRS district director.

Federal refund averages amount to approximately $265 per return compared with $228 for 1970, and the dollar amount refunded is 12 per cent ahead of last year, Lethert said.

Current reports show that more than 400,000 returns with 1970 overpayments have been processed by the IRS, an increase of 30,000 over the 1970 corresponding period.

Some 18,000 returns have been delayed in processing due to taxpayer errors. The largest category of mistakes is in use of the wrong tax table. Mathematical errors represent the next highest error. Missing social security numbers and omitted signatures follow as common reasons for delayed processing of returns.

Individuals who have not filed their returns this year were reminded of the new IRS service by Lethert. Those with income at $20,000 or less, who elect the standard deduction, as well as retired persons entitled to claim the retirement income credit, can request the IRS to compute their tax. Instructions for requesting this assistance are in the tax form booklet. After the tax has been figured, a refund will be issued, or a bill sent to those who owe added tax.

Burial Mounds To Be Excavated During Summer

An archaeological dig of major importance will be undertaken this summer by Alan Brew, assistant professor of anthropology and director of Indian studies center at Bemidji state college. Students from BSC and other colleges will participate in the program.

Brew received word this week that the U.S. army corps of engineers approved a $4,053 grant to excavate a site containing burial mounds and a campsite area north and east of Bena.

"Students and area residents interested in earning credit can assist with this dig for eight credits, if they put in a full day, or four credits for a half day," Brew says.

The mounds are characterized by the BSC archaeologist as linear in shape, the largest being about four feet high, five feet wide and about 150 feet in length.

"Normally, such mounds are prehistoric, and originate as far back as 2,000 years," Brew muses. "We can't say for sure that these mounds are that old, but they are definitely prehistoric."

The contract signed with the corps of engineers calls for excavation of the mounds, exploratory investigation and processing of all excavated materials, with reconstruction of the mounds after exploration.

Brew is also obligated to prepare photographs of the exploration, and prepare a record of findings suitable for public display. He is also contracted to analyze artifacts and data and report his conclusions to the engineers.

The actual digging will be done during first summer session at BSC. The dig is open for 15-20 students and Brew emphasizes that he will also teach a spring quarter class on archaeological excavation techniques.

"The class and field project will give students an opportunity to be involved in an important dig, and learn the importance of carefully controlled and recorded excavation procedures," Brew says.

Two of the mounds at the site are almost certain burial areas, while three others are possible burial mounds. There is also a possible campsite area that Brew will explore.

Students from BSC and the local area will be given first consideration for work at the dig, but Brew notes that the University of Minnesota is interested in the site and that students from UM will be used if the quota of 15-20 is not filled locally.

"There is no problem finding persons to work on such projects, and I feel that BSC and high school graduates from this area will more than fill our needs," he says.

Ultimate use of the information by the engineers may lead to establishment of a campground and archaeological display by the corps of engineers in the vicinity of Winnibigoshish damsite.

Work at the site will be eight hours per day five days a week through first summer session for eight credits. Students wishing to take four credits must provide their own transportation to the dig.

Housing for students and transportation to the dig can be arranged at BSC. Further information is available from Brew at Sanford hall room 12.

Inventors Will Hold Congress At Redwood Falls

Minnesota Inventors congress will be held June 11, 12, 13 at the Redwood county fairgrounds in Redwood Falls. For a nominal fee, inventors may show their inventions to over 10,000 people. Many manufacturers attend annually to look over the inventions.

Minnesota Inventors congress is in its 14th year and is the oldest continuous and most successful congress in the United States. Representatives from the Small Business administration, United States department of commerce, Minnesota patent law association and Minnesota department of economic development are in attendance and available to all inventors free of charge.

In the first year of the inventors congress, 1958, Leo Hagenson, then of Hastings, showed a collapsible travel trailer. He sold his invention to the Rollie corporation in Grantsburg, Wis. They named it the Rollie trailer and produced 1,000 of them by 1965, providing 65 jobs in its first year of production. The Rollie trailer has since been sold to Larson Industries of Minneapolis and they now produce seven different models yearly.

In the agricultural division, Harold Fratzke and Glenn Gaifke of Cottonwood invented the Metro self hitch for a tractor. They have formed their own company, Metro Hydraulics, Inc. in Minneapolis. Production has just begun and the future looks very promising.

Something that many people had thought of, but nobody had invented, was the idea of Dave Bewuske of White Bear Lake. He had trouble carrying garment bags with many hangers in them when traveling.

So he simply invented a plastic handle to encase the hangers and give you a single handle to carry on your garment bag. Dewuske formed his own company, Easy Carry corporation, and produced 75,000 units in the first three months of operation at a dollar value of $47,000. The Travelers Mate is getting national distribution and Dewuske says, "We think it is a great Congress and will be back in 1972."

To find out more about the Minnesota Inventors congress, write Box 71, Redwood Falls, Minnesota 56283.

1970 Sugar Beet Crop Estimated At $26,909,000

Minnesota's 1970 sugar beet crop valuation has been estimated at $26,909,000, the third largest of record, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald announced today.

He said that last year's crop, although down from record 1969, held Minnesota's national ranking as the fifth largest source of sugar beets. Only California, Idaho, Colorado and Michigan, respectively, rank ahead of Minnesota.

Commissioner Wefald said that sugar beets also rank fifth in income production from field crops for Minnesota farmers, behind corn, soybeans, oats and wheat.

Two factors, both influenced by the prolonged spring rains last year, accounted for the $5,884,000 cutback in value of the 1970 sugar beet crop. Minnesota farmers harvested 17,500 acres less, and the yield was down two tons per acre, compared to 1969.

Commissioner Wefald said the sugar industry is of significant benefit to Minnesota's economy and consumers.

In addition to the farm income, processing adds at $6.3 million manufacturing payroll to the state economy, in facilities that represent an investment of over $65 million. Processors pay over $2 million annually in taxes, spend $8.5 million for transportation of beets and final products, and spend $500,000 for packaging, another important Minnesota industry.

Minnesota's four sugar beet processing plants, at Chaska, Moorhead, Crookston and East Grand Forks, have a capacity for processing 15,600 tons of sugar beets, yielding about 4.5 million pounds of refined sugar, every 24 hours. Additional plants at Mason City, Iowa, and Drayton, N. D., boost daily processing capacity to 24,200 tons of sugar beets and 6,850,000 pounds of refined sugar.

Commissioner Wefald said Minnesota's sugar industry has played a key role in keeping this consumer food staple one of the biggest bargains in the housewife's market basket.

Zoological Board To Begin Drive For Membership

An intensive statewide membership drive by the Minnesota Zoological society has been announced by Dr Valentine O'Malley, St. Paul physician and president of the society.

The drive will be a seasonal campaign running all spring, from the week of March 22 to the first day of summer, June 22, the date of the annual membership meeting.

Honorary memberships to Governor Wendell R. Anderson and mayors throughout the state will be awarded as part of the campaign.

Mailings to interested persons and organizations and an informational and educational effort will accompany the society's attempt to build support for the master plan of the Minnesota state zoological board. The comprehensive plan, currently under study by the state legislature, is designed to incorporate the cultural, social, educational and ecological benefits which will accrue from a major metropolitan zoological garden serving Minnesota and surrounding states.

Commenting on the membership drive, Dr. O'Malley said, "This campaign actually has a two-fold thrust. Our efforts will be directed to support of the state zoo simultaneous with a program of help and assistance in the development of all zoological facilities throughout the state."

The Minnesota Zoological society was organized several years ago by a group of private citizens whose studies indicated the need for a major zoological garden in Minnesota.

Recently revitalized, the society has dedicated itself to the realization of the Minnesota Zoological board's concept of a zoological garden and has enlarged its board of trustees to include representatives of all existing and contemplated Minnesota zoos, including Como, Duluth, Redwood Falls, Mankato and Little Falls. New trustees from numerous Minnesota communities have also been appointed to the society board.

Crash Survivor Complains About Drunk Drivers

A St. Paul man and his wife suffered extensive injuries and had their new car "totaled out" by a driver who "was obviously under the influence of alcohol but apparently not quite enough to qualify as being 'drunk'." He told of his experience and expressed his feelings in a letter to Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoglund.

"Though this crash happened some months ago, it is a graphic illustration of what is happening on our highways today," Hoglund said.

"This man and his wife were hit by a car which veered across two traffic lanes to hit them headon. Had they not been buckled up, they would probably have been killed outright.

"As it was, the wife was incapacitated for over two months and the man may suffer some permanent damages in addition to severe facial fractures.

"There are altogether too many drivers who are definitely impaired, even though the alcohol concentration in their blood has not reached the .10 per cent level of presumptive intoxication.

"We hope to reduce this hazard by authorizing enforcement officers to administer on-the-spot breath tests. If the driver's blood tests at .10 per cent or higher, he will then be placed under arrest and brought in for a legally admissible blood, breath or urine test. Presently, officers arrest only those who are obviously intoxicated, and most of these test out at extremely high levels. We are missing those who are severely impaired at lower blood-alcohol readings."

The couple's experience came to light when they applied for membership in the "Saved by the Safety Belt" club, open to those whose lives have been saved by use of seatbelts.

Senior Citizens And Teens Have Common Problem

Greatest problem of both the teenagers and senior citizens today is scheduling a "healthful and rewarding" pace, according to Dr. Russell G. Stauff, vice president of the Minnesota Chiropractic association.

"It is strange that modern society talks of a generation gap, because teenagers have more in common with their grandparents than most people realize," he said in addressing a statewide directors meeting at the Hotel Hilton in St. Paul.

He pointed out that when teenagers have an overabundance of time, with few opportunities to vent their energies in self-satisfying ways, they become self-centered and blame their parents for their feelings of inadequacy.

Much the same, senior citizens often find themselves leading sedentary lives after years of activity. They, too, feel dependent and frustrated—which often leads to a persecution complex.

"Teenagers may take out their anxieties on their parents, and senior citizens often take out their anxieties on their children," Dr. Stauff said.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Bad Samaritans"

Moralists accuse the modern man of a growing tendency to avert his eyes from the fallen stranger and to shut his ears to the cry for help. When a "Bad Samaritan" is pressed for an explanation he will usually say:

"I didn't want to get involved."

All too often what he really means is:

"I didn't want to get sued."

This fear of a lawsuit has gotten out of hand. The fact is that, in terms of legal liability, getting involved is simply not that dangerous. A successful suit against the person who lends a helping hand is actually a rarity. The notion that he is responsible, in case anything goes wrong, is just not so.

True he can usually be held liable for, say, gross negligence—just as we all can in our everyday activities. For instance, a motorist taking an injured pedestrian to the hospital may be held liable if, by driving recklessly, he causes a collision that worsens the injured man's condition.

But if there is no negligence, there is no liability. Take this case:

A woman getting off a stool at a lunch counter lost her balance and fell to the floor. Two men, coming to her aid, tried to help her over to a chair. But she suddenly grew faint and slipped out of their grasp, falling again to the floor.

Could the two men be held legally liable for the woman's second fall? A court ruled they could not. The court said that since they had made an honest effort to be helpful, and had used reasonable care in doing so, they bore no blame in the eyes of the law.

Of course, in a particular situation, a bystander might have a legitimate motive for not interfering. For instance, prudence may deter him from trying to tackle an armed robber. Ignorance may deter him from giving first aid.

But if he does hold back, he should at least do so for a good and sufficient reason. An exaggerated fear of legal liability is not a good and sufficient reason.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — Shortly after I was separated from service, I converted my GI insurance policy, and have kept it in force. May I borrow on this policy?

A — Yes. Your policy describes the loan features. If you wish exact figures, you should contact the Veterans Administration office to which you send your insurance premiums. They will explain your policy's loan provisions, tell you the amount available, and provide an application form. The interest charge on policy loans was raised to five per cent earlier this year.

Q—My father was a World War II veteran, and after his death I received $40 per month death pension. I am now a 22-year-old Vietnam veteran enrolled in college under the GI Bill. Am I still eligible for the pension benefits in addition to my veteran's benefits?

A—Yes, if you have never married, and meet the income limitation of $1,800 maximum, you will be eligible for the $40 pension benefit until you reach age 23. Your GI Bill payments, in excess of the amounts expended for training, are considered income.

Erdahl Talks Of State Problems

by Pete Volkert
Times Reporter

Minnesota Secretary of State Arlen I. Erdahl told the Pennington County Republican Party convention in Thief River Falls Tuesday night that Republicans "can look forward with optimism to the 1972 elections" because of what Erdahl termed the "shenanigans" in the Minnesota State Senate earlier this year.

"From the way everybody acted," he said, "it appears that the legislature is the only institution in Minnesota run by the inmates."

Erdahl also took Gov. Wendell Anderson to task for his proposed three billion dollar budget, saying that Anderson was trying to win support for his finance plans by telling Minnesotans that the rich would bear the brunt of higher taxes.

"We don't have enough millionaires in Minnesota to pay the additional $762 million 'Spendy Wendy' wants," Erdahl said. "That money is going to come from people with an income of $6,000 to $10,000 a year, and it means $200 more in taxes for every man, woman, and child in Minnesota."

Erdahl also talked about redistricting and reapportionment, saying that all the plans he has seen for a new seventh congressional district call either for the district to extend across all the northern part of the state to Lake Superior or stretch the district as far south as some of the metropolitan area suburbs.

Erdahl also said that legislators will continue to be elected in greater numbers from urban areas, while the number of legislators from rural areas will decrease. "I only hope," he said, "that urban lawmakers will be as responsive to rural problems as the rural dominated legislature has been to the problems of the suburbs and inner city."

"When I was in the house of representatives I stressed the importance of rural Minnesota, and while I was campaigning last year I promised to continue to do so," Erdahl said.

"There are problems in rural areas," Erdahl said. "There is a drug problem in every one of Minnesota's 87 counties. In the 1960's more than six million people left their farms to move to the cities. There are now 190 million people in the United States who know nothing of life on a farm or in a small town, and that leads to the danger in reapportioning of looking at rural areas as a tax source for solving city problems."

Erdahl listed as major problems and controversies in Minnesota the abortion issue, aid to non-public schools, the war in Southeast Asia, taxes, executive appointments and reapportionment questions.

After the convention adjourned, Erdahl discussed the need for the legislature to meet annually, a resolution that was turned down earlier in the evening by the convention.

"The legislature has to meet annually to deal with state problems," he said. "That way time would not be wasted to organizing for each session, and instead of a 120-day session every two years we could have a shorter session each year. The last day for passing bills in this session is May 22. So far only 70 bills have been passed, and I expect a minimum of 800 more to be passed before the adjournment date."

Erdahl added, "With the state's dependence on the federal government it is imperative that the legislature meet annually. To argue that yearly meetings would be less efficient is not the point. Efficiency is not the purpose of government. The purpose of a government is to ensure equality, fairness and justice."

County GOP Convention Is Held On Tuesday

Goldwater bill to raise servicemen's pay while retaining the selective service system intact for the present.

The marijuana resolution said that "without in any way condoning such conduct, we urge that the first conviction for the use of marijuana be treated as a misdemeanor rather than as a felony and that more emphasis be put on the habitual user and those who illegally traffic in drugs."

A motion to table the proposal on abortion law went down to a loud vocal defeat and the proposal was then easily passed. The resolution asked that the state legislature "be requested to study, update and liberalize the (abortion) law as seems both needed and desirable".

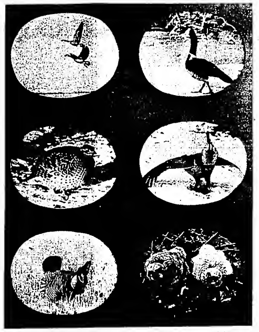
The resolution on a university branch at Rochester was defeated after opposition by county Republican leaders who said they felt that a university branch there would only lead to more medical specialists, while a university in northern Minnesota or in St. Paul would probably turn out more of the general practitioners needed in rural areas. Opposition by a group in Mankato was also mentioned as a reason for voting against the resolution.

The resolution asking for annual legislative sessions was defeated, even though Minnesota Secretary of State Arlen I. Erdahl, keynote speaker at the convention, spoke out during the discussion on the question and said he was very much in favor of the resolution.

(After the meeting Erdahl spoke to a Times reporter at somewhat greater length on the benefits of annual legislative sessions. The Secretary's comments are in a separate article in today's Times.)

Temporary chairman C. L. Charlson left the microphone to speak from the floor, saying that "with the way things have been going over the last 10 years, we'd all be better off if the legislature met only every four years." Laughter greeted the remark and the resolution was defeated, with less than half a dozen people voicing their support for annual sessions.

A resolution calling for legislative action to ban the continued use of studded tires on Minnesota roadways was passed by a standing vote of 19-9.



WILDLIFE PHOTOS will be put on display beginning this week at the observation tower site on CSAH 7 (Agassiz refuge road) west of Agassiz national wildlife refuge headquarters and at the display board by the headquarters parking lot. The sets of 8x10 photos will be changed about once a month at each site, according to Francis Pratt, refuge clerk. Birds in the photos above are Canada geese, sharptail grouse, prairie chicken and young owls.

Other resolutions adopted asked that:

—Target and sporting type handguns be legalized for hunting and target practice in Minnesota during the regularly scheduled seasons for taking game;

—Law enforcement officials be commended for their efforts and that citizens work for the passage of laws to make criminal apprehension and retention easier;

—That the letter and law of the second ammendment to the U.S. Constitution assuring the "right to keep and bear arms" be endorsed and that greater vigor be put into prosecuting those who misuse firearms; —That the state legislature study and clarify the responsibilities of 18-year olds in making, contracts and other privileges "that other adults may do legally and enjoy in good taste" now that they are able to vote.

—That the county convention support the authorization and allocation of funds to create a Minnesota state zoological park;

—That the convention stand against increases in taxes on personal property inventory, personal income, real estate and corporations, while supporting a slight increase in the state sales tax and liquor and cigarette taxes."

The convention also adopted a resolution endorsing the federal program of low cost housing for low income families under the Housing and Urban Development 235 program and urged greater flexibility in the specifications to allow for local conditions.

Members of the resolutions committee were Kirby Greene, Don Stewart, Albert Koop, Robert Ekeren and Mrs. Rick Contos.

About 50 people from throughout Pennington county attended the convention and heard exhortations from a variety of local, district and state party officials.

Five cagers—forward Rich Bernhardt, forward-guard Ken Norgaard, guard Jim Reisnour, guard Craig Skarperud and guard Jon Tufte are enrolled in the University of North Dakota College of Business and Public Administration.

Director Named For State High School League

Louis E. Allen, president of the board of directors of the Minnesota State High School league and its 486 member schools named Murrne N. Freng to the position of executive director. In addition Marv Helling has been named to the post of assistant to the executive director in a plan for restructuring the executive staff of the league.

Freng has served as acting executive director since October of 1970 as a result of the illness and death of former executive director, Beverly H. Hill. Freng has been on the staff of the league since August of 1965. Although he was originally hired to work with music and speech, he has shown insight into all aspects of the work of the league.

Freng graduated from Concordia college in 1940, receiving a bachelor of science degree with a major in music. He completed a master of arts degree in music education from MacPhail's college of music in 1963. He has served in the public schools for 18 years. During the first six years at Brooten, he taught both instrumental and vocal music and directed class plays. He was a member of the music department at Alexandria high school for 13 years.

Freng reportedly has a genuine interest in sports. He participated while at Concordia college and officiated high school contests for many years. He was sports editor for his college paper.

Purdue's Rick Mount averaged 39.4 points per game last season in Big Ten basketball action.

March 22, 1971

A regular meeting of the School District Board No. 564 was held at 8:15 o'clock p.m. on Monday, March 22, 1971 in the library of the Lincoln School Building.

The following members were present: Dr. George Martin, Kenneth Murphy, E. C. Olson, Mervin Preslebak, Charles Samuelson, Wallace Sperby, Maynerd Wedul and Superintendent Johnson. None were absent.

Chairman Preslebak presided.

The motion was made by C. Samuelson, seconded by G. Martin and carried to approve the minutes of the previous meetings as presented.

A motion was made by K. Murphy, seconded by M. Wedul and carried to approve all bills with the exception of the bill from Stone's Mobile Radio.

A motion was made by G. Martin, seconded by K. Murphy and carried to accept the resignations of the following teachers: Everall Leino, Therese Weltz and Evan Armstrong.

A motion was made by M. Wedul, seconded by C. Samuelson and carried to accept the resignation of Windfield Olson and install Lee Swanson as the head basketball coach.

A motion was made by G. Martin, seconded by M. Wedul and carried that the administration take the necessary steps to finalize the arrangements with National Homes for two double units at the East side complex at an average figure of $14,168 per year for five payments and an additional unit to house the sixth grade at the Mark Twain School.

A motion was made by M. Wedul, seconded by C. Samuelson and carried to grant a leave of absence to Mrs. Olive Goldsberry.

A motion was made by W. Sperby, seconded by K. Murphy and carried to hire Mrs. Harriet Hanson as a substitute teacher.

A motion was made by G. Martin, seconded by M. Wedul and carried to accept the resignation of Superintendent Johnson.

Mr. Russell Smith, the athletic director, gave a report on the basketball program in the school district.

Mr. Walter Sedinger of the Thief River Falls Education Association read to the Board a position paper of the organization in reply to the N.W. Taxpayers charge given at the regular Board meeting on March 8, 1971.

Superintendent Johnson and the Board of Education discussed the school building maintenance problems for the coming year. Mr. Wedul did not feel that we should discontinue the building improvement program that had been started in our school. It was the feeling of the other board members that we are not saving but only putting ourselves in a position where in a few years we would have to do it all at once.

A motion was made by M. Wedul, seconded by C. Samuelson and carried to adjourn the meeting at 10:00 p.m.

SIGNED Kenneth D Murphy, Clerk
APPROVED Mervin Preslebak, Chairman

LHS Track Team Opens Season At Dragon Indoor

Lincoln high school track coach Jim Sims has been working with 40 boys since March 15 as the 1971 Prowler track team prepares for its season opening meet at the Dragon Indoor meet April 14.

Fifteen lettermen are back from last year's squad, headed by captain Paul Battleson.

Coach Sims is beginning his fourth season as the track mentor at Lincoln and feels this year's edition is capable of winning a fourth straight district 31 title for him. Sims' cindermen have also claimed one Northwest Conference title and have placed third, fourth and fifth in the region during his tenure.

"East Grand Forks is the team to beat in the district, but we should be able to push them," reports Sims. "Bemidji, East Side and Thief River should be strong in the region with Mahnomen, Fosston and Roseau also bringing in strong squads," Sims continued.

"Our strength will be our distance running like the 880, mile and two mile, but we will be hurting in the 440 and mile relay," said the coach. "All of our weight men and pole vaulters graduated but we'll be fairly tough in the sprints with the high jump being wide open. Overall I think I'd have to say we just have a young bunch of kids," Sims stated.

Among the lettermen on hand and the event they will probably participate in were Doug Asseby, hurdles; Paul Battleson, 880; Steve Beich, 100, 220 and relay teams; Mike Fitzgerald, 440 and 880; Jon Folkedahl, two-mile; Mark Hagen, two-mile; Markoe Hanson, 100, 220, relays and high jump; Rick Larson, 440; Dave Lee, weights; Jon Markstrom, 440 and long jump; Rod Molstad, two-mile; Kim Murphy, 440 and mile; Don Reierson, two-mile; Tim Strand, mile, and Rob Swenson, 220, 100 and relays.

Also Mark Kaushagen, Rande Smith, Dave Furuseth, Rod Wentzel, Tim Votava, Gerald Trickle, Dave Sorvig, Van Sillerud, Jeff Rhoden, Mike Protz, Scott Olson, Pete Nelson, Mike Liden and Russ Larson.

Assisting Sims this year will be Quentin Jones and Marv Walter.

A tentative schedule of meets for the year is as follows: April 14, Dragon Indoor at Moorhead; 17, Sioux Indoor at Grand Forks; 20, Crookston Indoor; 22, Crookston Indoor (dual); 24, Sioux Outdoor at Grand Forks; 27, Bemidji, here; 29, Roseau, here; May 1, Prowler JayCee Invitational, here; 4, at Fosston; 6, Roseau, here; 8, Beaver Relays; 11, Northwest Conference meet at East Grand Forks; 13, EGF or Bagley, here; 15, Pirate Relays at Crookston; 18, Dragon Relays at Moorhead; 21, district 31 at UND; 28, region eight at Bemidji.

Two basketball games were played recently at Plummer to raise money for the Greg Luxenburg memorial fund.

The first game was played between the seventh and eighth grade girls, and the second event pitted the faculty against the "City Slickers".

Money collected at the games will be used for a plaque and trophy for the outstanding senior athlete.

Fishing Season Opens Apr. 3 For Trout, Salmon

First hint of summer wafted out of the Department of Natural Resources today with the announcement that the early trout and salmon fishing season will be opening on April 3.

All streams and rivers from Lake Superior upstream to posted boundaries are open for brook, brown, rainbow trout and salmon fishing on that date.

An exception is a posted area in the Knife river in Lake county where the opening is delayed until June 1.

Anglers are restricted to using a single hook on their line except in the Pigeon river in Cook county and the St. Louis river in St. Louis county.

The rainbow trout or steelhead is the main target of early North Shore stream fishermen. Anglers fray the water with a variety of lures in an effort to catch the big trout as they return to the streams on their spawning runs.

Salmon eggs, night crawlers and "artificials" designed to imitate eggs or other food are among the favorites.

Mrs. Rantanen Named Regional Farmer-Sportsman

A farmer, whose wife and six children were killed in a tragic accident a dozen years ago, has been named Minnesota's outstanding farmer-sportsman for 1971. He is James Zimmerman, rural Waseca.

And for the first time a woman, Mrs. Oetty Rantanen, Middle River, was named one of the regional farmer-sportsmen. Mrs. Rantanen's husband was killed in an automobile accident 12 years ago, and she took over the management of her farm with her young children.

Other regional farmer-sportsmen were Harold Hagen, Barnum, and Vernon Enger, Route 2, St. James. All four were named for their community leadership, conservation activities and farming record.

Announcement of the winner was made today by Harold B. Swanson, chairman of the statewide Minnesota farmer-sportsman committee, and head of the department of agricultural journalism at the University of Minnesota.

Zimmerman owns 740 acres and works together with his brothers, Joseph and John, to operate 1,100 acres. His many activities include chairmanship of the Crane Creek watershed steering committee for the past 15 years. He is past president of the Waseca Sportsman club and the county Dairy Herd Improvement association. He has served as chairman of the Waseca public school advisory committee and is a member of several church, farm and civic groups.

He has adopted many soil conservation practices on his farm. He has made special efforts to avoid livestock pollution, to provide permanent cover for pheasants and ducks, to construct wildlife pits and to maintain a 20-acre woodlot on the shore of Watkins Lake for a picnic and campground, free to anyone requesting its use.

His farming operation includes raising 1,000 hogs and he has a herd of 40 beef cows. His major crops are corn, sweet corn, and alfalfa. He recently put up a corn drying and handling system for 50,000 bushels of corn.

Boat License Renewals Lagging

Department of Natural Resources reports that boat license renewals are lagging this year and that 00,000 boat owners have watercraft on which the licenses have expired.

Renewal notices were sent out in November to boat owners whose license expired at the end of last year.

The license center said there are also many owners of newly purchased boats who have not licensed them as yet.

None of these boats may legally be placed in public waters this year without a valid license.

Governor Will Host Fishing Party May 15-16

Governor Wendell R. Anderson will host approximately 150 members of the press on May 15-16 when he opens the 1971 fishing season near Detroit Lakes.

Participants will headquarter at Fair Hills resort on Pelican Lake and fish on the half-dozen lakes in the area. Dave Kaldahl, owner and operator of the resort, is chairman of the event.

This will be the first governor's fishing party for Governor Anderson. The annual affair has become a tradition in Minnesota, giving outdoor writers and reporters a chance to get acquainted with state officials and with Minnesota fishing. The tradition began in 1956 under Governor Orville Freeman.

University of North Dakota played a 0-0 tie against the University of Oregon football team in 1931.

Bart Larson and Tom Holland hold the UND record for most homeruns with five round trippers in one season.

Roseau Has New School Forest

Roseau school district now has its own forest to use as an outdoor classroom, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources announced this week.

Established on March 15, the 318 acre forest brings to 47 the number of such school forests in Minnesota.

Two months ago Sebeka established an 80 acre forest and the Department said several others are in the planning stage.

Personnel from the Department's division of lands and forestry assist schools in the development and management of the forests which provide outdoor laboratories for the study of conservation and the natural sciences.

Schools interested in establishing their own forests are asked to contact the Department's division of lands and forestry and the bureau of information and education.

Requests can be made through area field offices or by writing the Department of Natural Resources, Centennial Building, St. Paul.

Vikings Coach To Speak At Clinic

Jack Patera, coach of the Minnesota Vikings famous defensive front four, has been named a headline instructor at the 13th annual University of North Dakota football clinic on campus April 29-30.

"We are excited and happy to have Coach Patera at our clinic. He will bring to our clinic a tremendous amount of defensive knowledge that should greatly benefit all those coaches from the area who attend our clinic," said UND head coach Jerry Olson, who is director of the clinic.

"Coach Patera has a quick wit that most certainly will keep everyone alert and interested. He will open the clinic April 29 in the evening by showing the Minnesota Viking 1970 highlight film and will lecture that evening and again Friday morning," Olson added.

Patera has finished his second season of coaching the Minnesota front four. Three of the four Viking linemen he coached played in the Pro Bowl game.

Patera played his college football at the University of Oregon in 1951-55. He played for the Baltimore Colts (1955-57), Chicago Cardinals (1958-59) and Dallas Cowboys (1960-61). His coaching career began in 1963 with the Los Angeles Rams. He was New York Giants defensive line coach two years and joined the Vikings in 1969.

Patera was born at Bismarck, N. D. and will be returning to his native state to instruct at a football clinic the first time. He is married and has four children.

National Week Is Observed By FHA

March 28 through April 3 is national Future Homemakers of America (FHA) week, emphasizing the FHA overall objective of helping individuals improve personal, family, and community living.

The two major aims of the five year 1969-1973 national program of work are to strengthen bonds within the family and between the family and community to help youth comprehend the problems of society and contribute to their solutions.

These two objectives are supported by seven projects, the current project having the theme "To Dare is to Care".

FHA members at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls started their current project year with election of officers. They are Susan Schueneman, president; Bonnie Habedank, treasurer; Myrna Dagen, historian; Ruth Hammer, parliamentarian; Nancy Hallan, reporter, and Cheri Ripley and Nancy Hogan, song leaders.

The organization's first project was to make and sell Prowler pillows. Prior to Christmas the girls sold decorative candles. On Nov. 23 the FHA members donned a variety of costumes as part of a pot-luck dinner and talent show sponsored by the FHA for families and friends.

Members of the Lincoln and Franklin FHA clubs attended the 28th annual state FHA meeting held in Minneapolis March 19 and 20. Girls attending from Lincoln were Lynn Finstad, Diane Keefe, Myrna Dagen, and Nancy Hogan.

The local FHA club is now planning its spring bazaar and style show to be held April 27. Various items will be sold and quilts will be auctioned off.

Motorists Favor On-Spot Test For Drunken Driving

A poll of Minnesota AAA members revealed today that motorists overwhelmingly approve of a preliminary on-the-spot screening test for drivers suspected of being under the influence of alcohol. Ninety-two per cent of the members polled favor such a test.

The opinion poll on current legislative matters also showed that:

83 per cent favor a vision test for all drivers, once every four years, at the time of driver license renewal.

94 per cent against amending the state constitution so that highway taxes could be used for all forms of transportation (mass transit, etc.), rather than just for highway purposes.

81 per cent favored changing the auto license plate fee schedule so that Minnesota motorists could deduct the costs of their license plates on their federal income tax return. (Plate fees would be based on a car's value, rather than weight.)

On the question of paying additional gas taxes for highways, 83 per cent said they were opposed to a 2½-cent increase; 55 per cent opposed a 1½-cent increase, but only 46 per cent opposed a 1-cent increase.

The poll also revealed that 54 per cent of AAA members are against the outlawing of studded tires in Minnesota; 57 per cent favor a special tax on all new cars sold in Minnesota to establish a program for recycling of junk cars; 78 per cent opposed the use of 65-foot double bottom truck-trailer combinations on four-lane highways and 58 per cent oppose an annual inspection of all motor vehicles at a fee of $5 per car.

The AAA legislative opinion poll was published in the March edition of "Minnesota AAA Motorist" and more than 2,000 AAA members responded to the poll.

Ice Break-up Brings Drowning Warnings To Area

For those under 12 years of age one of the most dangerous periods of the year for drownings is the annual spring break up, the Department of Natural Resources warned today.

William Severson, outdoor safety specialist, said two drownings have already occurred, both involving youngsters who broke through thin ice in separate accidents.

The accidents are typical of the kind that happen in the spring, Severson said.

"Drainage ditches and creeks are particularly hazardous although small ponds and even larger lakes will claim their share of unwary victims," said Severson. "Parents should warn their children of these water hazards."

Frequently youngsters will fall into swift flowing ditches and small creeks that are dry in late summer but are water filled death traps in the spring, he pointed out.

Heavy rains, should they occur, will aggravate the problem considerably, he said.

He also warned canoeists looking for fast water to shoot to beware of wing dams and other hazards during the spring floods.

"Several of these persons—many of them adults who should have known better—have paid with their lives for a few minutes of thrill in white water," Severson observed.

Local Banker At Mpls. Meet

Gene A. Beito, president of Northern state bank at Thief River Falls, is participating in Minneapolis this week as a member of the resolutions committee of the 41st annual convention of the Independent Bankers Association of America.

The organisation includes more than 9,500 member banks in 40 states. More than 1,500 bankers are registered for the convention at the Radisson hotel in Minneapolis.

Bergland Says Pressure Raised Dairy Supports

"Constant pressures from dairy producers and the threat of Congressional action has forced Secretary Hardin to yield and set dairy price supports at 85 per cent of parity," U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland said in Washington Friday. Earlier this year the secretary of agriculture had attempted to establish supports at only 81 per cent of parity but Thursday he conceded that 85 per cent was the lowest acceptable level.

According to Bergland, who first began pressuring the Secretary on behalf of the milk producers on March 4, the thought of an 81 per cent support level led to a movement throughout the dairy industry and Congress "bordering an open rebellion. Tons of mail began pouring into Congress, the department of agriculture and even the President," Bergland said.

"Congress was prepared—and still is, if it becomes necessary—to pass legislation making 85 per cent supports the absolute minimum," he added. Without such legislation, which was co-sponsored by Bergland, the secretary of agriculture has a free hand in setting support levels.

"The thought of losing that power was too much for Hardin and he was forced to give in," Bergland concluded.

Sap Gathering Time Here Soon

It will soon be time to gather maple sap in Minnesota, but only a small part of the potential harvest will ever be taken, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Foresters say only a small per cent of the available sugar maple trees in the state are being tapped for sap production. Most of the trees are located in agricultural areas that are developed for small scale farming.

Since 50 per cent of the syrup consumed in the United States is imported, foresters say untapped sugar maples represent a good potential source of increased cash income for people in these areas.

Under proper conditions, they say, maple syrup can be a six week seasonal crop not in competition with other farm activities.

Trees should be tapped when weather forecasts call for a warm front moving in to Minnesota which will cause temperatures to climb from below freezing at night to a high of 40-50 degrees in the daytime over a period of two or three days.

Sap buckets should be installed before the warm front reaches the area.

About 345,000 gallons of sap are collected in Minnesota each year. This means a production of syrup amounting to 7,000 gallons.

Information on maple syrup can be obtained by writing to the Department of Natural Resources, division of lands and forestry, Centennial Building, St. Paul. A brochure "How to Collect Maple Sap and Make Maple Syrup" is available without charge.

Big Stone Plant Water Use Permit Given Approval

Minnesota department of natural resources has granted a water use permit for the Big Stone electric generating plant project in northeastern South Dakota, it was announced today by Albert V. Hartl, president of Otter Tail Power company. His company, along with Northwestern Public Service company and Montana-Dakota Utilities company, will construct and share in the ownership of the $100 million, 400,00 kilowatt power station. The South Dakota water resources commission previously had granted a similar water rights permit for the Big Stone plant.

The permits provide for the maintenance, under close supervision, of Big Stone lake at statutory levels as provided for by the states of South Dakota and Minnesota.

"Throughout our planning for this plant we have emphasized the environmental aspects," Hartl said. "Educational, civic and community groups in the area, as well as the regulatory agencies of the two states involved, were brought in very early in the planning stage. Through the cooperative efforts of all of them we have been able to move ahead on schedule. The public appears to have reacted favorably to the project, and in many cases the opinion has been expressed that the controls proposed for Big Stone lake will result in a more stable lake level than has been the case in the past."

"A number of other permits for the project still must be obtained," Hartl went on to say. "To this end we're working with other state and federal regulatory bodies so that the additional permits needed for a project of this magnitude will be arranged for by the time they are required."

Additional engineering work for the plant is going on, and site preparation will begin this spring. Actual construction will commence in the spring of 1972 with the target date for commercial production of electricity set for May of 1975.

Lakeshore Buyers Guide Available

Prospective buyers of Minnesota lakeshore have been offered a nine page booklet by the Department of Natural Resources to aid them in avoiding future problems.

Called "A Guide for Buying Lakeshore", the booklet outlines the requirements of shoreland regulations and tells prospective buyers how they can avoid such problems as algae and fluctuating lake levels.

The guide says that prospective buyers should carefully consider the suitability of a potential seasonal home site for development, the kind of physical setting desired, and how the lake will be used.

Commissioner of Natural Resources Robert Herbst said the Department does not believe that all suitable shoreline should be developed but feels that some should remain permanently in a natural state to preserve the scenic values of the lake.

The guide was prepared by the Department's Division of Waters, Soils and Minerals in cooperation with the University of Minnesota.

A copy can be obtained by sending a post card to the Department of Natural Resources, Bureau of Information and Education, Centennial Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

On a lonely hill a man died slowly, nailed to a cross.

His crime—goodness.

He walked the hills of Judea and the shores of Galilee, healing and comforting, loving everyone He met. Confidently, simply, He spoke of the Kingdom of Heaven, and crowds hurried to hear His vital words.

To some, His clear, sure talk of the Kingdom and the Way and of Himself the Son of God seemed a threat. And so He suffered on a cross, while a faithful few huddled in its shade and wept at the sacrifice.

Today, the shadow of that cross circles the globe, as people gather in churches around the world to remember that first Good Friday and give thanks for Jesus, the gift of a loving Father. His life and death and resurrection point the way for every man to find joy in the reality of God's love.

Luscious is the word for these bars which combine the delectable flavor of Baker's Cookie Coconut with chopped pecans and the zestiness of lemon. On top is a crowning cover of meringue.

Lemon-Coconut Meringue Bars

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 egg yolks
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1⅓ cups cookie coconut
- ⅓ cup chopped pecans
- 2 teaspoons lemon rind
- 2 egg whites
- ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

Cream butter. Gradually add ½ cup sugar, creaming well after each addition. Beat in egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Blend in flour and salt. Stir in 1 cup of the coconut, the pecans, and lemon rind. Spread evenly in a lightly greased 13x9-inch pan. Bake at 350° about 20 minutes, or until golden brown around edges.

Meanwhile, beat egg whites with cream of tartar until foamy throughout. Gradually add ½ cup sugar, beating thoroughly after each addition. Gradually add lemon juice and continue beating until meringue will form very stiff shiny peaks. Spread over pastry in pan. Sprinkle top with remaining ⅓ cup coconut. Accepting aluminum cans as payment for ice cream is one company's way of keeping America beautiful and keeping its customers happy.

Farrell's Ice Cream Parlours, San Diego, Calif., is taking part in Aluminum Company of America's "Yes We Can" reclamation and recycling program by exchanging 10 cents worth of ice cream for every pound of aluminum cans turned in at its parlours.

A Farrell's spokesman said the 10 cents a pound Alcoa pays his company for redeemed cans will be used to buy tree seedlings for creation of a "Farrell's Forest". Trees raised in the "Farrell's Forest," he said, "will be given free to individuals or groups involved in beautifying campsites and parks in San Diego County."

In 23 weeks of Alcoa's "Yes We Can" effort, more than 20 million aluminum cans have been turned in for which collectors have been paid $100,000. The "Yes We Can" program is also operating in Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas.

"When more of the people's sustenance is exacted through the form of taxation than is necessary to meet the just obligations of government and expenses of economical administration, such exaction becomes ruthless extortion and a violation of the fundamental principles of free government." — Grover Cleveland in 1886

Up, Up and Away

While government officials are complaining about the unemployment of Minnesotans and their resulting inability to meet expenses, several proposals are being considered which will aggravate that situation. The following comments from the Minnesota Association of Commerce and Industry are certainly appropriate as government spending goes up, up and away:

With employment down, with unemployment compensation payments at a ten-year high, it seems appropriate to inquire whether proposals regarding state employment are realistic. Some observers have noted that those who advocate salary increases and the creation of new jobs in government exhibit a sort of blithe indifference to economic conditions, if not an arrogant disregard for the taxpayers.

Here are the facts:

Proposed salary increases for state employees (12 per cent this year, 6 per cent next) for 30,972 present civil service employees—$75,791,598.

Proposed salary increases (8 per cent this year, 7 per cent next) for most of 7,917 present academic personnel—$18,854,445.

Proposed creation of 1,356 NEW civil service positions and 625 NEW academic positions—$38,119,504.

(Source—Minnesota Taxpayers Association)

Some of the state department budgets now being scrutinized by legislative committees include appropriations for positions presently vacant.

Would it not be appropriate to inquire of our legislature, and of Governor Anderson, whether a 5 per cent reduction in state employment (accomplished through retirements and attrition) wouldn't be a good way to reassure Minnesota's taxpayers that a severe effort was being made to reduce state expenditures?

April Tommorrow

One of our readers brought us the following clipping which appeared in a newspaper of unknown identity in 1943. Because much of the same situation exists today as in that day of World War II, the item is appropriate:

Tomorrow April will be here, month of cleansing rain and new hope. Farmers watch impotently their drying fields. Fall-planted rye and wheat show in faint green streamers across the muddy land. Along highways men are rolling up snow fences. Willows beside the creek wave yellow wands to arriving birds. Children coming home from school doff their heavy coats and turn their faces to the wind and sun.

When night comes, an echo of winter hangs in the air ... a chilly overtone to the inescapable melody of spring. It is like memory laying a restraining hand on the April-awakended desires of men and plants.

Yes, tomorrow will be April, but a different April....

In small towns, where the change seems more apparent, the lads who used to whistle in sheer exuberance at winter's exit will be gone. The robins will be chirping and the meadowlarks making their poignant cries, and red-winged blackbirds will teeter on rushes above their partly frozen marshes, but the youths whose trills mocked them are far away.

Some are across the world where April means autumn, not spring. Some are in battle where the fury of fighting is worse than the desert sun. Some are in outposts where winter still seems as firm as ever. For some, earthly Aprils are over.

Still, April will come tomorrow...

And at each turn of the year, another April. Birds will fly north in the tremendous migration which means the renewal of their flocks. Our hemisphere will awaken to full life. Then, some day, a peaceful April will come upon the world and the steady progression of the seasons will help to ease the hurts that this springtime must bring.

Smiling skies and weeping clouds ... tomorrow will be April.

Borrowed Nonsense

Two men ordered coffee in a restaurant. "I'd like mine black," one of them said, "and make sure you put it in a clean cup." Shortly the waiter returned. "O.K.," he said, "which one gets the clean cup?"

A Lethol Weapon

The following message from J. Edgar Hoover, director, appeared in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's "Law Enforcement Bulletin".

As the State trooper gently lifted the child's broken and lifeless body from the tangled wreckage of the automobile, he saw an empty liquor bottle, still miraculously intact, beneath the crumpled legs of the dying driver. To the experienced officer, the smell of the man's gasping breath left no doubt that a drinking driver was once again involved in a fatal traffic accident.

Unfortunately, the above hypothetical scene is an all too familiar sight to law enforcement officers who patrol the streets and highways of our Nation. According to authorities responsible for traffic safety, drinking drivers cause accidents that kill 25,000 people in our country each year, are involved in 800,000 nonfatal crashes, and inflict property damages estimated in billions of dollars annually. There can be no plausible excuse for such senseless carnage.

Could it be that traffic fatalities—like rising crime rates—are becoming so commonplace that the American public is growing insensitive to these tragedies and the conditions which cause them? Are we unaffected by the sight of twisted steel, shattered glass, and bloody, lifeless crash victims? Is the drinking driver, careening along in a speeding vehicle, an accepted part of our daily lives? Regrettably, this is one instance where the right answer, a reluctant "yes," is the wrong answer.

Apparently, there is no persuasion, short of certain stern punishment, that will keep the drinking driver from behind the steering wheel, and bringing him to justice is no easy matter. Law enforcement officials and prosecutors agree that charges of driving while under the influence of alcohol are the toughest traffic cases to prosecute. Some jurors apparently consider the violation to be an indiscretion, not a crime—indeed, a dereliction in which they themselves may occasionally indulge. In short, the public is unwilling to impose self-restraint and legal restrictions to control this problem.

The question then is how long can the public conscience accept the mounting toll of human lives claimed in accidents caused by drunken drivers. Certainly, more than 25,000 lives annually is a tragic loss to chalk off to indifference. To virtually ignore drunken drivers is to condone them, and the depth of guilt becomes a common shame.

I believe the problem of the drinking driver should be handled firmly. He should know that detection, prosecution, and punishment will be swift and certain. Whenever the circumstances warrant, lengthy revocation of licenses, maximum fines, and substantial jail sentences should be imposed upon offenders.

The rights and safety of the motoring public should not be imperiled by selfish, irresponsible drivers who, while under the influence of alcohol, convert the automobile into a lethal weapon.

That's Wrong, Gov.

Perhaps in the press of everyday business at the Capitol, Gov. Wendell Anderson didn't have time to proof read the copy of whoever wrote his "Notes From the Governor" column a week ago.

If he had time, he wouldn't have missed the obvious error included in that column.

"This week I signed into law a bill which pays additional emergency unemployment insurance benefits to those Minnesotans who have used up their regular benefits," the column states.

"...The lack of jobs is so great that 98,000 Minnesotans were unable to find jobs in January of this year—that is double the number in January of 1970. These people are the casualties of President Nixon's economic policies—policies which can only be changed on the national level.

"...Of the 98,000 men and women out of work, as much as 10,000 of them have been unemployed for so long that their unemployment insurance has run out. This is the fund which they paid into while they were working. (Emphasis is our's) The legislature passed and sent to my desk a law which authorizes 13 more weeks of unemployment payments to those whose benfits have ended."

The governor himself would know, of course, that employees did not pay into any state unemployment fund while they were working. He would know that contributions are made to the fund by the employer only, and not from any payroll deduction. He wouldn't try to deceive anyone by deliberately putting out false information, would he? Obviously, the error must have been the result of an oversight by the governor and simply a lack of knowledge by the writer. Wouldn't you think so? Gov. Anderson must know better.

Oh, about that comment that "these people are the casualties of President Nixon's economic policies"—was the writer as informed on that as he or she was on the unemployment fund source?

notes from the governor

When I presented my budget to the Minnesota legislature I knew it would be controversial.

I was right. It is.

Some of the criticism has been constructive. But many of the charges, particularly as they relate to the impact of my budget on the average Minnesotan, have been based on myth—not fact.

Let's take a look at the facts.

This week the State Tax Department supplied me with figures showing the overall impact of my tax plan on a typical Minnesota family of four at varying income levels.

The figures are dramatic.

They show that below this $16,000 gross income level, the typical homeowner will receive more in property tax relief than he will pay out in increased income taxes, state and federal.

At the $4,000 gross income level, the reduction in combined property and income taxes is $35.77, or 12.6 per cent.

At $6,000, the reduction is $43.35 or 5.6 per cent.

At $10,000, the reduction is $55.44, or 2.8 per cent.

At $13,000 the reduction is $44.54, or 1.5 per cent.

At $15,000, the reduction is $25.72, or .7 per cent.

For a family of four with a gross income of $20,000, there would be an increase of $56.15 or 1 per cent.

At the $100,000 income level, the increase would be $1,852.91, or 3.7 per cent.

The figures do not take into account my proposed liquor and cigarette tax increases, since those affect each taxpayer differently. For senior citizens, the dollar benefit would be even greater than the figures cited here.

For renters the benefit would be somewhat less.

But the Tax Department's analysis does demonstrate conclusively that for the vast majority of Minnesotans—those below the $10,000 gross income level—my tax program would be a blessing.

No governor can recommend basic revisions of the Minnesota tax structure without stepping on a lot of toes. No governor can recommend a sharp reduction in high, regressive property taxes throughout the state on the one hand, and a substantial increase in income taxes at the higher income levels on the other, without offending someone.

But in evaluating my program, you will do well to look at the facts—not the propaganda.

The program is based on ability to pay—the principle that everyone should pay his fair share.

The result, it is clear, is one that benefits the great majority of Minnesotans.

MINNESOTA HAS SET THE PACE for the rest of the Nation in the number of registered donors under the Gift of Life Program being conducted by the American Legion and Auxiliary Units. Last year's registration was so successful that a second will take place in March to provide additional organ donors for transplantation and research after death. This community level registration is sponsored and administered by the Kidney Foundation of the Upper Midwest – the authorized central agency for donor enlistments. Transplants are becoming highly successful, but lack of available organs and facilities have been a limiting factor in performing these life-saving operations.
The Gift of Life Organ Donor Registration Program which serves the major transplant centers at Hennepin County General Hospital, Mayo Clinic, University of Minnesota and Veteran's Administration Hospital was the first such community level registration program to be organized in the country. It has now been adopted as a National Program under the sponsorship of the Kidney Foundation in cooperation with the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary.
One of the many patients who hopes to benefit from this program is Charles E. Hayes, age 25 from Bloomington, Minn., and a Vietnam veteran who awaits a kidney transplant at the V.A. Hospital at Fort Snelling.
He is pictured with: Dr. David Brown, V.A. Hospital; Mrs. Evelyn Starr, Cambridge Dept. President American Legion Auxiliary; Dr. Gary Lyons, V.A. Hospital; who urge your participation in the Gift of Life Program.
By organizing on a post and unit level, these organizations working together hope to give every person in the State over 18 years of age an opportunity to sign a wallet size card authorizing the use of his organs – after death – for use in transplant operations.

a Dog's Life

STARVED! If your lost dog comes home with a ravenous appetite, don't let him gorge himself on a huge meal. Better to feed him several small meals throughout the first day.

IT WAS A DAWG'S LIFE. Of 18 references to dogs in the New Testament, 17 are unfavorable. The ox and the ass are spoken of much more highly.

FEEDING TIP... Dog biscuits and kibble are nutritious and handy for snacks or rewards. They also help keep a dog's teeth free of tartar.

Inflation hasn't changed the price of ashes.

But it has changed the price of your home. For example, if you bought an $18,000 home in 1963—today it's worth about $24,200. Don't be left with a costly pile of ashes. See me about a State Farm Homeowners Policy that will cover your home for all it's worth . . . and keep it that way with automatic Inflation Coverage.

Three volcanic eruptions alone have injected more particulate matter into the atmosphere than all of man's activity. Late in the last century the volcano Krakatoa erupted and put an estimated one cubic mile of sea water and other material into the stratosphere. For a year a lot of the world had green sunsets, but there was no measurable health, climatic or ecological ill effects.

Penning Named To Adjustment Panel At Roseau

The school board considered the proposal at a special meeting and will make a final determination at a regular meeting to be held April 6, according to the district superintendent.

Nearly 1,500 concerned citizens and property owners who will be affected by the proposed Huot dam project crowded the Red Lake Falls high school gym Wednesday night.

They heard Col. Charles McGinnis, U. S. Army corps of engineers, discuss the various alternatives available on the project and say that by exchanging information they could select a plan "which will best serve the public interest and which will enjoy broad based support.

The crowd also heard a variety of county and city officials from Minnesota and North Dakota air their opinions, as well as hearing the views of numerous private citizens.

McGinnis said that the best plan would consist of a multi-purpose impoundment upstream from Crookston for flood control, water supply, low-flow augmentation and general recreation.

This would regulate much of the runoff from the Red Lake River sub-basin, he said, and provide the same degree of flood protection at Crookston as other alternatives, while tending to alleviate flooding along the Red River of the North.

He said that as an example, based on an assumed fixed-release rate, the reservoir would have reduced peak flood heights by one to two feet at floods in Grand Forks from 1950 to 1969. With a flexible operation plan, McGinnis said, the stage reduction would be greater and such a plan would also improve water quality through low-flow augmentation and would provide water based recreational opportunities.

The colonel said the dam would be a rolled earth fill embankment 3,700 feet long with a maximum height of 100 feet. A dike about 9.7 miles in length would be constructed along the rim of the valley in order to provide sufficient storage capacity.

The wing dikes would vary from zero to 25 feet in height. An emergency spillway with an outlet channel emptying into Kripple Creek would be provided for passing any extremely large flood flows exceeding the reservoir's capacity.

McGinnis said that the water surface area of the reservoir would be about 2,000 acres at normal pool level and 7,400 acres at full flood pool level.

About 8,150 acres (revised upward from an earlier estimate of 8,000 acres) of land and approximately 20 farmsteads within the project area would be purchased by the federal government. He said. Local tax revenues from this land would be lost. The values of affected properties would be determined by detailed tract appraisals and actual prices established through negotiation with property owners.

In some cases when agreement on a suitable price might not be reached, the fair market value would be established and the property would be acquired through action by United States district court. In addition to the purchase price, the federal government would pay property severance damages and resettlement costs incurred by owners and tenants.

(Estimates made by landowners set the number of acres affected as 8,100 in Red Lake county and estimated the tax loss at $23,064.)

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Larry Gustafson
rural Thief River Falls

As one walked the streets of this city on Thursday and Friday it was very evident that this area had been hit by a demonstration. The local merchants were heralding the arrival of spring by displaying Easter lilies, mums, colored eggs, everlasting floral arrangements and spring ensembles. But the elements outside were anything but spring-like. As though loathe to leave the area, old man winter lashed out in all his fury with high winds, dropping temperatures and a "snirt" storm. Left behind is a layer of North Dakota top soil that silted in everywhere. As a result those who are entertaining Easter guests will have a busy week. Why not save time by trying today's recipe for one of your meals? It takes very little time to prepare and while it is baking you are free to prepare for the weekend.

1½ to 2 lbs. ground beef
1 small can mushrooms
1 medium onion, chopped
2 cups chopped celery
1 cup uncooked old-fashioned rice
2½ cups boiling water
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 can cream of chicken or cream of mushroom soup
¼ cup soya sauce

Method: Brown chopped beef and onion in a little shortening. Add the other ingredients and mix well. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours. Serves eight or 10 people.

Mrs. Gustafson stated that this recipe requires no salt or pepper as the soya sauce and soup gives it all the seasoning required. For variation, green string beans or any other vegetable may be added.

The Gustafsons reside on a farm six miles north of this city and one and one-half miles east, in the area known as the Steiner community. Prior to the birth of their youngest daughter, Susan, who is now three months old, Mrs. Gustafson was employed in this city as a beautician. The Gustafsons also have another daughter, Stacy, five years old.

Mrs. Gustafson enjoys music, especially vocal, piano and organ. During her spare time, she likes to sew.

Mr. Gustafson is produce manager at Jim's Hartz market.

Final Concert Of Season Given Critic's Review

by James Solsten

Final concert of the Thief River Falls Concert association's season was the Camerata Bariloche, an Argentine chamber orchestra, whose musical director is Ruben Gonzalez. The orchestra is technically first-rate, completely musical and finely balanced. The type of music played by chamber groups is so transparent that technical mastery is obviously there or not. It was there. Uncluttered by winds and percussion the orchestra and soloists produced pure string tone of great beauty.

The audience continually interrupted between movements of the concert with applause. I'm not sure if it was enthusiasm or because there was no conductor there to signal the end of the selection by turning to face the audience. Mr. Gonzalez may have mislead them by directing the end of each movement with a nod of his head.

The opening concerto in A minor by Vivaldi was an interesting example of the Concerto Grosso style. Tomas Tischauer displayed the beautiful tone of the viola in Hoffmeister's Concerto in D major. The Bach E major Concerto No. 2 was played traditionally with great gusto in the Brandenberg Concerti style.

After intermission Guelfo Nalli, French hornist, proved to be nothing short of a virtuoso of that instrument with his performance of the E flat quintet by Mozart. The rather intricate Rondo movement was played with brilliance and near flawless execution. Mr. Nalli alone would have been worth coming to hear.

An ultra contemporary piece, Cielo de Dante Allighieri by R. G. Morillo, had the audience literally talking to itself and some of them outloud. This is a highly experimental type composition. At the very least this devilishly difficult piece at first alarmed the audience and had some children giggling until they became aware that the orchestra was seriously going on with it. I found it most enjoyable and suspect that it is the selection the musicians most enjoyed performing. It was far out and threw the balance of the program from Baroque to outer space.

The final selection, Rumanian Folk Dances by Bartok were, as expected, delightful. The audience exhibited its good taste and appreciation by calling for an encore, an allegro assai movement from a Vivaldi concerto.

The auditorium has in the past been filled to capacity for performances far below the artistic and musical level this concert provided. This is too bad since this concert alone was worth the price of the season ticket. It seems they saved the best for last as this was one of the more rewarding and truly musical experiences the concert association has presented to its members.

Recorded Stories From Pioneers Are Discussed

A joint project to record the stories of local pioneers to document the history of this area was discussed at a recent pilot meeting at Northland state junior college.

The college and the Pennington County historical society would cooperate in making the college a repository of historical data.

Discussion at the meeting centered mainly around taping accounts of pioneers in the area so the stories of "the way it was" could be preserved in first hand accounts.

Some of the early history of this area has already been lost, and it is the group's concern that historical accounts be taped and written down before more is lost.

Present at the meeting were Mrs. Clarence Isaacson, college librarian, Mrs. Enga Geving, president of the county historical society, Robert J. Lund, retired businessman, and Richard Lytle, history instructor at the college.

Some taping of history from pioneers has already been done by Merle Kruschke's Minnesota history class, and this will be expanded to other classes. Anyone interested in helping should contact Mrs. Isaacson or Mrs. Geving.

Knutson Elected To Newfolden Creamery Board

Mervin Knutson was elected to the board of directors of Farmers Co-op Creamery association at Newfolden Saturday afternoon, while Henry Engelsrud was elected secretary-treasurer, replacing Edgar Rokke, who retired after 18 years of service on the board.

Speakers at the meeting were Dean Severson, Land O' Lakes agriculture service department, and Loyd Iverson, representative of Midland cooperatives.

The association reported $249,885.07 in sales in 1970 and a gross margin of $43,314.41, up almost $3,000 from 1969.

Other members of the cooperative's board of directors are William Waterworth, Harold Haaseth and Maynard Hjelle.

Catholic Women To Meet Tuesday At St. Bernard's

Unity and charity under a seven-fold program of involvement is the goal of the new organization in the local Catholic church. Chairmen of the various programs of involvement are as follows: Kay Jesch, personal involvement, Eva Lendobeja, ecumenical, Katherine Kinsman, civic, Vi Kalinoski and Cyrella Rodekuhr, social, Celma Hughes and Rose Vaudrin, charitable, Mary Jo Linden, youth, and Lorena Lasha, educational.

Gatzke Creamery Will Consider LO'L Merger

Special meeting of the Gatzke Cooperative Creamery association will be held at 1 p.m. April 15 in the school gym at Gatzke to discuss the possibility of dissolving the association.

The action is part of what has been happening to cooperative creameries in the area. Most of them have merged with Land O'Lakes.

A resolution will be presented to the stockholders authorizing the board of directors to act as trustees in the merger.

Current board members are Orland Dahl, Middle River, Bill Bernstein, Elmer Anderson, Olaf Aune, Walter Lunsetter and Thorfin Ostby, Gatzke, and Alton Sparby, Grygla.

Missionaries Talk At Grygla

A special missionary service will be held at the Grygla Gospel Tabernacle at 8 p.m. April 6 to which the public has been invited.

Speakers will be the Rev. and Mrs. Sidney Pederson, missionaries to Liberia who are currently home on furlough.

Soo Line Retires Last Cattle Cars

Soo Line railroad has retired the last of its cattle cars in northwestern Minnesota, routing the four remaining cars to Superior, Wis., where they will be taken out of service.

The company picked up three of the cars in Karlstad March 23 and a fourth cattle car at Strandquist later. They were the last Soo Line-owned cars.

Cattle have been shipped from the northwestern area since the rail tracks were first put down in this area in 1904. At times cattle shipping gave the railway some of its heaviest cargo traffic, but in recent years trucks have been taking over more and more of the service. From now on they will handle all cattle shipments.

Probably the last man to ship a carload of cattle via rail was Loyal Olstad, manager of the Karlstad shipping association. He made the last shipment in December and in all of 1970 sent off 28 cars loaded with cattle.

Appearing during the evening will be the Stateline Squires quartet from Fargo and quartets from Winnipeg, Grand Forks, Lancaster and Thief River Falls. The Northern Lights barbershop chorus will sing patriotic songs centered around the theme "This Is My Country".

The public is invited to attend this evening of barbershop harmony.

Bergland Lists Three Goals Of Welfare Reform

In a statement prepared for the 78th Annual Minnesota Welfare conference held in Minneapolis Wednesday, U.S. Representative Bob Bergland declared: "During this time of a very real and justified taxpayers revolt, any new welfare program should have the approval and support of those who must pay for it."

Bergland also said that "any rational welfare program" should be acceptable to taxpayers.

In his statement, Bergland said that welfare reform should have three goals: To reduce the number of people on welfare, to remove the financial burden of welfare from state and local governments, and to be responsive to the needs of the poor. Of equal importance, he said, is to "understand the feelings and frustrations" of taxpayers and "educate them to the realities of welfare."

Elaborating, Bergland said that "some form of federalization and standardization "of welfare payments must be accomplished to relieve state and local governments "of a burden they can no longer afford." He also said that "meaningful training programs that will lead to satisfactory and rewarding employment" are essential to a realistic welfare program.

"Miles of unnecessary red tape, the rules and regulations that frustrate both recipients and welfare workers" must also be reduced, Bergland concluded.

1,500 Attend Meeting On Huot Dam Proposal

McGinnis also covered what he called "negative aspects of the reservoir alternative which need to be carefully weighed against the benefits." Development of the reservoir would require clearing about 1,020 acres of wooded wildlife habitat and periodic reservoir flood storage could affect some woodland above the conservation pool.

He also said that sediment will tend to accumulate within the pool and in a delta above the pool. This would change the character of the river, its aquatic life and the vegetation in the adjacent woodland.

McGinnis said that over a period of 1,000 to 2,000 years sediment could fill the reservoir so that its use would be severely impaired.

He also said the prolonged release of clear water from the reservoir could have the net effect of increasing riverbank erosion downstream, but that it is difficult to predict to how great a degree. Similar to lakes in the region, the reservoir would be vulnerable to pollution from nitrogen and phosphorous compounds carried into the stream by runoff from cropland and feedlots and by community storm drainage systems and waste treatment facilities.

Relocations of highways 11, 57 and 18 would be required, although the existing highway 18 crossing could be maintained as a seasonal crossing. About once in 12 years reservoir flood storage would inundate the Hot cemetery, which has approximately 90 graves upstream from the conservation pool. The cemetery would have to be relocated at federal expense unless the next of kin prefer that it remain in place.

On the positive side, McGinnis said, reservoir development would provide a wide variety of outdoor recreation activities. Three public use areas with facilities to accommodate the general public were suggested along the margin of the reservoir.

An overlook area and a downstream fishing area could be provided at the dam. Some of the facilities which could be provided at the recreation sites include camp pods, picnic tables, wells, toilets, fireplaces, parking areas, boat ramps, docks, a swimming beach and hiking trails.

Approximately 3,200 acres of valley lands located in the upstream areas could be preserved in their natural state, according to McGinnis. Proper management of this area could provide for some specialized outdoor recreation activities such as stream fishing, canoeing, hiking and general nature enjoyment.

Loss of wildlife habitat caused by reservoir clearing could be partially offset through intensive wildlife management, he said.

Reforestation and a tree planting program on acquired lands could also help to offset the loss of wildlife habitat and also help compensate for the loss of woodland in the conservation pool area. Under federal law, half the costs of development of recreation facilities would be paid by local interests, and local interests must bear all costs of operating and maintaining the recreation facilities.

If any of the other alternatives were to be chosen, McGinnis said, local interests would be expected to provide all lands, easements, and rights-of-way necessary for the construction and subsequent maintenance of the project.

Money would also have to be raised locally to pay for all alterations and relocations of existing improvements, including bridges, highways, sewers and other facilities. They would also have to hold the federal government free from damages and maintain any levees, channels and related works after completion of the initial construction.

Among the alternatives discussed at the meeting, McGinnis listed the following:

One alternative would be to do nothing. The flood-prone area would remain vulnerable to large floods. The area includes over half the residential area and part of the business district of Crookston.

The second alternative, floodplain regulation, would involve the adoption of zoning regulations to prevent future development in the floodplain with resultant increases in flood damage. Economic costs associated with floodproofing new construction or locating new developments elsewhere would probably be less than costs of structural flood protection measures. Long term environmental effects of gradual conversion of floodplain areas to parks and open green spaces could be beneficial, McGinnis said.

Alternative three would be the permanent evacuation of all developed floodplain areas in Crookston and would involve the acquisition of land by purchase, the removal and relocation of all improvements on the floodplain, including approximately 630 homes and 40 businesses, and the evacuation and resettlement of people affected. This alternative is neither economically feasible nor would it probably be acceptable to the people who would be moved, said McGinnis.

The fourth alternative would involve the construction of a 5.9 mile diversion channel, including six new bridges at highway and railroad crossings and a control structure at the diversion channel outlet. This channel would be about 38 feet deep, 600 feet wide, and would have adjacent spoil banks more than 1,600 feet wide. This alternative is prohibitively costly compared with other flood damage reduction plans, according to the corps of engineers.

Alternative five includes raising and strengthening 2.8 miles of the existing levee system, construction of 1.4 miles of floodwall where foundation conditions or other restrictions prevent levee raising, nine tenths of a mile of channel enlargement and two channel cutoffs, and interior drainage facilities and several pumping stations. Two street bridges and a railroad bridge would have to be altered.

Despite the high cost of providing for unstable riverbank soil conditions, this was found to be the least costly method of providing adequate flood protection for Crookston and would have a minimum adverse impact on the environment, McGinnis said.

He added, however, that the plan would fail to alleviate flood damage downstream from Crookston along both the Red Lake and Red Rivers and would not supply outdoor recreation opportunities.

McGinnis said that if a water management plan were recommended, a report draft would be completed in the next two years. Following completion of the report and review by all state and federal agencies concerned, the recommended plan would be considered for possible authorization by Congress.

Should the project be authorized and funded by Congress, about three to five more years would be required for detailed planning prior to the start of construction.

Other speakers at the meeting covered the lengthy history of flooding in the area, stressed the need for water sources in times of drought, and stressed the need for water quality control.

One Red Lake Falls resident had another Corps of Engineers map with conflicting water elevations. McGinnis said it would be made certain that water elevations would be set low enough to avoid damage to property in Red Lake Falls. Another speaker urged a series of smaller dams farther upstream and on smaller tributaries, but McGinnis stated that one big dam would be more effective.

Other area property owners agreed with the assessments of flood damage over the years. "Unless these flood conditions can be changed," said one, "we're on the way out."

Another group of farmers and property owners, living upstream from the proposed damsite, are trying to modify the corps of engineers proposal, calling it "a real salesman's job".

Willard Brunelle, an area landowner, said at the meeting that if the proposed dam were built he would lose most of his 600 acre farm and there would be an annual farm loss of $300,000 in the Red River Valley because of the dam.

Paul Heng, another young farmer, stated the dam's "recreational potential is nothing" because the valley is so steep that a broad lake would not be created under most water conditions.

"If you pull a $25,000 tax loss out of here, this is going to have to be picked up by the rest of Red Lake county," Heng said.

Farmers from the upstream area, while quiet in their opposition to the project, hope to arrange other smaller meetings with representatives of the Army engineer corps. Heng was optimistic that the proposals could be modified. "We're at least going to present our case," he said.

A Strange World

Two of the most bizarre trials in the history of the United States came to a conclusion at nearly the same time. Only in the fact that the defendants were found guilty and that the trials were long and involved was there similarity in the cases.

Lt. William Calley Jr. was found guilty of murdering 22 Vietnamese civilians in a war being fought halfway around the world. Charles Manson and three female followers were found guilty of murdering seven civilians in the affluent area of California. Press coverage of both trials was in such depth that it was impossible for a day to pass without hearing or reading about one or the other.

Lt. Calley did, the trial determined, kill the Vietnamese civilians. He did so under orders to destroy the village, in the heat of a war in which the enemy could be a man, woman or child and personal survival is the main objective. He had been trained to kill, for that is what wars do.

We heard a radio commentator state that Lt. Calley was found guilty because he was in the wrong branch of service. Had he been in the air force and bombed the village into oblivion—together with all the people in it—he would probably have been decorated for accomplishing his mission. As a foot soldier he has been convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison.

Lt. Calley might be said to be a victim of military discipline. He followed orders. It is difficult for us who have not been in the lieutenant's position to conceive of what was done, but we can try to imagine his situation. And we can ask ourselves if we would have done differently.

The Manson clan, on the other hand, was a victim of lack of discipline. Manson and his followers rejected the bounds of society and of law. The murders which they committed with savagely brutal and utterly senseless. The killings were done without reason but were deliberate and pre-meditated.

Manson and his followers were given the death penalty for their crimes. No death penalty has been carried out in the United States for a number of years. There is no reason to expect that the sentence will be carried out as ordered by the jury. Imprisonment will be the likely result.

A soldier kills possible enemies in a war. A madman kills innocent people in a wanton slaughter. Both are tried on the same charge—murder—and both are convicted. It's a strange world.

State Records

When weather warmed the other day and puddles of water appeared across the countryside, we couldn't help but look forward to the fishing season which is now only six weeks away. How would you like to go after a state record fish this year?

Did you know that two of the three oldest records for large fish in Minnesota are from Lake of the Woods? The oldest standing record is for a sturgeon caught in Lake of the Woods in 1911. No angler is listed by the Minnesota department of natural resources, but the fish weighed 236 pounds.

Second oldest record is for northern pike. Nobody has erased the mark set by J. W. Schanken on May 16, 1929, when the pike he hauled out of Basswood Lake weighed 45 pounds, 12 ounces.

J. W. Collins of Baudette still tops the record book for Minnesota muskellunge with a fish caught July 24, 1931, in Lake of the Woods. That musky weighed 56 pounds, eight ounces.

Other records, with species, weight, place caught, angler and date listed respectively are as follows:

Largemouth Bass, 10-2, Prairie Lake, Itasca County, Harold Lehn, Bemidji, Minn., 1961;

Smallmouth Bass, 8, West Battle Lake, Ottertail County, John Creighton, Mpls., Minn., 1948;

Brook Trout, 9, Ash River, Frank House, Ray, Minn., July, 1958;

Rainbow Trout, 15-7, Lake Superior, Cliff Lovold, Two Harbors, Minn., Sept. 11, 1970;

Coho, 10-61-2, Lake Superior-Baptism River, Louis Rohde, Coon Rapids, Minn., Nov. 7-8, 1970;

Lake Trout, 43-8, Hovland, G. H. Nelson, May 30, 1955;

Walleye, 16-11, Basswood Lake, 1955;

Crappie, 5, Vermillion River, Tom Christensan, Red Wing, Minn., 1940;

Bluegill, 2-13, Lake Alice, Bob Parker, Bemidji, Minn., 1948;

Perch, 3-4, Lake Plantaganette, Meric Johnson, Dept. of NR - 1945;

Mud Catfish, 70, St. Croix river (Marine), John Roberts, Garden City, Iowa, 1970;

Brown Trout, 16-8, Grindstone Lake, Mr. Lovgren, St. Paul, Minn., 1961.

Playing The Ponies

More emphasis is being placed on a move to legalize pari-mutuel betting in Minnesota during the current session of the legislature than ever before. Undoubtedly, the proponents of legalized gambling believe that a legislature facing scares of irate taxpayers will be receptive to anything which looks like it might provide tax revenue.

Captain Henry M. Wrobleski of the Edina police department is one of the state's major opponents of the bill. Here is what he says about the permitting of legalized betting at race tracks:

"It is going to be unmistakably a terrible situation for law enforcement. I think we can justify that statement by the fact that wherever gambling exists, organized crime moves in to infiltrate police agencies, the criminal justice systems, the legislative branches of state governments and in some instances they are represented in Congress."

The police detective notes that sponsors of the legislation claim it will bring $12 million in new revenue. But to raise that much for the state—through its 7½ per cent share of track revenue—bettors would have to wager almost $160 million during a 90-day racing season. That would amount to $43.23 a day for each man, woman and child in the state.

Wrobleski contends a more realistic figure would be $2 million to $4 million—based on revenues in other states with a similar population, economic situation and racing season. At that, it would be such an insignificant part of the total budget that all the attendant headaches would far overshadow the revenue to be produced.

Tax relief we need, yes. Gambling we don't need, not at all. Playing the ponies is costly recreation in a number of ways. There is no need to invite more trouble into Minnesota.

New Secret Weapon?

If it is possible to kill with kindness, maybe we have had the wrong outlook on foreign aid for a long time. Perhaps we should have been pouring our dollars into the Soviet economy directly, helping the workers there to rise to the same state of unrest as the workers here. Consider the following editorial comment from the Republican Newsletter:

The Zhiguli is a secret weapon that could conceivably do more to bring world peace than all the SALT talks and missile bans combined. The Zhiguli is the little car that the Soviet Union is beginning to produce in cooperation with the Fiat auto company.

People in the Soviet Union have had very little to do with cars. They are literally in the Model T stage of auto development. In Moscow, a city of 7 million, there are only 100,000 private autos—and one automobile dealership.

Eventually, the Fiat plant will turn out 50,000 small cars a month—compared with three quarters of a million monthly in the U.S. But there are no auto dealerships available to dispense the cars, the Soviet Government has admitted. The Ukraine, where the cars are to be marketed first, will have 36 service stations by 1973 to serve a population of 50 million.

But once Ivan gets a set of wheels, the demand for other "luxury" items will presumably increase and the Kremlin may well find that channeling the USSR's resources into bigger and better missiles will be tough to sell to the peasants who want bigger and better cars. Missiles? Nyet. Wheels? Da.

The Zhiguli costs three years' pay for the Soviet worker. How soon will there be sit-ins for higher wages? And strikes? When travel becomes universal, they will need a Petrograd Hilton and Kentucky Colonel Caviar stands and presto, Boris will be well on the way toward capitalistic craving for materialistic goods. The little car could be the beginning of bigger things in Russia—and mayhaps better things for the world and peace.

Weights And Measures

For some time it has been suggested that the metric system be accepted universally as a system of weights and measures, and few will argue that it is a good system. The transfer from our present system to the metric system would create some massive changes, not only in our working but in our thinking.

The Farmers Almanac notes that some popular phrases would have to be converted as well, such as the following:

A miss is a good as 1.61 kilometers.
There isn't 0.06 gram of truth in it.
He felt 3.05 meters tall.
He was wearing a 37.86-liter hat.
First down and 9.14 meters to go.
She 2.54-centimetered her way through the crowd.
Don't hide your light under 35.24 liters.
Not to mention a 0.9144-0.6096-0.9144 figure at the beach.

Dear Editor:

Please find enclosed a copy of a letter I wrote to Senator H. H. Humphrey. I would like to have this published under Letters to the Editor.

Senator H. H. Humphrey:

Dear Sir:

This is a letter to implore you to use every means at your disposal to work for a full pardon for Lt. Calley.

I have one son now in the service and another one just turning nineteen. I have brought them up to love their country and to serve in the Armed Forces if their country needs them. If the conviction of Lt. Calley is allowed to stand, I then can not be willing to let them serve in the Armed Forces or see how they can be willing to serve.

I am sure if you have an ear tuned to the voting citizens of Minnesota you are aware of the feelings of the people you represent and will make haste to use all of your power to help pardon Lt. Calley.

Sincerely,
Robert Jenkins
Rt. 3

A demonstration was given of the play which had previously been picked out by the junior leaders. Lunch was later served by the Yonke family.

House Group Hears Testimony On Tires

Proponents of studded tires were heard by the Minnesota House Transportation committee last night. The occasion was a special hearing granted to hear testimony on why present legislation permitting studded tire use should be extended or replaced by a new bill when the present law expires on April 30.

First to be heard were the sponsors of four new bills to permit continued use of studs. Representative William Shores (Liberal-Murdock), sponsor of one of the bills, reminded the legislature that it is easier to measure the cost of concrete than the value of lives saved. Bills were also introduced by Representative Norman Prahl (Liberal-Grand Rapids), Representative L. J. Lee (Liberal-Bagley) and Representative Douglas Johnson (Liberal Cook). Similar in many respects to the present law on studded tires, most of the bills now under study would reduce the time period in which studded tires may be used.

Included in the introduction of the new bills were numerous letters of testimony from motorists in addition to petitions and resolutions of endorsement from groups such as rural letter carriers and the United Steelworkers of America.

Endorsement of the proposed legislation was also brought to the committee from the Rubber Manufacturers Association. Joseph P. Kigin, Director of Government Relations for the national association told the committee that critics of studded tires "allege and have sought to demonstrate that they are actually dangerous when used on bare pavements. This claim is quite contrary to the testing experience of the tire industry, the tire stud industry, and the National Safety Council," he said. He informed the committee that the RMA, in cooperation with the Tire Stud Manufacturers Institute (TSMI) engaged the Civil Engineering Department of the University of Tenn. to conduct bare pavement stopping distance tests of studded tires. While a final report has not yet been completed, Kigin said, "We have received sufficient preliminary data to demonstrate that there is no significant increase in stopping distances caused by studded tires on bare pavement, and there is no danger resulting from their use."

Kigin concluded his remarks with a reference to the testing completed recently by the Minnesota Highways Department at Whiting, Indiana, to determine how much, if any, road wear is caused by studded tires. "Last week, the Senate of Indiana, where the pavement wear research was undertaken, and which state has equal access to the findings of the program, rejected on a floor vote a bill to prohibit studded tires in that state," Kigin said.

C. L. Bowar, Director of Public Affairs for the Minnesota AAA Motor Club said his organization favors passage of a new bill to permit continued use of studded tires, "because the majority of our members say they want them."

Testimony from the Tire Stud Manufacturers Institute was carried to the hearing by two members of that group. David J. Besuden, Chairman of the TSMI Consumer Advisory Committee, took issue with the Minnesota Highway Department's interpretation of the findings from the road wear tests conducted at Whiting, Indiana. Besuden provided members of the committee with copies of a point-by-point rebuttal of the Highway Department's recently published report of the Whiting tests. He concluded by saying, "Though the efforts of tire manufacturers and tire stud manufacturers, studded tires sold this past winter do not cause as much road wear as those sold five years ago. And new developments in stud design assure that still further reductions in stud-caused road wear will be made."

Time limitations set by Committee Chairman August Mueller, (Conservative-Arlington), made it necessary for Rolf Cantz, Chairman of the Technical Advisory Committee of TSMI, to cut short his planned testimony. Abandoning the slides he had planned to use to illustrate technical advancement by the industry, Cantz said, "It is difficult to condense all the technical factors of this controversy, but perhaps I can summarize it in only two words—safety and progress. The contribution of studded tires to winter driving safety has been documented by the National Safety Council, the Canada Safety Council, Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory and other testing agencies," he said.

Cantz continued, "Studded tires reduce icy road stopping distance 50 per cent to 60 per cent. They improve traction up to 200 per cent. And with studded tires on all four wheels, steering control is improved 50 per cent to 60 per cent. That's progress in winter driving safety. And with new tire stud designs ready for next year, we have made substantial progress in reducing the problem of road wear," Said Cantz. "We would like to continue making progress."

John Sieff, Executive VP of the S&M Company, said his firm supplied the tires used by the Minnesota Highway Department in their test report. Calling it "a biased report," Sieff said, "the language of the report is slated to favor the opponents of studded tires. The report would have us believe," he continued, "that we travel so much on clear pavement freeways that studded tires offer negligible assistance. I disagree with that as well. Much emphasis in the report is placed on the fact that the freeways and main trunk highways are kept in good winter driving condition, although a survey shows that up to 89 per cent of the winter travel in Minnesota is on roads other than freeways and main trunk highways, and that the condition of these roads is ice-covered or with hard-packed snow, loose snow, or other than bare pavement from 26 per cent to 53 per cent of the time, as shown on page 30 of the report."

Sieff said he challenged the accuracy of the highway department's report, the testing procedures and the language used in the report. He said that several errors were made in the test program, including his contention that some of the testing was done with studs not of the type specified for the test.

Sieff also said that the use of studded tires has helped bring about a decline in winter highway fatalities in Minnesota. Using Minnesota Department of Public Safety figures, Sieff said there has been an 11.42 per cent increase in vehicle miles traveled annually on Minnesota roads from 1967 through 1969. "During this same winter period," he said, "highway fatalities declined by 16.97 per cent."

Several citizens' groups were also heard, with one man noting that the highway department has not offered any substitute for the benefits of studded tires. "They merely want to take them away from us and give us nothing to take their place," he said.

A representative of the Minnesota Farmers Union said her organization also favors continued use of studded tires, even if it means imposing a tax on users "not to exceed 10 per cent of the tire purchase price."

Spring Brings Fire Warnings

As soon as the snow melts, the annual task of cleaning up the winter's accumulation of debris and dead vegetation will start—and that's where the Department of Natural Resources comes in.

Burning permits will be required by the Department's division of lands and forestry in areas outside of villages and municipalities, unless burning is being done in a state approved burner.

Most villages and towns have their own burning ordinances which must be complied with.

Clean up activities are not far off in the southern third of the state, say foresters, but the northern areas will be snow covered for some time yet.

Burning permits can be obtained from local fire wardens and forestry stations.

Over 164,000 In Minnesota Given Food Assistance

Over 164,000 low-income persons in Minnesota received food assistance during January from the U.S. department of agriculture in cooperation with the Minnesota department of public assistance, according to Dennis M. Doyle, Midwest regional director of the food and nutrition service.

The total included 16,355 persons in 20 commodity distribution program projects and 147,897 in 68 food stamp program areas.

Minnesota food stamp participants received over $3.5 million worth of coupons during January of which nearly $1.8 million were bonus coupons. The average bonus per person was $12.

In 11 Midwest states, over 2.6 million persons received USDA food assistance. Around 458,000 were in 275 commodity programs and 2.1 million in 676 food stamp plans.

The food stamp program enables low-income persons to buy more food by exchanging the amount of money they normally spend on food for coupons worth more than they paid. The coupons are spent like cash at authorized retail food outlets for any domestic food.

The commodity distribution program provides over 20 USDA-donated foods to supplement the diets of needy people. The foods are shipped to the state distributing agency which handles the storage and transportation to local distribution centers and welfare agencies.

Outdoor Education Workshop Was Held

More than 150 Minnesota teachers and students traded their textbooks for snowshoes recently to share in a unique educational experience.

The occasion was the Minnesota winter outdoor education workshop held at Bald Eagle center near Cass Lake. Using the outdoors as a classroom, educators and students from 35 different school districts worked and lived together while studying the winter environment and man's effect on it.

The workshop was the sixth in a series of environmental education workshops designed for teachers of all disciplines, all grades. It was the first to be held in a winter setting, however.

"Few of the people who attended the workshop were aware of the ecological importance of snow and ice before they came here," said a workshop spokesman. "The children thought of it only as something to play in and the adults thought of it as a nuisance and something to be shoveled.

"But now, many of them are aware of such things as the water-storing capacity of snow and its insulating qualities which makes it easier to understand why more animals and plants survive where there is deep snow and that soil does not freeze as deeply with a heavier snow cover," he explained.

"What we tried to do at the workshop was afford students and their teachers the opportunity to work together to examine, measure and investigate the winter environment and keep records of their observations. By doing this, we think they now have a greater understanding of the complexities of the environment."

At the center, which is managed by Bemidji state college, participants strapped on snowshoes and cross-country skis to penetrate into the heart of the 650,000 acres of national forest land surrounding the center.

Working on top of waist-deep snow, the students and teachers gathered a wealth of data. They conducted experiments to determine the effect of wind on snow drifting. They measured snow depth and density and determined temperatures of snow at varying depths. They also recorded clues to life in the snow from animal tracks and food plants and studied in detail existing habitat for squirrels.

Foresters with the department of natural resources guided several groups through a logging site where students determined tree age and height. Several students rolled up their sleeves and felled trees which were later trimmed and sawed into cord lengths.

Snowmobiles were used both for their recreational appeal and for determining the impact of the machines on the environment. One enterprising group placed several cigarettes at different snow depths, and then ran over the spot with a snowmobile. Expecting to find the cigarettes mangled or at least flattened, the group found only failure instead as the white cigarettes were impossible to find in the snow.

All of the activities, including cross-country skiing and snowshoeing, were designed for teachers and students to learn together and from each other. But there were other, more specific objectives of the workshop such as:

To encourage participants to develop environmental education sites at their own schools...

To present them with a blend of academic and recreational approaches to problem-solving in the outdoor classroom...

To encourage teachors to utilize out-of-the-classroom activities...

To suggest activities that teachers can use in outdoor education such as ideas, materials, games, equipment, etc.

Each of the participating teachers brought one student from his or her school district. Schools in the metropolitan area were well represented as were nearly all regions in the state, from the extreme southwest (Mountain Lake) to the northeastern arrowhead region (Grand Marais).

The winter workshop was conducted over two sessions: March 3-5 and March 10-12. Plans are being made for a fall workshop which presumably will be located in an "urban environment."

Planting Grain Containing Weed Seed Is Unlawful

Minnesota department of agriculture emphasizes that it is unlawful for any person to plant any agricultural seed which he knows contains weed seeds and noxious weed seeds in excess of the limits stated by law.

Any person violating this provision or any of the rules or regulations promulgated by the state commissioner of agriculture under the law is guilty of a misdemeanor.

The department also says the clean seed is the cheapest weed control known and that it renews plant vigor and increases yields.

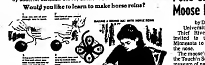
Well, What Do You Know?

fun, games and knowledge

by MARTHA GLAUBER SHAPP, Editor, The New Book of Knowledge

Would you like to learn to make horse reins?



A rainy day is a good time to learn to make horse reins. They are made on a wooden spool. You can buy a spool for horse reins, or you can make one very easily. Take a large empty wooden spool. Hammer four short nails with very small heads into one end. Place them at even distances from one another.

Now take a ball of yarn and drop the end of it down through the hole in the spool. Take the piece of wool leading up out of the hole and loop it around each of the four nails in order, as if you were writing small script e's. When you've finished your fourth loop, carry the wool from the center out and around the outside of the first nail. With a thin knitting needle or a large safety pin, pick up the wool you have already looped over the nail and pass it over the wool you're holding and over and off the nail toward the center of the spool.

Continue around and around the spool, keeping the wool outside each nail, picking up the bottom thread and passing it over the thread you're holding and over and off the nail each time.

The finished horse reins, which look like knitted rope, come out through the hole in the spool. When you have 2 or 3 yards and want to stop, cut off the wool about 1 foot from the spool. Draw this short piece of wool through the loop of wool around one of the nails and make a loose knot. Do this with the other three loops of wool in turn. Then your knitting won't unravel.

If you place your long piece of knitting on a table and carefully wind it into a flat circle, you can sew it together with an overcast stitch to make a table mat or a doll's rug.

State Hospital Auxiliary Seeks To Alert Women

by Judy Vick
University News Service

Hospital auxiliaries should serve as an arm for community relations and education, says Mrs. John C. Bryant, Wayzata, president of the University Hospitals Volunteer Association (UHVA).

"They can and should do more than just push carts," said Mrs. Bryant, mother of three and wife of a Minneapolis public relations firm executive who has served as head of the University organization since it was founded two and a half years ago.

Soon Mrs. Bryant will see the fulfillment of one of her ideas on how a hospital auxiliary can serve its community. The UHVA is sponsoring a three-day "Health Alert" symposium for all the women of the state.

Featuring such noted speakers as anthropologist Margaret Mead, Alvin Toffler, author of the best-selling "Future Shock;" and preventive medicine expert Robert Samp, as well as many other experts, the event is designed to alert women to health problems in the United States. The symposium, to be held at the University, is planned for April 20 to 22.

Under Mrs. Bryant's leadership, the UHVA has also initiated a grooming course for psychiatric patients, a coffee-cart service for the many outpatients who visit University clinics; ballet instruction for pediatric patients, and a flower-cart to deliver flowers to patients' rooms.

They encouraged a group of local artists to decorate the children's psychiatric station with murals and have sponsored a number of entertainment events for patients. They are working on plans to redecorate the lounge that serves the friends and families of surgery patients.

"Pushing carts and visiting patients is an important function of the hospital volunteer, but there are many more innovative things that can be done—involving many people in the community who cannot commit themselves to hospital service on a regular schedule," Mrs. Bryant said.

"However, in order for women to become involved, they have to be educated to what the problems in health care are," she said. "We hope to assist in achieving this through 'Health Alert.' Then, perhaps, they can start continuing-education programs in their own communities. I feel it is the University's responsibility to be a leader in this area."

Mrs. Bryant's interest in the University comes naturally. A lifetime resident of Minnesota, she grew up in Edina and graduated from the University's College of Science, Literature and Arts with a degree in philosophy. The Bryant's now live in Woodland Village, in a modern home overlooking Shaver's Lake. They have three children—John, 16, a student at Blake school in Hopkins; Kate, 14, who attends Northrop Collegiate School, and Anne, 11, a student at Deephaven intermediate school.

In addition to her hospital activities, Mrs. Bryant has been an active member of the Junior League and is a member of the board of directors of Big Sisters.

Kids Invited To Poke University Moose In Nose

by Bill Hafling
University News Service

Thief River Falls kids are invited to the University of Minnesota to poke the moose in the nose.

The moose's head is located in the Touch'n See Room of the Bell museum of natural history on the Minneapolis campus of the university. Kids visiting the room seem to enjoy poking their fingers in the stuffed animals' heads in the room.

School children, FFA or 4-H people planning trips to the Twin Cities may enjoy visiting the Touch'n See Room. Re-opened this month after extensive remodeling and expansion, the room contains animal skeletons, horns, and stuffed small animals such as squirrels. Kids are encouraged to touch everything, as well as to try on such things as wolf and bear skins and antelope horns to see what they feel like.

Polar Bear Getting Bare

"After getting pawed over by more than 50,000 visitors," R. E. Barthelemy, the museum's public education coordinator, said, "our polar bear skin is wearing out. We need another bear skin soon, and it needn't be polar."

Barthelemy is issuing a special plea to Minnesotans to donate tanned skins of all kinds, horns, antlers and stuffed heads to the museum for use in the Touch'n See Room.

"It's a good chance for people to clean the attic and help public education at the same time," he said.

People wishing to arrange guided tours or to donate materials can write to R. E. Barthelemy, Bell Museum of Natural History, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn. 55455.

The idea behind the room, according to Barthelemy, is that it allows children to learn more about animals and nature by giving them some first-hand experience.

"It gives them a chance to feel what it might be like to wear those big horns like an antelope or buffalo does," he said. "Where else can you put your finger in a moose's nose or look a bison straight in the eye?"

1971 Accident Locations To Be Computerized

All accidents on Minnesota trunk highways during 1971 will be coded by milepost locations within a hundredth of a mile and computerized so as to make available a wide variety of information for accident studies, Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Hoglund said today.

An important step in this program will be taken on April 1, when highway patrol officers in the northern region of the state will begin including this information on every accident they attend.

Milepost coding by patrol officers will be extended to the rest of the state as soon as possible, he said, and local police and sheriff's forces are receiving guidance in the use of the code.

Hoaglund said the traffic engineering section of the highway department, which did the mileposting on the state system, is cooperating in the project by supplying the milepost numbers on trunk highway accident reports on which they are missing. They are already being supplied on some accidents attended by highway patrol officers.

However, putting the entire reporting program into effect involves the compilation and distribution of code books for each of the state's 87 counties.

The most important use of the mileposting system will be the study of accident locations. With each accident coded in the computer, it will be possible to scan any stretch of highway desired for any time period, and get information on the number, severity and characteristics of accidents at such locations.

The mileposts have been placed on every state trunk highway outside of the cities. In the cities, milepost locations have been identified with physical features such as intersections, bridges and other recognizable features. In addition, the traffic engineering section of the highway department has identified physical features between mileposts, measured the distances from the mileposts, and included them in the code books. With this information, attending officers can, by counting highway stripes (which are interrupted at 50-foot intervals) narrow the location to the hundredth of a mile requirement.

Dep't. Warns About Lead In Pottery Models

Pottery which might contain dangerous levels of leachable lead has been quite widely distributed in Minnesota, according to Bruce S. Olson, supervisor of the Minnesota department of health's poison information center.

Leachable lead in pottery means that lead used in the manufacturing process can be absorbed by foods or beverages on contact. Lead is a cumulative poisoning, and even small traces can build up in a person over a period of time and make him ill.

Information from the federal food and drug administration indicates that the product lines of two firms currently contain same suspect items. The firms are Metlox Pottery, Inc., of California and Holt Howard, Inc., a distributor of Italian pottery located in Stamford, Conn. Products from both these firms have been sold in Minnesota.

As far as Metlox pottery is concerned, lead has been found only in pattern No. 441 California Tempo Blue of its Poppytrail earthenware line. To avoid confusion, however, Metlox is calling back from retail stores the entire California Tempo series of patterns. The colors and patterns involved are:

California Tempo Blue: brown exterior, blue interior;

California Tempo Yellow: yellow interior and beige exterior;

California Tempo Beige: dark beige and light beige combinations;

California Tempo Terra Cotta: orange, and may be referred to as Tempo Orange,

California Tempo Olive Green: beige and olive combinations;

California Tempo White: beige and white color combinations.

Much of the Metlox pottery—which is sold in 45-piece sets—is unlabeled. But some dinner plates may be labeled with the words "Poppytrail Metlox, Made in California" or "Poppytrail-Tempo." Identification can be established by checking colors and patterns. Only the Tempo patterns are involved in the recall.

Certain types of pottery including small mugs, dishes and bowls imported from Italy and distributed nationally by Holt Howard, Inc., contain high levels of leachable lead and could cause serious illness. While the pottery might be kept for decorative purposes, it should not be used as containers for foods and beverages. The pottery involved may be identified by the markings "H-H Italy" or by a style number stamped on the bottom. Style numbers and designs to watch out for are:

Social Security Recipients Asked To File Reports

Social security beneficiaries who earned over $1,680 in 1970 must file annual reports of their earnings by April 15. Beneficiaries who received forms in the mail should complete them, according to Clifford Kittelson, district manager for social security.

Beneficiaries who stopped their social security benefits during last year should have received forms by mail to complete. Anyone else who earned over $1,680 last year will need to get a form from his social security office and complete it.

Those wishing help may have the form completed by telephone and mailed out for signature. The telephone number of the Grand Forks office is 772-5517. Those who prefer to visit the office are invited to do so.

Anyone who was 72 in January of 1970 or earlier need not file a report regardless of how much he works and earns.

Those reporting should include all earned income. This consists of all gross wages plus net profit from self-employment.

The report should not include investment income such as rentals, interest, income from stocks and bonds and other kinds of investment income.

Minnesota Arrowhead Association Reports Poll In Voyageur National Park

H. B. Hayn, Executive Secretary of the Minnesota Arrowhead Association of Duluth, Minnesota has sent this column the recent findings in reference to a poll about the Voyageur National park. This column has made no secret we are opposed to a national park in the Kabetogama area, since this would "open up" the wilderness to millions of tourists leaving the wilderness a vast land of pollution, and as a garbage dump. Tax dollars would be needed to "clean up" and to "protect" forest lands and waters all at the state of Minnesota's expense out of Minnesota's taxpayer's pockets. Walking on the roots of trees exposed barely under top soil can destroy the trees! The Redwood forest of California is proof alone. Trees are now being roped off to save the Redwoods. If we permit tourists invading the wilderness areas of Minnesota such as the Kabetogama area — we can expect the devastation it will leave. The waters will be affected by the lack of bathrooms, or the availability of bathrooms. (How else to state the case so plainly?) Filth will enter the large body of water, and in time destroyed, just as the Great Lakes, and now our Oceans, are being poluted. It can happen in Kabetogama! Tourist dollars that would 'come in' would only 'go out' again to pay the damages of tourist visits. But worse than that, one cannot replace that which is destroyed forever, forestlands and pure waters. Surely there are enough recreational lands already available in the nation! Resorts now in that area are handling the environmental problems beautifully. They understand the area and are constantly on guard protecting it from misuse. Why not leave it as it is! Again we say, why not make the Itasca park the national park! It is already world famous and has highways. There would be no additional construction required, and tax dollars saved!

Here is a letter from Jack Ruttger about the Poll, which was mailed to every legislature in our state. If you are also interested, we ask that you write to the legislators too.

Voyageurs National Park
S. F. 1026
H. F. 1337—Companion Bill To
S. F. 1026

Now that the above legislation has been introduced recommending the donation of state lands by the State of Minnesota to the United States government for the establishment of the proposed Voyageur National Park, we would like to inform you of the following: The Minnesota Arrowhead Association represents the Arrowhead Tourism Region of 12 counties in Northeastern Minnesota and has a membership of approximately 1,000 members, with 58 member organizations, or a total representation of some 12,000 people.

Our association took a poll of our membership in 1968 which asked these questions:

"Do you favor a National Park for Minnesota? Yes ( ) No ( )

"Do you favor the Kabetogama location? Yes ( ) No ( )

The results of the poll were 79.8 per cent in favor of a national park. In the same poll, 72.4 per cent were opposed to the Kabetogama location.

After the United States Congress passed legislation authorizing the park with certain provisions in late 1970, we then took another poll of the membership which asked the following question:

"Do you favor the donation of state lands for the purpose of establishing a national park on Kabetogama Peninsula? Yes ( ) No ( )"

To date this poll stands at 74 per cent opposed to the donation of the land, and 26 per cent in favor.

In view of the large percentage of our membership voting against the donation of state lands, we respectfully request your serious consideration of our position in evaluating these proposed bills.

Respectfully,
Jack Ruttger

Conversion Of Most Vehicles Is Not Lawful

Appearance on the market of kits for converting motorcycles to snowmobiles and snowmobiles to motorcycles has confronted safety and law enforcement people with new problems, and may be adding to the highway traffic toll, Minnesota Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Hoaglund warned this week.

"Apparently some of these conversions meet requirements of the law, or could be brought into compliance. Some of them definitely do not. In all cases, when a vehicle is converted for use on the highways there are certain equipment requirements and standards that must be met.

"In some cases these requirements are not met. There is a belief among some drivers that a motor vehicle license qualifies the vehicle for highway use. This is incorrect. The motor vehicle registrars are not inspectors and cannot accept the task of approving vehicles. The responsibility for meeting highway requirements is upon the owner, and he is subject to arrest if he fails to do so.

"To meet motorcycle requirements, a vehicle must have a saddle for the driver, front and rear lights and license plate lights, horn, and adequate mufler, all of which must meet State of Minnesota standards."

Conversion of a motorcycle to a snowmobile presents other problems, he pointed out. "In the first place, the converted vehicle comes under an entirely different law, requires a different license and is subject to different rules.

"Such a vehicle can no longer be operated on our streets and highways except under very restricted circumstances."

Indian Affairs Group In Favor Of Rice Control

Minnesota Indian affairs commission has voted to support a bill in the legislature which would return to Minnesota Indians the exclusive control of wild rice harvesting within their reservations.

Currently, the state department of natural resources regulates the wild rice harvest both within and without Indian reservations.

The bill, authored by Representative Paul Petrafeso, St. Louis Park liberal, was endorsed by several Indian community representatives who appeared at the commission meeting Monday evening at the State Capitol.

Under Petrafeso's bill, reservation tribal councils would be the sole regulative authority for rice harvesting within the original boundaries of the reservations. The question of determining the original boundaries was referred to the tribal councils for study.

"Depending on which treaty is used, the reservation boundaries could be expanded beyond the lines which are in existence today," said Artley M. Skenandore, executive director of the Indian affairs commission.

Several bills on wild rice are in a House natural resources subcommittee headed by Representative James E. Ulland, Duluth conservative. Ulland's group has been conducting hearings on wild rice harvesting for several weeks.

In other action, the Indian affairs commission tabled a bill to create the post of full-time wild rice coordinator in the natural resources department.

The commission is composed of three senators, three house members and eight representatives of reservation and urban Indians.

Department of Economic Development

The most often-asked questions by visitors to the Capitol building in St. Paul refer to a sculptured group of golden figures which stand directly above the south entrance, at the base of the structure's marble dome.

Although viewers always seem to get the impression that the group is made up of four golden horses, there are actually seven figures making up the sculpture. Three of them are human, but the larger horses tend to dominate.

This gold plated assembly is known as the Capitol's Golden Quadriga.

Standing on a triumphal chariot, drawn by four spirited horses, is the male figure of Prosperity. In one hand he holds a horn of plenty containing the various fruits, grains and vegetables grown in Minnesota. In the other he bears a banner carrying the symbols of the state.

The horses pulling the chariot are drawn by two youthful women, the Goddess of Hope and the Goddess of Agriculture—each symbolizing life, strength and grace. The entire Quadriga symbolizes the triumph of government and prosperity over the forces of poverty, hunger and economic depression.

The Quadriga was created by New York City sculptors Daniel C. French and Edward Potter at a cost of $33,000. The figures were first hammered out of sheet metal, then riveted together over a steel construction. Finally, they were overlaid with gold leaf and given the title "The Progress of the State."

The Golden Quadriga presents a brilliant spectacle on sunny days, putting nature's spotlight on a feature of most unusual tourist interest at the site of Minnesota's most beautiful and imposing buildings.

It is, however, but one of many fascinating points of interest to be viewed at the Capitol. The building houses treasures of state history, legend, and art—all of which contribute to a guided tour being a truly memorable event.

Basic Education Class Considered At Vocational

Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school is interested in finding out how many people in the area would like to take a class in adult basic education.

The class would be open to anyone over age 16, those who never attended school, those who did not finish the eighth grade and persons who need more skills to obtain a better job.

If sufficient interest is shown, a cost-free course would be offered to cover skills in reading, writing, arithmetic, grammar, social studies, health and safety, science, consumer education and other basic material.

Persons who would like to enroll in the course may call 681-5424 for further information.

The class would meet evenings twice a week for 10 weeks and would start in mid-April.

State Prepared For Crisis In Spring Flooding

W. R. Hoaglund, commissioner of the department of public safety, reports that Minnesota is making preparation for any flooding that may endanger citizens and property in the potential flood areas throughout the state. Coordination with local flood protection plans has been in progress for several weeks.

State and local civil defense officials continue to conduct on site inspections at critical areas. The U.S. Army corps of engineers has contacted 50 communities throughout the state for inspection, advice and determination of needs. Three engineers have been assigned to the most critical areas. In addition to 788,000 sandbags already stored in strategic locations, the corps of engineers has given an additional 82,000 to communities in the flood prone areas plus 2,500 feet of polyethylene for dikes.

Cold weather during the latter part of March has slowed the runoff appreciably and eased the crisis. However, a period of high temperatures could change this and create critical situations in same areas, Commissioner Hoaglund pointed out.

Plants Improve Air By Trapping Dirt Particles

Air above the United States is literally the dirtiest place in the world. Twelve million tons of particles such as dust, grit and cinders are released into our atmosphere each year. The dirt comes from almost every place—automobiles, industrial furnaces, incinerators, jet planes and home heating systems.

In urban areas, one has only to wipe his forehead or clean his glasses to see evidence of this pollution. Persons with lung ailments feel pain when they breathe unclean air, and an increasing number of city dwellers are developing lung illnesses as a result of breathing polluted air over a period of years.

Yet most Americans seem to have overlooked a natural resource that can help considerably in alleviating the problem. The resource is green plant life.

That simple thing we take for granted called a plant has the amazing ability to act as a dust trap for these particles. The hairy surfaces of plant leaves on trees, bushes and vines catch falling particles from the air flowing by. Then, with rainfall or a hosing down, the pollutants are washed into the ground, where they are no longer a danger to man's health.

Trees in Los Angeles are such effective dust catchers that they must be washed periodically in a detergent solution to relieve them of their dirty catch. In another large city the dust count on the sheltered side of a planted area was 75 per cent lower than a similar count on the windward side.

"Increased use of trees and shrubbery on city streets, shopping malls and along freeways will help lower the pollution rate of the air in that vicinity," Robert F. Lederer, executive vice president of the American Association of Nurserymen, has suggested.

Parks, then, are particularly important to healthful city living. Whereas they are needed in every section of the community, they are especially important in inner city and industrial areas, where air pollution tends to be the worst.

Business and industry can make major contributions to the quality of the local environment by planting trees and shrubbery on unused land, creating landscaped areas that will clean the air while providing places of beauty and relaxation.

Homeowners, too, can help. No residential area today is totally free of air pollution. By planting an extra tree or two in the backyard they are doing much more than providing valuable shade for a hot summer afternoon and making their home more attractive. They are helping improve the quality of living for their families and their neighbors, as well.

State To Issue Permits For BWCA

A maximum of 50 permits to store boats on lands and waters within the Boundary Waters Canoe Area will be granted by the Department of Natural Resources, it was announced today.

Robert Herbst, Commissioner, said the figure is the maximum number which may be granted under the rules and regulations adopted on Dec. 30, 1970.

Public hearings were held in December in both Duluth and St. Paul to discuss proposed changes in regulations governing use of state lands and waters within the BWCA.

The permits will be issued by the Department's division of lands and forestry.

William Aultfather, division director, said no permits will be issued to operators who have not previously conducted boat renting operations within the area.

He said the permits will terminate on Nov. 15, 1973 and no extensions or renewals will be granted. The permits will be for three seasons of use.

Those who wish to apply for a boat storage permit should obtain an application form by contacting William Aultfather, Director, Division of Lands and Forestry, Centennial Bldg., St. Paul, 55101.

Each boat will require a separate permit. A permit number will be assigned each watercraft and this number must be displayed on the boat.

Aultfather said applications will be processed as rapidly as possible and permits returned to qualifying operators.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband, father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, Stanley Panek who passed away 1 year ago April the 10th, 1970. The Golden gates stood open wide on that unhappy day with farewell. Goodbyes left unspoken you suddenly slipped away. Tho absent you are always near, still loved, still missed, still very dear. A little prayer keeps us in touch with husband and father we loved so much. Sadly missed by his family and especially by his loving wife, Frances Panek and family. 1127p

New Organization Formed To Aid Snow Sled Safety

A new organization, Snowmobile and Leisure [illegible] Distributors, Inc., "S.L.E.D.", has been formed to promote snowmobile safety, natural resource regard and an informed legislative climate. The new organization covering six midwestern states will be directed by Robert H. Rygg, former Minnesota assistant conservation commissioner.

Headquartered at 2901 Pleasant Avenue South, Minneapolis, S.L.E.D. membership is composed of snowmobile distributors in Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois and North and South Dakota. Distributors represent Allouette, Artic Cat, Chapparal, Moto-Ski, Polaris, Rupp, Scorpion, Ski-Doo and Sno-Jet snowmobiles and other leisure oriented products.

"The formation of S.L.E.D. is a positive indication of the industry [illegible] product responsibility," said Rygg. "S.L.E.D. will work closely with legislators, sportsmen's groups, state conservation agencies and manufacturers to improve the use and image of the snowmobile."

According to Rygg, S.L.E.D. is a major step in the right direction to increase and influence both positive snowmobile utilization and legislation, and to educate more thoroughly the growing user audience. "In addition to distributor participation, associate membership will be available to suppliers, jobbers, accessory distributors and companies related to the snowmobile industry," said Rygg.

"S.L.E.D. members have a combined sales total for snowmobiles and leisure products exceeding $250 million annually." And, said Rygg, "the remarkable industry growth trends demand we take a more active part in snowmobile marketing, utilization and legislation. The new organization will also provide information to and through the news media to keep members and the public up-to-date on current legislation and available industry programs and activities." S.L.E.D. will work closely, too, with the International Snowmobile Industry association, headquartered in Minneapolis.

Frank Calder was the first president of the NHL.

Bill Rigney's Minnesota Twins will open their 1971 American League baseball season tomorrow (Tuesday) at Metropolitan stadium against the Milwaukee Brewers with a pitching staff weaker than Don Howe's eyesight.

The Twins will be banking on Jim Perry to have another 20-game season to pull the staff through the 162-game schedule. After Perry, the Twins will have to go with sophomore Bert Blyleven who was 10-9 last season with a 3.18 earned run average. Tommy Hall, 11-6 and 2.55 last season along with Jim Kaat, 14-10 and 3.56, round out the probable starting unit.

Even with Stan Williams matching last year's superb performance of a 1.99 era and a 10-1 record, the Twins will be lucky to catch a glimpse of the Angels and A's as they drop to third in the West Division.

Former area athletes earning their athletic letters at colleges and universities include Nick Neibauer and Tom Super of Mentor, former Northland state junior college cage performers, who gained varsity letters on the Moorhead Dragon basketball squad this season and Scott Kleven, Red Lake Falls graduate, who lettered with the University of North Dakota hockey team.

Former Prowler Tom Tunberg, a junior on the UND baseball team, opened the season as the starting first baseman against Lincoln (Mo.) University.

Tunberg is also listed as a relief pitcher for the Fighting Sioux who are coached by Harold (Pinky) Kraft, in his 18th year as the Sioux chief. UND will play its first home game on Tuesday, April 27, at 1 p.m. against Bemidji state.

Two district 31 basketball players were chosen as honorable mention picks to the All State basketball team selected by the Minnesota High School Basketball Coaches Association.

Rykk Nicholls of Alvarado and Scott Gravseth of East Grand Forks were picked for the post season honors.

Nicholls, a 6-2 senior center, led the Alvarado Indians to a near-perfect season and the sub-district 31 title before his team lost a 59-38 contest to Crookston in the district 31 tournament.

Gravseth was the floor general for "East Side's" state consolation winner in the class A tournament. The 5-10 senior guard took charge of the club when star forward Kurt Knoff was injured and led the Green Wave to the Big Five Conference crown and district 31 and region eight tiles before losing 54-53 to Melrose in the semi-finals of the state class A tournament. "East Side" came back to bump Renville 80-77 for consolation honors in the state classic.

Northland state junior college basketball coach Chet Engelman is very interested in Nicholls and has hopes of landing the candidate for next season. Gravseth has indicated he would like to attend the University of Minnesota and participate in the Gophers' baseball program.

HEY, MOM...

...IT'S SPRING!

THESE SCENES were probably repeated countless times yesterday and today as temperatures climbed into the 50's and 60's in the Thief River Falls area. Five-year-old Troy Loeb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Loeb, thought water was just fine (top photo) as he ran past Bill Carlson, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carlson. But a boot full of water (bottom photo) slows a kid down, and sometimes a guy has to take time out to get rid of some weight. Looking on are Fella, age 4, and Joe, age 2, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Drevlow. Oh, to be a carefree kid again!

United Fund To Purchase Loom For Sr. Citizens

Robert Kosel, chairman of the community recreation committee of the Thief River Falls United Fund, reported today that at a recent meeting of the board of directors, the United Fund accepted the recommendation of his committee to purchase a loom for the senior citizens housing center.

According to Mrs. Oscar Mossestad at the housing center, "This is something that we have wanted for a long time. It will help fill the hours of those who want more to do and have time on their hands."

Kosel's committee is considering many recreational projects, not only in the area of senior citizens but in the areas of youngsters and teens. His committee is open for ideas and suggestions from the public.

Kruta Named To Adjustment Panel As Third Member

Appointment of the third member for the adjustment panel meeting to consider Thief River Falls school board and teachers' council salary proposals has been made by Hon. Warren A. Saetre, Warren, district judge.

Jaroslav Kruta, former Warren attorney and now practicing law in Red Lake Falls, was appointed by Judge Saetre. School board, negotiating council and the other panel members were notified of the appointment by letters from the judge.

Kruta joins A. J. Kramer of Roseau, the teachers' council representative, and S. D. Johnson of Fosston, the school board's representative on the panel. The three members will now meet for fact-finding sessions prior to issuance of findings of fact and recommendations for settlement. Decisions of the panel are not binding on either the school board or the teachers.

According to the office of Supt. L. M. Johnson, 18 of the district's teachers have signed and returned contracts for the coming year. Contracts were issued on the last offer made by the board, showing a $150 annual increase on all salary lanes except BA and BA plus 15 credits. Only two resignations have been accepted by the board of education.

Filings are now open for positions on the board of education with the terms of Dr. George Martin, Mervin Prestebak and Charles Samuelson expiring. No filings have yet been received, from either incumbents or other candidates, for the three-year terms. Filings opened on April 3 and will close on Tuesday, April 27. Annual school election will be held May 18.

C of C General Meeting Slated Tuesday Night

General membership meeting of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce will be held Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Elks club rooms. Tickets have been mailed to members of the organization and those who have not purchased nor returned them are advised to do so immediately.

Main items on the agenda will be presentation of a slide and tape presentation that explains the fair credit reporting act passed by Congress last year, and presentation and discussion regarding the Diamond Jubilee parade September 18.

Credit bureau of Thief River Falls is making the slide and tape presentation available. The fair credit reporting act, which becomes effective April 25, guarantees certain consumer rights in the reporting of credit information about consumers to credit granters.

The fair credit reporting act, which becomes effective April 25, guarantees certain consumer rights in the reporting of credit information about consumers to credit granters.

The presentation is entitled "Living Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act," and was produced by Associated Credit Bureaus, Inc., leading trade association serving the credit bureau industry. Dennis Wojahn, manager of the local bureau, said that many of the consumer protections in the act were adapted from the credit bureau policies to protect consumer privacy, which have been standard operating procedures for ACB-affiliated credit bureaus.

Rep. Bergland To Visit T.R.F. On District Tour

Bob Bergland, seventh congressional district representative, will be in Thief River Falls Tuesday, April 13, as part of a 12 day return to Minnesota before returning to the nation's capital April 18, his Washington staff has announced.

He is scheduled to meet with various groups throughout the day in Thief River Falls and will attend a noon luncheon at the local country club. A limited number of tickets are available for this luncheon, according to Bob Kinsman, local liaison man for the first-term congressman.

Bergland's detailed schedule calls for him to tour Forsberg's at 10 a.m. He will meet with the Thief River Falls city council from 11 a.m. until noon and then have lunch at the country club.

He will remain at the club most of the afternoon, meeting at 1 p.m. with a group from Red Lake Falls to discuss the Huot dam project. At 1:30 he will meet with a group from Grygla.

There will be a coffee hour from 2 to 3 p.m. at the country club, during which Bergland will meet constituents. He will tour Arctic Enterprises at 3 p.m. and leave at 4 p.m. for Argyle where a "meet your congressman" session will take place in the high school multi-purpose room at 7:30.

On Wednesday Bergland was in Des Moines, Iowa, to address the National Association of Corn Growers.

He will spend Thursday in Alexandria, Moorhead, and East Grand Forks and will spend Friday, Saturday and Sunday at his home in Roseau.

He will meet with Roseau officials and groups Monday [illegible] afternoon and will be in Warroad later in the day. He will then travel to Williams and Baudette later in the afternoon and evening.

On Wednesday the congressman will be in Moorhead for radio and TV shows and will hold an open house at the Moorhead district office in the morning. He will spend Thursday in Fergus Falls, Alexandria, New York Mills, and Wadena.

Friday calls for Bergland to be in Long Prairie and Pine River. He will be in Park Rapids at noon on Saturday and will attend the Jefferson-Jackson day dinner in the Twin Cities that night.

Sport Show Emphasis On Boats and Cycles

Only a few feet of exhibit space remains unsold and it is expected that exhibits will be secured to utilize that space this week. That is the word on the Jaycee boat, sport and travel show to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 16, 17 and 18 at the new city arena in Thief River Falls.

John Vik, general chairman of the show, told the Times that much of the emphasis this year will be on boats and cycles.

"There will be campers and camping equipment, golf equipment and demonstrations, a tent display, films and entertainment," Vik said, "but the big news this year is boats and cycles. Several of our exhibitors deal in more than one type of outdoor equipment, and although the number of exhibitors is down from last year, we expect to have more exhibit space filled this year."

Vik said that Crookston Marine will be a welcome addition to the show this year and will help swing the emphasis to boats. In addition to boats, Crookston Marine will exhibit campers and other equipment.

Returning to the show this year with an even larger display than last year will be Vern's Outdoor Sports of Thief River Falls. Vern Adamson will show Silverline boats for 1971, camper units, the Arctic Cat minibike line and other items.

Greendale Manor will exhibit new models of campers in several different sizes and Thibert's Honda Sales from Red Lake Falls will show Honda and Yamaha cycles for 1971.

New to the show this year will be the Thief River Golf club display. A golf pro will be on hand to talk to local golfers, give advice on golfing equipment and tips for improving their games. A display from Agassiz National Wildlife refuge is also expected to add interest to the show, Vik noted.

Arrangements have been made to have a teen band play at the show on Sunday, April 18, and the Lincoln Swingers swing band from Lincoln high school is also scheduled for a performance. Plans are to show movies during the show for extra spectator appeal.

Hours of the boat, sports and travel show will be from 6 to 9 p.m. on Friday, April 16, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, April 17; and noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday, April 18. Admission will be $1 per family with a charge of 50 cents for children not accompanied by an adult.

MAMH Included In United Fund

In a monthly meeting Monday of the Thief River Falls United Fund, the board moved to include the "Minnesota Association for Mental Health" in the list of agencies it supports for the year 1971.

In a letter to the board from William McFadzean, president, he states: "According to most health experts, 10 per cent of the population experiences a mental health problem of some degree during their life. We are vitally concerned with this segment of society in Thief River Falls and Northwestern Minnesota.

"Of major importance to the Mental Health association is the delivery of community-based mental health service. We are actively supporting increased appropriations for the Northwestern mental health center so that the services of this facility and others in Minnesota may be expanded.

"We are also concerned with the care, treatment, and disposition of mentally ill persons from the Thief River Falls area who are patients at the Fergus Falls state hospital."

The MAMH spearheaded the passage of the Minnesota hospitalization and commitment act, which in effect changed the status of a person at a state hospital from that of an "inmate" to that of a "patient". This act became effective in January of 1968.

The MAMH also plans to continue sponsorship of police training schools with the Bureau of Criminal apprehension. These schools are mandatory for rookie policemen and they provide an introduction to basic human relations and advise officers on how to recognize and deal with persons who are mentally ill. Several officers from Thief River Falls have and will continue to benefit from this program.

The Mental Health association is not a direct service agency, the United Fund board notes. It is a social action organization which works on behalf of the mentally ill, the emotionally disturbed, and others who may become mentally ill. It also works to assure that adequate mental health services are available to everyone who wants and needs them, regardless of one's income, resources or lack of resources.

Farmers Favored In Ruling About Disaster Funds

U. S. Representative Bob Bergland announced in Washington Monday that the U. S. comptroller general has ruled in favor of farmers in an 11 county disaster area in Minnesota who were denied payments or received lesser payments after November 2.

The decision means that the Minnesota department of manpower services will review applications received after November 2 and make payments on the same basis as those made earlier.

The ruling was initiated when Bergland and the state's two senators learned that farmers with legitimate claims were not being paid as a result of regulation changes made November 2.

Day Care Center To Be Discussed

A day care center for children of working mothers will be discussed at a public meeting at 8 p.m. April 15 at Trinity Lutheran church.

The idea of a day care center was born after Ronald Mooers, director of the county welfare department, addressed a women's group at Trinity.

The meeting will form a board of directors to hire a staff, buy equipment and determine the amount to charge parents to keep the center running.

Tentative plans call for a day care center to provide opportunities not available at home for stimulating the imagination and intellect and to furnish active, supervised play.

The center would start with 30 children in the three to six year age group. It would open September 1 and the hours would be from 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The center would be in the parish building of one of the local churches.

The day care center would be administered by a paid director

Home Lumber To Build 22 Homes In New Addition

Plans for construction of 22 new homes valued at more than $400,000 were announced today by Norris Melander of Home Lumber company. Construction will take place in Southern addition this spring, he said.

Land for the new addition to Thief River Falls was acquired recently in the area of Crocker av. S. and Greendale boulevard in the southeast portion of the city. Numerous home designs and floor plans will be offered with no two exterior elevations alike.

Melander said the homes will be priced from approximately $18,400 to $34,200 and will be available with VA, FHA or conventional financing. Emphasis is being placed on FHA 235 plan financing where payments will range from approximately $110 per month including principal, interest, insurance and taxes.

In addition to being located near public schools, Melander said, the addition has all necessary utilities and municipal services.

Tips Given On Buying Ham For Easter Dinner

Serving ham for your Easter dinner?

Richard Epley, extension specialist in meats at the University of Minnesota, has some tips for consumers on selecting, cooking and serving cured and smoked hams.

First, he suggests that you read the label on the ham before you buy to be sure you'll get exactly what you want.

The three types of cured and smoked ham on the market are classified as "regular", "water added" or "moist ham," with water added up to 10 per cent of the uncured weight; and "imitation," which means that more than 10 per cent of uncured weight has been added in the form of moisture.

Ham may be purchased with the bone in or boneless—with all bone removed. Boned hams are usually wrapped in film or canned.

If you buy a half ham, you should check to see whether you are getting the shank half or the butt half. The butt half is closer to the loin, has less bone than the shank end but is also more expensive.

The label will also tell you whether you are getting a "fully cooked" or a "cook before eating" ham.

Fully cooked hams are ready to eat, but heating enhances the flavor. Heat only to 130 degrees internal temperature.

Epley emphasizes the importance of using a meat thermometer when baking ham. A "cook before eating" ham should be roasted to 160 degree F. internal temperature—or approximately 20 minutes per pound. Because the cooking time required will vary according to temperature of the meat, size and shape of the cut, amount of meat, fat and bone, a meat thermometer is the only reliable way of telling when the ham is done.

A boneless ham will provide about four servings per pound, a bone-in ham about three and a half servings per pound.

Before cooking, ham may be stored in the refrigerator for three to seven days, in the freezer for one to two months. An unopened canned ham will keep for several months in the refrigerator.

The university meats specialist adds this bit of advice: Once the ham has been cooked and served, get leftovers into the refrigerator as soon as possible to prevent spoiling.

Bonnie Habedank Is Finalist In Essay Contest

Bonnie Jo Habedank, Lincoln senior high school, has been named a finalist in the Thorp Loan and Thrift company's sixth annual scholarship competition.

Bonnie and nine other state high school seniors will now be judged on the basis of their written essay entries, academic standing and achievements by a committee of educators.

The two top winners will be announced in mid-April, according to Charles Lewis, Thorp branch manager in Thief River Falls, and each will receive a $1,000 scholarship to any Minnesota college or university accredited by the North Central association of colleges and secondary schools.

As a zone winner, Bonnie also qualifies as a recipient of a $25 U.S. savings bond. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Habedank, rt 3, Goodridge.

The competition was open to all Minnesota high school seniors who wrote on either of two topics: "How Can a Student Work Constructively Toward Changing Society?" or "What is the Value of Moral Standards?"

Mondale Proposes Adding Two More Rivers To Act

Minnesota's rivers, like her thousands of lakes, are a treasured natural resource of our state. And they too must be protected from abuse and preserved for future generations.

Realizing the need to preserve the nation's outstanding free-flowing rivers, Congress enacted the national wild and scenic river act of 1968—a measure that provides protection to rivers qualifying for inclusion in the act. Among other things, the act restricts land access to wild river to "trails or infrequent roads," and requires that facilities built on or near them "must harmonize with their surroundings."

Minnesota has more than a few rivers worthy of inclusion in the wild and scenic rivers act, and one, the Upper St. Croix, already has been included. It was my pleasure to co-author the bill that included the Upper St. Croix in the wild rivers system.

This year I am seeking to have two other Minnesota rivers designated for protection under the act. Late last month, Congressman John A. Blatnik joined me in introducing a bill that would include the Kettle river.

This month, I will introduce an additional bill urging Congress to designate the Big Fork a wild and scenic river.

Both these rivers—the Kettle in east-central Minnesota and the Big Fork in the state's north central wilderness—deserve to be afforded the protection of the wild and scenic rivers act. Both are magnificent rivers and both represent the history, geology and natural life of their respective areas.

Because these two rivers should be protected for future generations, I am hopeful that Congress will see fit to protect them under the Act.

The country's biggest movie house is Radio City Music Hall in New York. It can seat well over 6,000 persons.

Bergland Urges Youth Reps On Draft Boards

In a statement released by his Washington office Friday, U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland urged the Senate to retain provisions in the House passed Selective Service act which would allow any citizen over 18 years of age to serve on local draft boards. Without the change, the minimum age for board members would remain at 30.

Bergland said that "those who must carry the major burden of service in the armed forces have every right to a voice in local board policies. The law should recognize that right," he said. Bergland also said that the change "offers youth the opportunity to participate—within the system—in major government policy making decisions."

In what he termed as "one of the most difficult decisions of my life," Bergland voted on final House passage, for a two-year extension of the selective service act.

"I wanted an extension of only one year," he said, "to make the military annually accountable for their manpower needs and to give Congress time to consider the full implications of the proposed all-volunteer army." Efforts to limit the extension to one year failed by a vote of 200 to 198. "We were successful," Bergland noted "in exempting brothers of war casualties from the draft and releasing them if they are already in the service."

Among the amendments supported by Bergland which failed was one to prohibit the use of draftees in combat zones unless war had been declared by Congress or the United States was under attack. Bergland expressed hope that many of the amendments which lost in the House would be added in the Senate and that they would limit the extension to one year.

Gov. Anderson Supports Joycee "Honey Sundoy"

Governor Wendell Anderson this week proclaimed April 25 as Honey Sunday for the mentally retarded and urged all Minnesotans to participate in the observance.

Money is raised through requested donation of $1 in return for a 12-ounce squeeze bottle of Minnesota honey with a distinctive Honey Sunday label.

State Funds for 1971 are designated to rebuild the main lodge at Camp Friendship which was destroyed by fire in 1968. Camp Friendship was one of the first resident summer camps for the retarded in the nation and the first in Minnesota.

Some Schools Not Adhering To Law On Free Lunches

"Some Minnesota schools are not adhering to the full intent of the federal guidelines on free and reduced price lunches," said Howard B. Casmey, state education commissioner, in a memo mailed to state school superintendents Wednesday.

Casmey said that some children who are entitled to free lunches or reduced-price lunches without any strings attached are being required to perform lunchroom duties or are otherwise discriminated against.

"If a parent is willing to sign a statement that his income qualifies his child for free or reduced lunch prices, this statement shall be taken at face value," said the memo. "No child shall be required to perform additional duties as compensation for his lunch, or otherwise be discriminated against in any way.

"It is the policy of the state of Minnesota to see that the federal intent is implemented for every child affected," Casmey said. "The legislation was passed by Congress for one reason—to serve children."

Future audits by the U.S. department of agriculture—which provides commodities and aid for school lunch programs—will provide a safeguard against persons who falsify their incomes. Casmey said it is not the duty of local school administrators to investigate the validity of applications for free or reduced price lunches.

Children in a family of four, for example, are entitled to free school lunches if the family's current annual income is below $4,200 or below $350 for the past month. They are entitled to a reduced price lunch if their current annual income is under $4,800 or monthly income is under $400. Larger families may have higher incomes and still be eligible for free lunches.

The center would be a non-profit corporation, but self-sustaining in that parents would pay about $16 a week per child to pay for salaries, food and supplies.

Joan Allen, a representative of the state welfare department, will be at the meeting to answer questions and will also give information on licensing requirements.

The center would be licensed by the state, and the facility would have to meet standards required by the state. If the center was established, it would also probably care for kindergarteners at half the regular rate, and children in grades one through three could come after school at one-fourth the regular rate.

The center would provide a hot lunch every day and a snack morning and afternoon.

Potato Storage Warehouse Loan Made At Kennedy

Approval of a $450,000 loan to help finance a potato storage warehouse that will create employment opportunities in Kittson county was approved Tuesday in Chicago by Fred VanWremortel, regional director of the Economic Development administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Kennedy Improvements, Inc., of Kennedy is the applicant for the loan from the development agency.

The warehouse is leased to Northstar Packers, Inc., which will wash, grade and store potatoes for processing and freezing by Western Potato Service, Inc., of Grand Forks.

The two corporations are subsidiaries of J-S Industries, Inc., a major food processing firm.

Kennedy Improvements is an organization of business and professional leaders working to create new job opportunities and increase income in the area.

Local officials say the Kittson county facility will employ 83 persons when in full operation. In addition it is expected to help stabilize the potato market for area farmers, increase farm income and create jobs for farm laborers.

Private financing has been arranged for $137,500 for the warehouse. The Minnesota Area Redevelopment administration will invest $50,000 and Kennedy Improvements and Northwest Packers will provide $112,500 in equity capital to complete the $750,000 total cost.

The Economic Development administration loan is payable in 15 years at an annual interest rate of six per cent.

The warehouse has been in operation since October, 1970. It was constructed with short term financing from the development administration.

The Economic Development administration was established under the public works and economic development act of 1965 to encourage industrial and commercial growth in areas of the nation with severe unemployment problems.

The agency's programs also include public works grants and loans.

GS Neighborhood Meeting Airs Local Problems

Thirteen local Girl Scout leaders met in Thief River Falls Tuesday for the regular neighborhood meeting.

The nominating committee, Mrs. Orville Dahl, Mrs. Chester Aubol and Mrs. Tom Gustafson, reported they are seeking additional volunteers to work with Girl Scouts here. People are needed to assist in art, music, first aid and safety programs, as well as serving as troop leaders and consultants.

Anyone wishing to volunteer is asked to contact one of the committee members.

Mrs. Dwight Thrall and Mrs. Arne Espeseth gave leaders information on the upcoming rummage sale, and Mrs. Orville Dahl reported that sales of Girl Scout cookies will begin soon.

Girl Scouts are able to earn camperships by selling boxes of cookies. This is then applied to registration at Hiawatha summer camp, near Leonard.

Leaders not present at the meeting are asked to contact Mrs. Wally Shedean and tell her what they have planned for their scouts in the coming year. Scouts should check the Times for information on the April 18 swimming party.

Legion District Aerial Roundup Set April 24th

District Commanders of the 10 American Legion Districts in Minnesota, along with their district membership teams, will fly around their districts and on to Crystal Airport, Crystal, on April 24 in the 29th Annual Clarence Kinck aerial roundup of membership in the Minnesota American Legion, according to Milo Blanich, Crosby, state commander.

"We are hopeful that this annual event will carry our membership in the American Legion to over 111,000 in Minnesota, surpassing the [illegible] membership and establishing the seventh year in a row of continued growth of The American Legion," Blanich stated.

"Just over one out of every four veterans in Minnesota who are eligible for membership are members of the American Legion," according to current figures released by the Veterans administration on the total number of veterans in Minnesota. We are justly proud of our continued advance in membership and all the fields of endeavor the American Legion takes a part in," Blanich remarked.

"A viable organization, comprised of veterans who have served their country in time of national conflict, the American Legion is larger than all the other veterans' organizations put together combining the veterans of four conflicts, WWI, WWII, Korea and Vietnam. Approximately 12 per cent of the membership are veterans of the Vietnam era conflict adding their voices to the councils of the American Legion in a common cause, concern for our fellow veterans, their widows and orphans, the youth of our nation and the continued service to the community, state and nation that have been the goals of the American Legion for 52 years," Blanich concluded.

Most heart attack victims now recover from their first attacks and three out of four who do are able to return to work, Minnesota Heart association reports.

Cow From Muzzy Herd Classified As "Excellent"

Daleford Master Elsie 6358211, a registered Holstein cow owned by James R. Muzzy, Thief River Falls, has been officially classified "Excellent" - the highest designation attainable in the type classification program of the Holstein-Friesian association of America.

This highly select designation is applied only to animals scoring 90 or more of the 100 points representing theoretical perfection in body conformation. Of over 99,350 registered Holsteins officially classified for type last year, only 1,515 were rated Excellent.

This animal moved into the Excellent bracket at 91 points for the first time during a recent classification of the herd by an official classifier on the staff of the national Holstein organization. Animals scored Excellent in previous programs are not included in this listing.

The classification program - in continuous operation since 1929 - provides a universally-recognized method of comparing the conformation of living animals with that of the true-type Holstein cow or bull. Participation is currently at an all-time high level.

Dun & Bradstreet Credit Rating Symbols Change

A comprehensive change in Dun & Bradstreet's system of credit rating key symbols that will result in new rating designations for all of the 195 commercial businesses in Pennington county reported by D & B has been announced by J. F. Anderson, district manager of the Minneapolis office. The changeover, which will become effective May 1, simplifies the present rating key system.

Anderson also noted that Dun & Bradstreet has sent requests for financial statements to the almost three million businesses whose ratings appear in the reference book. The statements are mailed to all commercial businesses, regardless of size, and are a part of the reports issued by the business information company.

The D & B rating key, in use for 100 years, has two parts—estimated financial strength, designated by letters, and composite credit appraisal, designated by numbers.

The new credit rating key will differ from the present one in several respects. Because of the expanding economy, the previous highest financial strength rating of "over $1-million" will be increased to an "over $50-million" bracket, with "$10-million to $50-million" and "$1-million to $10-million" intermediate steps. At the same time, the lowest bracket, "up to $3,000" will be eliminated. The new bottom financial bracket will be "up to $5,000".

Today, there are over 62,000 companies, including branches, across the country that fall into the new over-$1-million categories. They include 22,048 of 5A size, 12,068 of 4A size and 28,019 in the 3A category.

Under the present ratings, composite credit appraisals of either High, Good, Fair or Limited are indicated by different numbers—sometimes fractions—running from one down to 4½ depending on the size of businesses. The new system will use simply the numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4 to indicate credit designations of High, Good, Fair and Limited.

One effect of the change, Anderson noted, is the demise of the "triple A-1" rating, written as "AaA-1", which for decades has stood for the highest D & B rating. As of the May 1 edition, 5A-1 will be the highest designation possible. It stands for an estimated financial strength of over $50 million with a high composite financial appraisal.

Department of Economic Development

With the advent of spring, amateur geologists will be gathering up their specimen bags and rock hammers in preparation for another season of rock and mineral collecting.

Any few places can match Minnesota as a prime spot for such activity. Almost every geological process known has occurred in this state at one time or another—lava flows, uplifting of mountains, inundations by the sea, advance of retreat of glaciers.

The result has been a landscape rich in scenery and variation, containing rocks, minerals, and fossils in varieties plentiful enough to keep any rockhound happy for years.

Nearly everyone has gone "agate-hunting" at some time or other. These plentiful, gem-like rocks are only one of many types that can be cut and polished, however. Some others are jasper, silkstone, binghamite, thomsonite, granite and marble.

Other mineral formations may not be cut and polished, but can make up a colorful, fascinating collection. Most of these can be found in the mines and dumps of Minnesota's iron ranges—one of the last areas in the United States where rockhounds have the freedom of unrestricted exploration.

The best way to get started on this fascinating hobby—an activity that children love, incidentally—is to contact a local rockhound club, of which there are a couple of dozen in Minnesota.

The State of Minnesota also has a free brochure on the subject available, which may be obtained by writing Vacation Information, 51 East 8th Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101. The colorful publication describes the minerals, shows where they are found and contains a partial listing of gem and mineral—or rockhound—clubs.

Developing an eye for rocks and minerals can add a great deal of pleasure to those summertime outings and hikes. It also provides interesting diversions on camping trips and a greater appreciation of nature for the youngsters.

Jehovah Witness Convention Held At Blackduck

"This is the age of rebellion. Youths rebel against parental authority, wives against husbands and on a broader scale people rebel against school authorities, police and government policies. There is wide spread resistance to or open rebellion against 'the Establishment', the established order of society. This spirit is so wide spread that it touches everyone to some degree."

These were statements taken from the public address entitled, "What Is Behind The Spirit Of Rebellion?", which was the high point of the three-day circuit assembly of Jehovah's witnesses held this past weekend in Blackduck.

According to the speaker, Wayne M. Knott, district supervisor of Jehovah's witnesses, "Sometimes those in rebellion are sincere—moved by injustices and problems. On the other hand, many youths rebel against parents and authorities because they desire their own way or are influenced by sinful inclinations. Whether sincere or selfish, rebellion has failed to solve man's basic problems and should be shunned because it is condemned in God's Word."

Knott further stated, "The real answer lies in God's kingdom. Jehovah's witnesses do not promote 'the Establishment' but also they do not rebel against a 'superior authority', thus avoiding rebellion against God by not opposing an arrangement that He permits. This has proved to be the most practical and peaceful way of life today. Jehovah's witnesses have already overcome many of mankind's problems such as race, materialism, family breakdown and war."

According to convention officials, the theme, "Implanting The Word", was carefully chosen and woven throughout the assembly program to highlight the Bible's command to effectively teach.

E. J. SHUKLE, Red Lake Falls, currently the vocational program director for the vocational education center of Polk and Red Lake counties and program coordinator of the Northwest Minnesota Educational Research and Development council, has accepted a position as director of a new vocational education center covering nine schools in the Hutchinson, Minn., area. He will assume the new duties July 1.

Bell To Install Four Millionth Phone Thursday

Northwestern Bell Telephone company will install its four millionth telephone somewhere in Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota or South Dakota Thursday.

President Thomas S. Nurnberger said the communications firm will have no way of knowing which particular phone will be the fourth million because installations go on simultaneously in the five-state area.

"We installed our one millionth phone in 1943, our two millionth in 1956 and our three millionth in 1965," he said. "From the time the telephone was invented in 1876, it took 80 years to reach half of today's total and only 15 years for the second two million."

(In Minnesota, the one millionth Bell phone was installed in 1959. Today, the company has more than 1,810,000 phones in service in the state and it expects to reach the two millionth early in 1973.)

Northwestern Bell and its nearly 27,000 employees provide telecommunications services to some 600 communities and the company has more than $2 billion invested in telephone facilities.

Along with the increase in telephones and facilities has come a diversification of services. Today, telephone circuits carry not only conversations but such things as data transmissions, radio and television broadcasts as well as specialized transmissions for medical, defense, law enforcement and other needs.

Women Protect More Than Hearts If Quit Smoking

Women protect more than just their own hearts and health when they give up cigarettes, according to Minnesota Heart association.

Citing a major study in Great Britain, the association says there is new evidence that mothers who smoke face a significantly greater risk in stillbirth, or death of babies shortly after birth, than do nonsmoking mothers. The study revealed that smoking during pregnancy harms the fetus by exerting a retarding influence on its growth.

In another test of more than 2,000 mothers during a one-year period in the state of Washington, there was a higher incidence of miscarriages, still births, newborn deaths and premature labor among women who smoked than among nonsmokers, adds Minnesota Heart association.

But according to Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld, surgeon general of the United States public health service, women have not been giving up the cigarette habit in as great numbers as have men. Dr. Steinfeld also has cited evidence that women have more trouble quitting than do men. The relapse rate of women who go back to tobacco is 38 per cent higher than that of men.

In the past four years alone about 10 million Americans have given up cigarettes, but women account for only 300,000 of this total. It is additionally estimated that the number of women in this country who presently do smoke cigarettes is about 20 million.

The 10 million who have been able to quit stand as proof, says Minnesota Heart association, that the effort is not as difficult as some make it sound. It can be made easier if done in a group with friends, or with the help of such organizations as the Heart association.

Among the material on smoking and health available from Minnesota Heart association are "Cigarette Quiz," "What Everyone Should Know About Smoking and Heart Disease," and "How to Stop Smoking." The latter can be used along with five half hour films on smoking withdrawal, which can be made available for group viewing.

Minnesota Heart association will not only help you give up smoking, but will help you to understand and to change other habits to lower your risk of heart disease. These risk factors include high blood pressure, a diet high in animal fats and cholesterol, lack of regular exercise, excess weight and the influence of diseases such as diabetes.

U.S. Fertilizer Industry Expects Ample Production

United States fertilizer industry has enough production capacity to meet the farmers' expected needs during 1971. Even so, weather and transportation problems may cause temporary shortages of fertilizer products during the spring season.

The farmer is expected to pay about 10 per cent more for his fertilizer in 1971 than he paid in 1970. Fertilizer prices had been declining for several years. They "bottomed out" in 1969, and increased a bit during 1970. The additional 19 per cent increase is expected this year.

These are the findings of a report prepared by the economic research service of U.S. department of agriculture. The report is entitled "Fertilizer Situation", and describes trends in U.S. production and consumption of fertilizers.

The study found that production capacity is sufficient to provide U.S. farmers with their requirements for all three primary plant nutrients—nitrogen, phosphate and potash. Much of the U.S. potash requirements will be furnished from Canada.

Despite the adequate production capacities, delays and bad weather may prevent prompt deliveries to the farmers during the peak spring season. Thus the farmers are encouraged to take delivery of fertilizer early in the season.

The report cites rising costs of raw materials, labor and transportation as factors contributing to the higher prices. For example, ammonia supplies about nine-tenths of all fertilizer nitrogen, and the leading raw material for the manufacture of ammonia is natural gas. Prices of natural gas are going up and spot shortages will probably develop.

Rail freight rates have been increased for fertilizers four times within the past two years. Motor freight rates are also higher and labor costs are rising. These increased costs will generally be reflected in the product prices.

Support Develops For Freeze On Property Taxes

Statewide support is developing for a "freeze" on property taxes and a cut in spending at the state as well as the local level of government, according to Charles P. Stone, executive director of the Minnesota Taxpayers association.

Stung by sharp increases in their freshly received real estate tax statements for 1971, the "folks back home" are telling their state legislators—angrily in some cases—where they stand on questions of public spending and taxes, Stone said.

"The message is coming through loud and clear to members of both House and Senate, on both sides of the political aisle, that Minnesotans have reached the breaking point on taxation," Stone said. He noted that taxpayer resentment "is not limited to real estate taxes, but rather is an across-the-board feeling that all taxes in Minnesota are high enough or even too high."

"This became evident last Thursday evening at a joint House and Senate tax committee hearing on a bill to freeze all local government spending at or below 1970 levels," Stone said. "More than 1,400 men and women from all over the state crowded into the St. Paul Armory.

"They made it quite plain that they don't think a local government spending 'freeze' is enough, that there should be an actual cut-back at the state as well as at the local level."

The mushrooming demand for retrenchment in public spending and taxation "is having its effect on many of the state's lawmakers," Stone said. "More and more of them are voicing agreement with the need for a two-year moratorium on new spending programs or activities, of freezing the number of state positions at current levels and leaving unfilled any job vacancies occurring during the coming biennium, and of imposing tax levy limitations on counties, cities, villages and school districts."

Negotiations On Bell Contracts Began Thursday

Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO representing over 20,000 Northwestern Bell Telephone company employees in the states of Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, started contract negotiations in Omaha, Neb., Thursday. The present three-year contract will expire at midnight, April 30.

D. K. Gordon, vice president of District 7, stated "that the cost of living has skyrocketed 17.7 per cent since the current contract was negotiated in 1968. Also, in the Bell system productivity has increased 5.5 per cent on an annual basis."

The union's proposals will provide for a substantial general wage increase, improved health insurance, pensions, job upgrades and many items involving local working conditions. A number of phone company employees in Thief River Falls will be affected.

All CWA local officers recently attended a special CWA convention in Denver, Colo., which was tied directly to these negotiations, including strike preparation and use of the Union's $14,000,000 defense fund.

Permits Needed To Kill Weeds

Although the ice isn't even out of Minnesota lakes this spring, the Department of Natural Resources is already receiving requests for aquatic weed control permits from lakeshore owners.

Weed control regulations are essentially the same as last year, said a spokesman for the Department's technical services section, but changes could be made at any time if new regulations are issued from Washington banning use of certain chemicals.

State regulations prohibit the use of sodium arsenite. Although this chemical is the only one presently under an outright ban, the Department may refuse to allow the use of certain other chemicals on a specific project because of their expected adverse affects on fish or wildlife.

No chemicals may be placed in lakes or streams without a permit from the Department but lakeshore owners may do a limited amount of weed cutting without a permit.

The cutting is limited to no more than 2,500 square feet including a maximum of 50 feet along the shore or half the frontage of the owners property, whichever is least.

Any weeds that are cut must be removed from the water.

Copies of the regulations can be obtained by contacting the Department of Natural Resources, Technical Services Section, Division of Game and Fish, Centennial Building, St. Paul.

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

The regional planning act of 1969 was one of the most controversial acts passed by the last session of the legislature. Senate File 60 and Senate File 526 are bills amending the regional planning act. Both have been passed by the Senate and are in the House local government committee.

Senate File 60 was amended considerably in the Senate and the amendments were developed after consultation with Dan Holtz, the township officers' legislative representative; Ralph Keyes, the county association legislative representative; and a number of legislators.

In summary, Senate File 60 repeals the power of the governor or state planning officer to set up a commission without the necessary petitions from the local units of government. It requires a public hearing with notice to interested parties before the adoption of a budget by a commission. It also allows the commission to prescribe the size of the board of directors and it removes the restriction that no more than six members of the board could be elected officials. There are some other minor changes.

This bill in its present form has removed most of the objections to the regional act but may be amended further before it is finally passed.

Senate File 526 provides for one township officer from each county on the commission. This was only slightly controversial in the Senate and there was only one vote against the bill. The vote on Senate File 60 was 64-0. The vote on Senate File 526 was 63-1.

Two major bills were passed out of the House transportation committee last week, dealing with the diverse subjects of car licensing and borrow pits.

The committee gave a surprisingly strong and early endorsement to a bill to place car license fees on the basis of the value of the car. These fees are now based on the car's weight and age.

The new system will make license fees much more closely related to the owner's ability to pay, since it would end the practice of having a higher fee for an older station wagon than for a new lightweight sports car. The changeover to the value system will also make license fees deductible on federal income tax returns for the first time. This bill will now go before the appropriations committee for their consideration and if approved there it will go the floor of the House.

A considerably more controversial measure was a proposal to give the commissioner of highways authority to condemn land needed for borrow material. "Borrow material" is earth material, such as topsoil, needed to build up roadbeds when the regular base is inadequate for construction purposes.

The controversy arose some months ago when the Highway Department withdrew several projects from competitive bidding because a few contractors had tied up the borrow pits on either side of the project with excessive leases. The department decided that this near-monopoly of borrow sources jeopardized competitive bidding, and that a failure to withdraw the projects would in effect condone this practice.

The proposal which the committee finally approved gives the highway department the same authority which other road authorities have to condemn lands needed for borrow purposes, except that the Department is effectively prohibited from taking commercial sand or gravel sources. Department representatives testified that this new authority would be used to obtain non-exclusive leases on borrow sources which would eventually be turned over the contractor awarded the project.

In my opinion this bill gives the department too much power but the committee voted decisively to recommend it for passage.

"CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE", granite obelisk carved in 1600 B.C. was moved from Egypt to New York's Central Park in 1882.

88 YEARS of exposure to polluted air of New York did more damage to the obelisk--eating off heiroglyphics on one side--than was done in the 3,500 YEARS it stood in Egypt.

TO AVOID health hazards of air pollution more and more home owners are turning to mechanical filtration of air and electronic air cleaning to purify air inside their homes.

Industry Growth In 1970 Highest In Rural Areas

Minnesota industry invested more than $372 million in new and expanded facilities during 1970—a record figure, according to Thomas T. Feeney, acting commissioner, Minnesota department of economic development.

New industry accounted for an expenditure of nearly $173 million while expansion of existing industry totaled almost $266 million. New and expanded manufacturing facilities accounted for the bulk of the expenditures. Power plants, warehousing, research and development facilities comprised the remainder.

Significantly, the rural sector of Minnesota—those areas outside Duluth and the seven county Twin Cities metropolitan area—accounted for nearly 76 per cent of the total investment, and over 60 per cent of the investment in expanded facilities.

These investments created approximately 7,400 new jobs in Minnesota during 1970 most of them, again, in rural Minnesota. The number of new jobs, however, was down from the 15,000 reported for the previous year.

Industrial investment in the state's rural areas exceeded all previous years with the most jobs being created by the electrical machinery and electronics-oriented industries.

U.S. Steel represented the largest single investment with over $100 million in expanded taconite production facilities in northeastern Minnesota. Next largest expenditure was at Minnesota Power and Light company's new $68 million Cohasset generating plant. Investments in warehouse type facilities were over $65-million—an increase of more than 100 per cent from 1969.

PLAY BY PLAY ON SPORTS

with Mike Lundgren

"It's a long ways from Ray Scott, Herb Carneal and Halsey Hall," said Andy Lia.

Lia and Don Howe are both announcers for KTRF radio in Thief River Falls and both have experience in play by play of high school sporting events.

"We've done games from the top of buildings, the sidelines, from the car, back of a pick-up truck and from the bleachers," Lia replied.

"The worst time I had though was when I was broadcasting for a Brainerd station at Crosby-Irontan during a football game when I was seated about 75 feet in the air, on a two-by-four between two light poles with my feet dangling over the edge," Lia reported. "It was freezing up there and I couldn't climb down at halftime or else I wouldn't have been able to get back up there." "If I would have fallen backwards I would have landed on the fans and by slipping forward I would have hit the other poles."

Don Howe's very first attempt at doing a play by play broadcast was for the same Brainerd station. "As the game progressed it got harder and harder for me to see because things were really getting dark," Howe said. "I thought I'd have to let my partner take over in the second half because I wasn't able to see very much, but then at halftime I realized I had been wearing my new prescription sun-glasses instead of my normal glasses." "I took the shades off and I could see perfectly the rest of the game," Howe continued.

"The most frustrating experience a play by play announcer can have is to be all set to begin the broadcast and then realize the players' numbers don't correspond with the program you're using, especially in football," Howe related, "and that has happened a number of times."

Both men have had their share of set-backs while on their jobs. Howe once locked his car with all his broadcasting equipment inside the vehicle with the key left in the ignition during a rainstorm at Fergus Falls before a football game. Lia has followed snowplows to and from games and has suffered many flat tires, one time being forced to hitchhike back to Brainerd when he found he wasn't packing a spare and missed the first portion of a ball game, "but," replied Lia rather proudly, "I have never missed a game yet!."

Both announcers have had boisterous fans sitting near them while trying to cover the events and Lia once had to omit a post game wrap-up of a contest at Staples when a fight broke out between the adult fans which forced him to give an early end to his broadcast.

"Kids are always going past and yelling," said Lia while Don Howe has had several experiences with the presence of fans and cheerleaders standing between himself and the action.

Another experience Andy Lia related was when he was doing a play by play of a Park Rapids-Frazee basketball game when the official scorers became confused when their book didn't match the scoreboard so they came over and checked Lia's book and went by that score.

"There are a lot of little things that can go wrong during a broadcast," says Howe, "but the hardest thing to do is to stay impartial during the games." "The people listening on the radio at home expect an announcer to be impartial and not comment on certain things such as un-called fouls and poor play by the athletes," Howe stated.

The two announcers grew up together in Detroit Lakes where they played basketball under former University of Minnesota coach George Hanson. The pair graduated from Brown Institute in Minneapolis where Lia practiced doing play by play of the St. Paul Saints and Minneapolis Millers games.

Name Omitted In Swimming Story

The name of Mark Metusalem was inadvertently omitted as one of the Lincoln high school swimmers who received athletic letters in a story in Monday's edition of the Times.

The swimmer was not present at the time of the photograph at the banquet Friday night. There were nine Lincoln students who earned a TRF letter in swimming this season.

American Legion Baseball Will Begin 46th Year

With the 45th Annual American Legion State Baseball Tournament, a ten team double-elimination event, scheduled for August 14-17, 1971 at Moorhead, Minnesota, the 1971 American Legion baseball season planning is well under way in the ten American Legion districts in Minnesota.

Anticipating over 260 teams registering in the authorized program for 1971, the ten districts are holding meetings, establishing their circuits for league play, and the dates and locations of the district tournaments that will produce the champions for the state tournament.

The oldest organized youth baseball program in the state, and the largest, the program continues to provide supervised play for young men in the great game of baseball. Backing up the American Legion teams that play in the registered program are hundreds of teams that are sponsored by local American Legion posts for younger players in local programs. It is estimated that over 14,000 boys will be playing baseball under the two programs and American Legion sponsorship in Minnesota in 1971.

THE SEVENTH INNING STRETCH WAS INVENTED IN 1860!!!!

The Minnesota state champions will advance to the seven team double-elimination regional tournament at Williston, North Dakota against the champions of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and the host team on August 25-30, 1971.

The eight regional champions will advance to a double-elimination World Series of American Legion baseball at Tucson, Arizona on September 2-7, 1971 to name the National Champion of American Legion baseball.

Smelt Will Run About April 20, Department Says

Department of Natural Resources said today it is already receiving calls inquiring about the prospects for smelt fishing.

Department records show that the smelt run usually begins about April 20 and reaches its peak between the 25th and 28th.

Smelt fishing regulations are the same as last year, said Hjalmar Swenson, state fisheries supervisor.

Smelt may be taken with dip nets or with seines not more than 25 feet in length or more than four feet in width. Seines may be used only in the lake, however, and not in the streams, nor within 100 feet of the mouth of any stream. The only exception to this rule is the St. Louis river where seines may be used both in the stream and at its mouth.

It is unlawful to transport live smelt anywhere in the state. Smelt have been discovered in a few inland lakes in recent years, apparently as a result of some illegal stocking by a few smelt fishermen. Swenson warned that in some lakes smelt could have an adverse effect on sport fishing.

Smelt fishermen must have an angling license, but there is no limit on the number of smelt which may be taken and they can be bought or sold at any time.

The law requires a peddler's license of anyone who uses a motor vehicle in his fish sales business.

The Department of Agriculture also insists that persons who sell smelt comply with the Minnesota pure food laws. Violations will lead to seizure of the fish and prosecution of the offender.

Swenson asked smelt fishermen to keep their fishing sites free of litter. He said state laws, explained on page 4 of the 1971 fishing synopsis, make it unlawful to deposit garbage, rubbish or offal in public waters or on public lands.

Nearly one million pounds of smelt are taken in commercial nets from Minnesota waters of Lake Superior each year. Swenson said it was difficult to estimate the amount of smelt taken by sport fishermen, but the figure probably exceeds several hundred thousand pounds.

Fish Stocking Ban Explained

Some persons may not understand why the law forbids the stocking of fish in Minnesota lakes and streams except by the Department of Natural Resources or those authorized by the Department.

One of the main reasons was illustrated a few weeks ago in a western state when fish disease got started in a trout hatchery and virtually wiped out all the fish being raised for stocking this year.

There is always the danger that fish bearing a disease will be stocked in a stream or lake and transmit the infection to fish already there-with disasterous consequences.

Another reason for the probition is possible stocking of fish which would multiply and crowd out more desirable species. A classic example of this in Minnesota is the carp.

Experience with the carp and also some early stocking mistakes with small mouth bass and walleyes in lake trout waters have made Department fisheries workers extremely wary of proposals to stock some species where they might compete with more desirable fishes.

Basketball star Phil Jackson was also a standout on the baseball diamond for the University of North Dakota as he struck out 74 batters as a UND pitcher during the 1966 season.

Harold (Pinky) Kraft is the head baseball coach at the University of North Dakota.

Track Squad Will Run In Shanley Invitational

Jim Sims' Lincoln high school track squad will have an earlier than anticipated start of their 1971 season when the Prowlers compete in the Shanley Invitational Saturday, April 10, at 1:30.

Twenty top schools from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and North Dakota will run in the event which will be held in the North Dakota state university fieldhouse. The field events will begin at 1:30 with the preliminary races starting at 2 p.m. and the finals set for 7 p.m.

"We're real happy with the opportunity to run with the best and it will be good for us," said Sims. "Other area teams entered are East Grand Forks and Moorhead and the Spuds will be tough, they've won the state a couple of times and have a great program," Sims added.

Each school can enter three athletes per event and each individual may enter up to four events in the Shanley meet.

Sims said he would go with the following line-up for the season's first meet:

Junior Steve Beich, sophomore Marko Hanson and freshman Dave Trickle will be entered in the 60-yard dash while senior Rick Larson, junior Doug Aaseby and sophomore Jon Wangberg will compete in the 60-yard high hurdles.

Senior Kim Murphy and juniors Greg Duiger and Mike Engelstad will be entered in the mile run while Don Reierson, Jon Folkedahl and Tim Strand, all juniors, will run the two-mile event.

In the 440-yard dash Sims will enter an all sophomore unit of Mark Hamerlinck, Mike Drury and Jon Markstrom. The 60-yard low hurdles will be manned by Aaseby, Wangberg and Larson.

The [illegible]-yard run will find a junior line-up of Paul Battleson, Mike Fitzgerald and Hande Smith. Hanson, Wangberg and Beich will compete in the 220-yard dash.

The 880-yard relay team will be composed of Beich, Wangberg, Fitzgerald and Hanson while the mile relay event will be run by Hamerlinck, Markstrom, Battleson and Smith.

The Prowler thinclads will compete in the Dragon Indoor meet Wednesday, April 14, and will run their first home meet April 27 at the Prowler athletic field against the Bemidji Lumberjacks.

PROWLER TRACK coach Jim Sims will lead his team into their first meet of the 1971 season Saturday when the Lincoln cindermen compete in the Shanley (N.D.) Invitational in the North Dakota state University fieldhouse. Sims, who is assisted by Marv Walter and Quentin Jones, is in his fourth season as the head track coach at Lincoln. Twenty teams will be entered in the Shanley event and on April 14 the Prowlers will run in the Dragon Indoor meet where over 600 athletes will compete.

Crookston Tech Adds Hockey To Athletic Program

Hockey will be added next fall to the intercollegiate athletic program at the University of Minnesota Technical College, Crookston. Announcement of this addition to the major sports program at the college was made by H. H. Lysaker, athletic director, this week.

At the present time, Lysaker said, the athletic department is busy interviewing student athletes who are considered good hockey prospects.

"Any young man interested in starting college and participating in the hockey program should write the Office of Admissions for the necessary enrollment materials," he explained.

UMC is the only two-year college in Minnesota that competes in all major sports, Lysaker stated. The school is represented in intercollegiate competition by teams in football, cross country, basketball, wrestling, track, baseball, tennis, and golf. There is also a strong intramural program.

Though it is only five years old, Trojan teams have won the conference football title once and the basketball title twice. The college is a member of the National Junior College Athletic Assn. and participates in the Northern Minnesota JC conference and Region 13 activities. Region 13 includes two-year colleges from Upper Michigan, northern Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Montana.

Two members of the 1971 University of North Dakota baseball team—infielder Gary Royal and pitcher Tom Tunberg—had straight A grades in the first semester of 1970-71 school year.

Corey Colehour, former standout University of North Dakota quarterback (1964-66), who played three years of pro football, is an assistant football coach at his Alma Mater.

No Moose Season For Minn. Yet

Department of Natural Resources reported today that it's receiving dozens of requests for moose hunting applications from hunters who think the bill has passed the legislature.

Dave Vesall, Supervisor of Game, said the moose season bill has not been passed by the legislature yet.

"The bill authorizing the Department to conduct a moose season has passed the House, but, as of March 29, has not been heard in the Senate," said Vesall.

"If the bill passes, we will announce the method by which moose hunting applications will be distributed and how hunters will be selected for the limited hunt."

Gov. Anderson Defends Income Tax Proposal

Governor Wendell Anderson has released state tax department figures which show that the property tax reductions under his budget will more than offset income tax increases for the vast majority of Minnesota's 840,000 homeowners.

"The figures are dramatic," the governor said.

"They show that a family of four, living in a typical home, must have a gross income of $16,000 before it pays more in income taxes than it realizes through lower property taxes."

Anderson noted he has recommended higher taxes on cigarettes, liquor, on persons in upper income brackets, and in some other areas.

"But the truth is that when you measure the amount taken out of the taxpayer's pocketbook in both income and property taxes, that amount will be less in most cases than would be paid under the present tax structure," the governor said.

"Our primary goal is to reduce property taxes in every part of the state. Those taxes are intolerable and must be lowered.

"These figures show that our budget will do that, and much more, for most Minnesotans."

Arthur Roemer, state tax commissioner, said the figures prepared by his department take into account all changes proposed by the governor in the state's property and income tax structure.

Basic assumptions of the program include:

(1) That a typical home has a market value of 2½ times the gross income of the occupant. This is a standard rule-of-thumb calculation used by realtors.

(2) That all homeowners itemize their federal income tax returns. It is assumed that renters with taxable incomes of less than $10,000 do not itemize, while those with incomes of more than $10,000 do.

(3) That the average mill levy for all purposes in 1971, without the Anderson fair school financing plan, will be 375 mills, an increase of 15 per cent over the 1970 levy. The predicted average mill rate under the Anderson budget will 314 mills, a reduction of 61 mills.

(4) The 61 mills reduction combines both the reduction from existing levies and the prevention of the predicted 15 per cent increase in school levies. Since the 314 mill rate figure is an average, some homeowners will receive more benefit than projected, and some will receive less.

Once Around The Park, Please

Green Attends NFDA Meeting

"For most children in America, the death and funeral of a person is something they have heard about or seen only on TV or in the movies. While they may have suffered the loss of a pet, the majority of children today have not experienced the death of some person they love. When this situation does occur, it is important that the child be sympathetically guided toward an honest understanding of its real meaning."

This was the message William M. Lamers, Jr., M.D. of Kentland, Calif., gave to funeral directors attending the professional conference sponsored by the National Funeral Directors association held on March 20 and 30 in Minneapolis.

Among those participating was Orin J. Green of the Green Funeral home in Thief River Falls.

'U' Seeks Longer Time To Repay Building Loans

Increasing the length of time to repay loans on state-financed buildings would increase the amount of money available for immediate building needs and save on the costs of inflation in construction, University of Minnesota officials told the legislature recently.

Speaking to the building division of the House Appropriations committee, University President Malcolm Moos called for increasing the amortization period of state-financed building programs from 20 to 40 years.

This plan would not increase the average annual tax requirement for debt service but could increase the building appropriations to be made available by the current legislature by about $40 million, he said.

The estimate was based on the legislative building commission's recommendation for an appropriation of about $100 million over the next biennium, Moos said. About $35 million of that was recommended for the university.

"Because construction costs are rising about 12 per cent a year and state interest costs are in the area of five to six per cent, we would be unwise to defer construction we must undertake later," Moos told the legislators.

"We will get not only more use from buildings, but more dollar value from early construction," he said.

Minnesota's constitution limits state bonds to 20-year maturity, but Moos said there are no legal bars to refinancing. No authorizing legislation is needed, he added.

There is a precedent for such action, he said. "Twenty-year state bonds have been used to finance some state college union projects which have 38-year debt amortization commitments and will require refinancing."

Moos said enrollment projections show a plateau in the early 1980s and thus forecast a reduced building need in higher education at that time.

"By starting necessary buildings now, the structures would be built for earlier use and could be constructed more cheaply," Moos said. They could be paid off more rapidly at the time enrollment-related needs are lessened.

Moos said the university's most urgent building requests not met by the legislative building commission's recommendations are an $8 million humanities building and a $14 million law school.

These are buildings which will be needed at a future date and delaying construction would increase their costs, Moos said. He predicted that some $1.7 million in inflation costs could be saved in the law school alone by starting construction in 1972 rather than waiting until after the next legislative session.

Moos told the group that the plan would help the construction industry and boost employment in the building trades while bringing needed buildings into use from one to three years earlier than would otherwise be possible.

PLAY BY PLAY ON SPORTS

with Mike Lundgren

"It's a long ways from Ray Scott, Herb Carneal and Halsey Hall," said Andy Lia.

Lia and Don Howe are both announcers for KTRF radio in Thief River Falls and both have experience in play by play of high school sporting events.

"We've done games from the top of buildings, the sidelines, from the car, back of a pick-up truck and from the bleachers," Lia replied.

"The worst time I had though was when I was broadcasting for a Brainerd station at Crosby-Ironton during a football game when I was seated about 75 feet in the air, on a two-by-four between two light poles with my feet dangling over the edge," Lia reported. "It was freezing up there and I couldn't climb down at halftime or else I wouldn't have been able to get back up there."

"If I would have fallen backwards I would have landed on the fans and by slipping forward I would have hit the other poles."

Don Howe's very first attempt at doing a play by play broadcast was for the same Brainerd station. "As the game progressed it got harder and harder for me to see because things were really getting dark," Howe said. "I thought I'd have to let my partner take over in the second half because I wasn't able to see very much, but then at halftime I realized I had been wearing my new prescription sun-glasses instead of my normal glasses."

"I took the shades off and I could see perfectly the rest of the game," Howe continued.

"The most frustrating experience a play by play announcer can have is to be all set to begin the broadcast and then realize the players' numbers don't correspond with the program you're using, especially in football," Howe related, "and that has happened a number of times."

Both men have had their share of set-backs while on their jobs. Howe once locked his car with all his broadcasting equipment inside the vehicle with the key left in the ignition during a rainstorm at Fergus Falls before a football game. Lia has followed snowplows to and from games and has suffered many flat tires, one time being forced to hitchhike back to Brainerd when he found he wasn't packing a spare and missed the first portion of a ball game, "but," replied Lia rather proudly, "I have never missed a game yet!"

Both announcers have had boisterous fans sitting near them while trying to cover the events and Lia once had to omit a post game wrap up of a contest at Staples when a fight broke out between the adult fans which forced him to give an early end to his broadcast.

"Kids are always going past and yelling," said Lia while Don Howe has had several experiences with the presence of fans and cheerleaders standing between himself and the action.

Another experience Andy Lia related was when he was doing a play by play of a Park Rapids-Frazee basketball game when the official scorers became confused when their book didn't match the scoreboard so they came over and checked Lia's book and went by that score.

"There are a lot of little things that can go wrong during a broadcast," says Howe, "but the hardest thing to do is to stay impartial during the games." "The people listening on the radio at home expect an announcer to be impartial and not comment on certain things such as un-called fouls and poor play by the athletes," Howe stated.

The two announcers grew up together in Detroit Lakes where they played basketball under former University of Minnesota coach George Hanson. The pair graduated from Brown Institute in Minneapolis where Lia practiced doing play by play of the St. Paul Saints and Minneapolis Millers games.

American Legion Baseball Will Begin 46th Year

With the 46th Annual American Legion State Baseball Tournament, a ten team double-elimination event, scheduled for August 14-17, 1971 at Moorhead, Minnesota, the 1971 American Legion baseball season planning is well under way in the ten American Legion districts in Minnesota.

Anticipating over 260 teams registering in the authorized program for 1971, the ten districts are holding meetings, establishing their circuits for league play and the dates and locations of the district tournaments that will produce the champions for the state tournament.

The oldest organized youth baseball program in the state, and the largest, the program continues to provide supervised play for young men in the great game of baseball. Backing up the American Legion teams that play in the registered program are hundreds of teams that are sponsored by local American Legion posts for younger players in local programs. It is estimated that over 14,000 boys will be playing baseball under the two programs and American Legion sponsorship in Minnesota in 1971.

The Minnesota state champions will advance to the seven team double elimination regional tournament at Williston, North Dakota against the champions of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and the host team on August 25-30, 1971.

The eight regional champions will advance to a double-elimination World Series of American Legion baseball at Tucson, Arizona on September 2-7, 1971 to name the National Champion of American Legion baseball.

Smelt Will Run About April 20, Department Says

Department of Natural Resources said today it is already receiving calls inquiring about the prospects for smelt fishing.

Department records show that the smelt run usually begins about April 20 and reaches its peak between the 25th and 28th.

Smelt fishing regulations are the same as last year, said Hjalmar Swenson, state fisheries supervisor.

Smelt may be taken with dip nets or with seines not more than 25 feet in length or more than four feet in width. Seines may be used only in the lake, however, and not in the streams, nor within 100 feet of the mouth of any stream. The only exception to this rule is the St. Louis river where seines may be used both in the stream and at its mouth.

It is unlawful to transport live smelt anywhere in the state. Smelt have been discovered in a few inland lakes in recent years, apparently as a result of some illegal stocking by a few smelt fishermen. Swenson warned that in some lakes smelt could have an adverse effect on sport fishing.

Smelt fishermen must have an angling license, but there is no limit on the number of smelt which may be taken and they can be bought or sold at any time.

The law requires a peddler's license of anyone who uses a motor vehicle in his fish sales business.

The Department of Agriculture also insists that persons who sell smelt comply with the Minnesota pure food laws. Violations will lead to seizure of the fish and prosecution of the offender.

Swenson asked smelt fishermen to keep their fishing sites free of litter. He said state laws, explained on page 4 of the 1971 fishing synopsis, make it unlawful to deposit garbage, rubbish or offal in public waters or on public lands.

Nearly one million pounds of smelt are taken in commercial nets from Minnesota waters of Lake Superior each year. Swenson said it was difficult to estimate the amount of smelt taken by sport fishermen, but the figure probably exceeds several hundred thousand pounds.

Fish Stocking Ban Explained

Some persons may not understand why the law forbids the stocking of fish in Minnesota lakes and streams except by the Department of Natural Resources or those authorized by the Department.

One of the main reasons was illustrated a few weeks ago in a western state when fish disease got started in a trout hatchery and virtually wiped out all the fish being raised for stocking this year.

There is always the danger that fish bearing a disease will be stocked in a stream or lake and transmit the infection to fish already there with disastrous consequences.

Another reason for the prohibition is possible stocking of fish which could multiply and crowd out more desirable species. A classic example of this in Minnesota is the carp.

Experience with the carp and also some early stocking mistakes with small mouth bass and walleyes in lake trout waters have made Department fisheries workers extremely wary of proposals to stock some species where they might compete with more desirable fishes.

Basketball star Phil Jackson was also a standout on the baseball diamond for the University of North Dakota as he struck out 14 batters as a UND pitcher during the 1966 season.

Harold (Pinky) Kraft is the head baseball coach at the University of North Dakota.

Track Squad Will Run In Shanley Invitational

Jim Sims' Lincoln high school track squad will have an earlier than anticipated start of their 1971 season when the Prowlers compete in the Shanley Invitational Saturday, April 10, at 1:30.

Twenty top schools from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and North Dakota will run in the event which will be held in the North Dakota state university fieldhouse. The field events will begin at 1:30 with the preliminary races starting at 2 p.m. and the finals set for 7 p.m.

"We're real happy with the opportunity to run with the best and it will be good for us," said Sims. "Other area teams entered are East Grand Forks and Moorhead and the Spuds will be tough, they've won the state a couple of times and have a great program," Sims added.

Each school can enter three athletes per event and each individual may enter up to four events in the Shanley meet.

Sims said he would go with the following line-up for the season's first meet.

Junior Steve Beich, sophomore Mark Hanson and freshman Dave Trickle will be entered in the 60-yard dash while senior Rick Larson, junior Doug Anseby and sophomore Jon Wangberg will compete in the 60 yard high hurdles.

Senior Kim Murphy and juniors Greg Bulger and Mike Engelstad will be entered in the mile run while Dan Relerson, Jon Falkedahl and Tim Strand, all juniors, will run the two-mile event.

In the 440 yard dash Sims will enter an all sophomore unit of Mark Hamerlinck, Mike Drury and Jon Markstrom. The 60 yard low hurdles will be manned by Anseby, Wangberg and Larson.

The 880 yard run will find a junior line-up of Paul Battleson, Mike Fitzgerald and Ramie Smith. Hanson, Wangberg and Beich will compete in the 220 yard dash.

The 880 yard relay team will be composed of Beich, Wangberg, Fitzgerald and Hanson while the mile relay event will be run by Hamerlinck, Markstrom, Battleson and Smith.

The Prowler thinclads will compete in the Dragon Indoor meet Wednesday, April 14, and will run their first home meet April 27 at the Prowler athletic field against the Bemidji Lumberjacks.

PROWLER TRACK coach Jim Sims will lead his team into their first meet of the 1971 season Saturday when the Lincoln cindermen compete in the Shanley (N.D.) Invitational in the North Dakota state University fieldhouse. Sims, who is assisted by Marv Walter and Quentin Jones, is in his fourth season as the head track coach at Lincoln. Twenty teams will be entered in the Shanley event and on April 14 the Prowlers will run in the Dragon Indoor meet where over 600 athletes will compete.

No Moose Season For Minn. Yet

Department of Natural Resources reported today that it's receiving dozens of requests for moose hunting applications from hunters who think the bill has passed the legislature.

Dave Vesall, Supervisor of Game, said the moose season bill has not been passed by the legislature yet.

"The bill authorizing the Department to conduct a moose season has passed the House, but as of March 29, has not been heard in the Senate," said Vesall.

"If the bill passes, we will announce the method by which moose hunting applications will be distributed and how hunters will be selected for the limited hunt."

Crookston Tech Adds Hockey To Athletic Program

Hockey will be added next fall to the intercollegiate athletic program at the University of Minnesota Technical College, Crookston. Announcement of this addition to the major sports program at the college was made by H. H. Lysaker, athletic director, this week.

At the present time, Lysaker said, the athletic department is busy interviewing student athletes who are considered good hockey prospects.

"Any young man interested in starting college and participating in the hockey program should write the Office of Admissions for the necessary enrollment materials," he explained.

UMC is the only two-year college in Minnesota that competes in all major sports, Lysaker stated. The school is represented in intercollegiate competition by teams in football, cross country, basketball, wrestling, track, baseball, tennis, and golf. There is also a strong intramural program.

Though it is only five years old, Trojan teams have won the conference football title once and the basketball title twice. The college is a member of the National Junior College Athletic Assn. and participates in the Northern Minnesota JC conference and Region 13 activities. Region 13 includes two-year colleges from Upper Michigan, northern Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and Montana.

Two members of the 1971 University of North Dakota baseball team—infielder Gary Royal and pitcher Tom Tunberg—had straight A grades in the first semester of 1970-71 school year.

Corey Colehour, former standout University of North Dakota quarterback (1964-66), who played three years of pro football, is an assistant football coach at his Alma Mater.

Gov. Anderson Defends Income Tax Proposal

Governor Wendell Anderson has released state tax department figures which show that the property tax reductions under his budget will more than offset income tax increases for the vast majority of Minnesota's 840,000 homeowners.

"The figures are dramatic," the governor said.

"They show that a family of four, living in a typical home, must have a gross income of $16,000 before it pays more in income taxes than it realizes through lower property taxes."

Anderson noted he has recommended higher taxes on cigarettes, liquor, on persons in upper income brackets, and in some other areas.

"But the truth is that when you measure the amount taken out of the taxpayer's pocketbook in both income and property taxes, that amount will be less in most cases than would be paid under the present tax structure," the governor said.

"Our primary goal is to reduce property taxes in every part of the state. Those taxes are intolerable and must be lowered.

"These figures show that our budget will do that, and much more, for most Minnesotans."

Arthur Roemer, state tax commissioner, said the figures prepared by his department take into account all changes proposed by the governor in the state's property and income tax structure.

Basic assumptions of the program include:

(1) That a typical home has a market value of 2½ times the gross income of the occupant. This is a standard rule-of-thumb calculation used by realtors.

(2) That all homeowners itemize their federal income tax returns. It is assumed that renters with taxable incomes of less than $10,000 do not itemize, while those with incomes of more than $10,000 do.

(3) That the average mill levy for all purposes in 1971, without the Anderson fair school financing plan, will be 375 mills, an increase of 15 per cent over the 1970 levy. The predicted average mill rate under the Anderson budget will 314 mills, a reduction of 61 mills.

(4) The 61 mills reduction combines both the reduction from existing levies and the prevention of the predicted 15 per cent increase in school levies. Since the 314 mill rate figure is an average, some homeowners will receive more benefit than projected, and some will receive less.

Once Around The Park, Please

Green Attends NFDA Meeting

"For most children in America, the death and funeral of a person is something they have heard about or seen only on TV or in the movies. While they may have suffered the loss of a pet, the majority of children today have not experienced the death of some person they love. When this situation does occur, it is important that the child be sympathetically guided toward an honest understanding of its real meaning."

This was the message William M. Lamers, Jr., M.D. of Kentfield, Calif., gave to funeral directors attending the professional conference sponsored by the National Funeral Directors association held on March 29 and 30 in Minneapolis.

Among those participating was Orin J. Green of the Green Funeral home in Thief River Falls.

'U' Seeks Longer Time To Repay Building Loans

Increasing the length of time to repay loans on state-financed buildings would increase the amount of money available for immediate building needs and save on the costs of inflation in construction, University of Minnesota officials told the legislature recently.

Speaking to the building division of the House Appropriations committee, University President Malcolm Moos called for increasing the amortization period of state-financed building programs from 20 to 40 years.

This plan would not increase the average annual tax requirement for debt service but could increase the building appropriations to be made available by the current legislature by about $40 million, he said.

The estimate was based on the legislative building commission's recommendation for an appropriation of about $100 million over the next biennium, Moos said. About $35 million of that was recommended for the university.

"Because construction costs are rising about 12 per cent a year and state interest costs are in the area of five to six per cent, we would be unwise to defer construction we must undertake later," Moos told the legislators.

"We will get not only more use from buildings but more dollar value from early construction," he said.

Minnesota's constitution limits state bonds to 20-year maturity, but Moos said there are no legal bars to refinancing. No authorizing legislation is needed, he added.

"There is a precedent for such action, he said. "Twenty year state bonds have been used to finance some state college union projects which have 38-year debt amortization commitments and will require refinancing."

Moos said enrollment projections show a plateau in the early 1980s and thus forecast a reduced building need in higher education at that time.

"By starting necessary buildings now, the structures would be built for earlier use and could be constructed more cheaply," Moos said. They could be paid off more rapidly at the time enrollment-related needs are lessened.

Moos said the university's most urgent building requests not met by the legislative building commission's recommendations are an $8 million humanities building and a $14 million law school.

These are buildings which will be needed at a future date and delaying construction would increase their costs, Moos said. He predicted that some $1.7 million in inflation costs could be saved in the law school alone by starting construction in 1972 rather than waiting until after the next legislative session.

Moos told the group that the plan would help the construction industry and boost employment in the building trades while bringing needed buildings into use from one to three years earlier than would otherwise be possible.

FCI Protection May Close Early

Corn blight and rootworm scare has dramatized the possibility of early closing on new Federal crop insurance protection it was announced today by Oscar Houske FCIC agent for Pennington county.

Houske was notified by the Federal Crop Insurance corporation that 200 counties in Illinois, Indiana and other states have already closed due to prospects of heavy losses and limits on new insurance policies for 1971. Limits for 1971 are 150 per cent of last year's acreage.

Normal deadlines to apply for this insurance are generally set for shortly ahead of planting time.

Federal crop insurance covers all unavoidable causes of loss. These include drought, excess moisture, wind, freeze, hail, insects disease (including blight) and other causes.

Crops covered by Federal crop insurance in Pennington county include barley, flax, oats and wheat.

Diary of Our Destiny

Scriptures selected by the American Bible Society

Thus begins the most amazing account of human experience ever written. And so simply, with just a notation of time: the hour, the day, the very moment!

But like a church bell sounding its call to worship, that simple notation of time has become the clarion of a New Life.

So deeply has it penetrated our preoccupation with the routine of every-day existence that millions gather at sunrise to greet the dawn of each Easter Day.

What has given such meaning to one moment in time?

Its PROMISE: Christ is risen. The One Who said, because I live, ye shall live also—He lives!

This tremendous moment, for all who worship Him in faith, became the first entry in the Diary of our Destiny.

A New Sauce For Easter Hams

There seems to be no cookbook recipes for Easter ham. This holiday favorite is so easy to prepare that it's assumed everyone already knows how to bake it, or can follow the simple directions most packers print on the label. Meanwhile, recipes abound for popular Easter side dishes of candied sweet potatoes, hot cross buns and pumpkin pie. Together with cooked green vegetables (now often served with sliced almonds) or a fresh salad, these and baked ham comprise the traditional American Easter dinner.

But a really good raisin sauce, a favorite cutting board companion of baked ham, has long been neglected. Probably because the delicate flavor and consistency of this sauce is difficult to create with unvarying success. And the secret of a really good raisin sauce is the number of ingredients included beside raisins.

Now a new instant golden raisin sauce is available in 12 oz. tins in foodstores under the label "SOLO." It's a blending of golden bleached raisins, apricots, pineapple and spice seasoning.

Before baking, simply cover the ham completely with new "SOLO" Golden Raisin Sauce. The delicate blending acts as a glaze, sealing in the natural ham juices while adding its own distinctive flavor.

Solo Golden Raisin Sauce can also be transferred from the opened tin into a saucepan. The heated sauce is placed on the table in a sauce bowl and spooned over the ham slices before serving.

Reheated ham slices take on an exciting new flavor via a Solo Golden Raisin Sauce saute. Place slices in a pan, add a quantity of Golden Raisin Sauce slightly more than would ordinarily be sufficient for sauteing, heat through and serve.

Another unusual sliced ham entree with a distinctive gourmet character is Stuffed Ham Slices.

STUFFED HAM SLICES

¼ cup chopped celery	4 cups dry bread cubes
2 tbls. chopped parsley	½ tsp. ground marjoram
¼ cup butter	2½ inch ham slices, center cuts
1 12 oz. can Solo Golden Raisin Sauce	1½ tsps. lemon juice
	dash of ground cloves

Cook celery and parsley in butter until tender. Add 3/4 cup Solo Golden Raisin Sauce, bread cubes and marjoram. Mix well. Spoon over top of one ham slice. Place second slice over the first ham slice. Combine the remaining Golden Raisin Sauce, lemon juice and ground cloves. Spread this over the two ham slices. Pour small amount of water in baking pan and bake in a slow oven (325°) for one hour. Yields 6 servings.

"In the creative state a man is taken out of himself. He lets down as it were a bucket into his subconscious, and draws up something which is normally beyond his reach. He mixes this thing with his normal experiences, and out of the mixture he makes a work of art." — E. M. Forster

Is It True?

The following item appeared in the Fairfax Standard and is being printed here at local request:

The story of oil produced by giant American oil companies in Indonesia and the Middle East being supplied to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces by tanker fleets sailing under various flags of convenience, is one of the most successfully suppressed news items in the last 25 years.

Here are the highlights of a recent French intelligence report concerning the matter:

"Oil products for the Communists forces engaged in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos which are landed in Haiphong, do not originate in the Soviet Union or Red China, but are provided by giant American firms belonging to the International Oil Cartel — Standard Oil of California, Texaco, Gulf Oil (Mellon interests), Socony Vacuum (Rockefeller interests).

The tab for those oil deliveries is picked up by the Soviet Government and payments are made into special numbered accounts in Switzerland. This oil is sold at slightly reduced rates, in return for which the Soviet Government guarantees the immunity of the American-owned filling stations in Indochina against Viet Cong or North Vietnamese attack.

"Tankers belonging to Onoassis-Niarches-Livanos family, flying Liberian, Panamanian and other flags of convenience, pick up the oil in Sumatra, Southern Borneo, Iran, Saudi Arabia, ostensibly for delivery to Europe, Japan, or to Vladivostok, in the Soviet Union. But at sea the sailing orders are changed and the oil cargoes are re-routed to Haiphong."

The French report says that the U. S. naval and air patrols keep close surveillance of the traffic, with the U. S. military intelligence in Saigon being fully aware of the matter and in possession of close estimates of the amount of oil thus supplied by U. S. companies to the Communist forces and to the Soviet-supplied truck and tank car fleet which carries the war supplies from Haiphong and Hanoi southward along the Ho Chi Minh trail to the Communist forces in South Vietnam and Cambodia. But, the report adds, total secrecy is enforced on the matter, on Washington orders, and the U. S. military in Indochina are strictly forbidden to discuss the information, because of the highly sensitive character of the matter.

The Big Word

The following editorial was written by Dick West of the Dallas Morning News in Dallas, Tex., and was a first place award winner in a contest on free enterprise editorials sponsored by the Southern States Industrial council:

Missing in most year-end dispatches about American business and the economy is the biggest word in our unique system—profit.

Columns have been written about the Gross National Product (GNP) passing the trillion-a-year mark on the final Tuesday of 1970. Other stories detail the figures on sales and on physical expansion. Employment, of course, gets its share of attention.

But these indices are meaningless, unless the profit picture is healthy.

In the free-enterprise system, there is neither enterprise nor freedom without profit.

Sales can top all records, but they mean nothing unless the producer and seller can put aside something for the future.

When Germany suffered runaway inflation in the early 1920's, its GNP jumped from billions of marks to the sextillions in a few months, but the country was broke. The profit structure was shattered, and the economic predicate was laid for Hitler.

It is profit that gives our national security the muscle to resist dictatorship and aggression.

It is profit that gives 80 million people regular jobs.

It is the expectation of profit—another word is incentive—which distinguishes our system and becomes the energizer of our life-stream.

It is profit—and profit only—which provides charity, philanthropy, education and support for the exercise of religious freedom.

Without profit, there can be no personal independence, no ownership of property, no castle which a man calls home, no savings—and worst of all, no freedom of choice or the courage to devise it.

It is profit which enemies of our system—from Karl Marx to Kosygin—would like to destroy. But, ironically, most of them have turned to incentive schemes which are imitations of ours. They turned, reluctantly, because they had to.

The most shocking trend in America is the current tendency to downgrade profits: To pinch, squeeze and siphon them away. The very word has become a stigma.

The academic community sneers at it. A national poll shows that [illegible] per cent of us who live under it do not understand it. Organized labor, in its annual demands, attack it—yet the individual worker in a business is the one who stands to gain the most from it.

Khrushchev sneeringly predicted that the Russian system would bury us. And it will, unless we readjust those forces—such as confiscatory taxes—which assure a stable profit structure to the smallest hamburger stand as well as General Motors.

The heart of every individual and economic system is the desire to achieve. Without desire, without motivation, life is meaningless.

Another Angle

Every time agricultural production and chemical pollution are mentioned, a different angle is presented. The following letter from Mrs. Margaret T. Wilkerson was written to the Richmond Times-Dispatch and reprinted in the Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times and Record News:

Following is a letter to the Richmond Times-Dispatch from Mrs. Margaret T. Wilkerson. It is a farm lady's answer to the critics of pesticides.

"I read with complete awe Mrs. Rebecca S. Gleason's letter to the Editor "Farmers Are Urged to Curb Pesticides". Her plea to American farmers to go back to the hoe and give up the use of pesticides is a challenge, indeed—but not just a challenge to the farmers, but to the rest of the population as well.

I would like to preface my remaining remarks by saying that we, as farmers, are concerned about our environment, but I believe at the present time we have to make a choice—do we eat or don't we?

There are three million farmers in this country today to feed over two hundred million people. Of these three million farmers, 10 per cent produce 60 per cent of the food.

We have a family farm—about 600 acres and a dairy. We have about 120 milk cows which produce one million pounds of milk per year.

We grow about 200 acres of corn, 100 acres of potatoes, 150 acres of soybeans and the rest in small grains and hay crops. We use fertilizer and pesticides in order to grow enough to make a living for our family, but I have a proposition for Mrs. Gleason and all who agree with her.

Next year, we'll grow six acres of potatoes without fertilizer or pesticides and my family will hoe the weeds and pick off the potato beetles by hand. If blight or some other calamity doesn't strike, we'll probably grow enough potatoes to feed our family and two or three other people. We'll also grow 10 acres of corn without fertilizer, and weed and insect control.

We may, if we're lucky, produce enough corn to feed three or four cows and our family will drink most of the milk produced.

Now then, that means we'll have a few hundred acres of land left. We'll loan Mrs. Gleason any number of acres she'd like—rent free. We'll also loan her doctor, lawyer, taxi driver, filling station attendant, beauty operator, grocer and her minister a few acres. They can grow whatever crop they choose on this land—they can hoe it and pick off the insects and live on what they grow.

Of course, they'll be so busy hoeing and chopping, Mrs. Gleason won't have any medical service or taxi service. She won't be able to get her hair done to go to church on Sunday, but that won't matter because the minister will be hoeing, too. Of course, none of these things will really matter because Mrs. Gleason will probably have died of starvation.

Now let's get to the money deal. The farmer is supposed to be getting rich. We are getting about 10 per cent more for milk than we were in the 1940s and how much has the cost of living risen in this country since then? We get less for corn and soybeans than we did in the early 50s.

This year we sold our potatoes for an average price of $1.65 per 100 pounds, and what did the consumer pay for 10 pounds in the grocery store?

By gosh, I'm sick to death of the American farmer being told what to do by people who don't know what they're talking about. Frankly, I'm living for the day when the farmers organize, go on strike like everyone else in this country feels free to do regardless of the consequences, and let the whole—population starve to death. Then nobody will have to worry about the environment.

PTA Opposes Aid From State For Private Schools

"No taxation without representation" was the argument used by Mrs. Richard Hunt, legislation chairman, Minnesota PTA, in opposition to the private school aid bill before the Senate tax committee last week in St. Paul.

Senate File 228 is a bill to provide tax credits to parents of children in non-public schools $50 for kindergarten, $100 for elementary school and $140 for secondary school.

"The cry of 'No taxation without representation' is as true today as in revolutionary times," said Mrs Hunt. "I don't believe my tax money should be taken to support an enterprise over which there is no total public control. It may be difficult at times to make one's voice heard through the ballot box, but the system is there and is used when citizens mobilize.

"I feel I have representation at the national, state and local level on public bodies that establish policy and spend tax dollars. I would have no voice in how tax money might be spent in private and parochial education," she concluded.

The PTA position in opposition to aid to nonpublic schools was adopted at the state convention held in Minneapolis in October of last year.

Just this past weekend thousands of Minnesota farmers, small businessmen and just plain folks demonstrated at the State Capital in St. Paul.

Their cause: property taxes, of course.

I welcome this movement, which has spread like wildfire throughout the state. It is a genuine tax revolt, and it is a healthy development. It provides a long overdue counterbalance to the excessive privilege special interest groups have traditionally enjoyed in the inner councils of our state and local governments.

There is one element in the revolt against high, regressive property taxes that I find disturbing, however.

That is the current enthusiasm for a "freeze" on property taxes. Supporters of a freeze call it "a good first step".

I say it is not good enough. I contend that a freeze will do nothing more than freeze property taxes at their present unacceptable levels. I want property taxes reduced, and the vast majority of Minnesotans do, too. As you know, the first priority of my administration is to do just that.

The Fair School Financing Plan we have recommended to the Legislature will achieve that goal.

Last Friday we released State Tax Department figures which show the impact of our plan on each of Minnesota's 434 school districts. In 417 districts, or 96.2 per cent, the taxes do go down. In more than 50 per cent, the school [illegible] tax will be reduced by more than 30 per cent.

The median levy for school maintenance, under our plan, will drop from 163 mills to 107.9 mills.

That is why I contend a freeze is not good enough. That is why I have challenged critics of our school financing plan to present more than rhetoric, to present an alternative that will provide truly effective relief.

Funds spent by the U. S. Department of Agriculture are often used for non-farm programs such as free lunches at schools in urban areas.

The finishing school

Not as elegant, perhaps, as some of the better-known girls' schools. But when a young lady has finished this curriculum, it has a practical pay-off for you.

It's the school where Northwestern Bell trains its Service Reps, the girls who must be ready, at the flick of a dial, to handle your every telephone need. They help you with answers and advice on new service, changing or adding service, billing questions, you name it.

We start with bright, pleasant girls like Shari Talbot. And when they've finished our intensive, 8 week program, they're ready. They're specialists in the all-important field of helping you.

Shari admits that the program wasn't easy, but she's glad she made it through. So is training supervisor Peggy Milford. Because they both think that what Shari does is pretty important.

On Wednesday, December 16, 1970, Pioneer 6 completed its fifth year in solar orbit. It has covered 3,300,000,000 miles and has filled 7300 miles of analog data tape since its launch in 1965. Now the National Aeronautics and Space Administration believes that the satellite, which had a planned life of six months, can serve as a reference point by which manned spaceflight network stations can locate themselves precisely on earth. This is possible, reports the authoritative Aerospace Daily, because although the spacecraft has not made an orientation maneuver since 1966 it acts as a small planet completely subject to solar system gravity. Because its radio signal can be tracked precisely it serves as an exact reference for planet orbits and masses and relativity measurements.

New Kits Improve Reflectorizing For Bicycles

Minnesota community leaders planning bicycle safety programs this spring were advised today by Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Hoaglund that there have been some important changes in the procedures for getting and applying reflective tape on the bicycles. The reflective tape, by increasing the visibility of the bicycle, is regarded as an important feature of the bicycle safety program.

"First, the taping kits have been greatly improved, so that the bicycle's entire outline will show up on the dark. The wheels, frame and fork are all reflectorized.

"However, because of tax complications, the kits are no longer available without charge. The program is still being handled by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and bicycle program organizers should first contact the local post. Some posts are able to finance the cost or obtain financing.

"If this does not work out, the national VFW headquarters in Kansas City can be contacted. Kits can be obtained directly from there at a cost of 11 cents each, which is the cost of tape for one bicycle."

Hoaglund noted that many communities have already started planning their spring bicycle safety programs with the help of the department of public safety. He said that since last spring the department has provided more than 200,000 pieces of bicycle safety literature through schools, police departments, scouting organizations and other agencies. The public safety film library's 16 titles on bicycle safety last year were shown to audiences totaling 230,000.

In addition, kits of instructions and aids for setting up community bicycle safety campaigns have been provided for the leaders of these campaigns. One scouting organization recently took 500 of these kits, for the use of its leadership people.

The public safety department also provides active assistance in these campaigns through the safety officers of the Minnesota highway patrol, he said. One of the tools used by the safety officers, a "talking bicycle" devised by Officer Gerald Dickson of Owatonna with the help of friends, has received nation-wide notice.

Health Sciences Center To Rise At University

A ground-breaking ceremony will be held Thursday (April 1) for the University of Minnesota's new health sciences center.

The ceremony will be held at 3 p.m. on the building site at Washington avenue and Union street on the University's Minneapolis campus and will be followed by a reception in the green room of Powell hall.

Speakers at the ceremony will include University President Malcolm Moos, Regent Fred J. Hughes and Dr. Lyle A. French, vice president for health sciences. Deans of schools and colleges in the health sciences and other special guests will be introduced.

The 22-story steel and precast concrete structure will house the first stage of the university's health sciences expansion. Known as Unit A, it will accommodate the school of dentistry, two departments of the school of public health, teaching laboratories for the basic sciences and some medical school clinical facilities.

Major teaching facilities in Unit A will include a 350-seat auditorium, two 250 seat auditoriums, and a 200-seat auditorium, as well as a number of small seminar rooms and classrooms.

The second stage of construction will be a 16-story building immediately south of Unit A which will house a major new University hospital outpatient department and additional medical school clinical departments. A third structure abutting Unit A on the northeast will house the college of pharmacy.

These buildings will comprise the major new construction in phase one of the university's health sciences expansion, providing space for increased enrollments in all health sciences units. Remodeling of vacated spaces for the basic science departments, the school of nursing, school of public health, medical school and university hospitals will complete phase one work.

Unit A will cost an estimated $32 million to build, with a total project cost of $45 million. Architects for the project are The Architects Collaborative, Cambridge, Mass., and Health Sciences Architects and Engineers, St. Paul.

Excavation contractor is Carl Bolander and Sons, Minneapolis.

The new center is scheduled for occupancy in September of 1973.

Lights On Cycles Reduce Accidents In Four States

Laws in four states requiring the daytime use of headlights on motorcycles have resulted in significant reductions in accidents, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

Commenting on a study conducted by an independent research laboratory, Hoaglund said that reduction in daytime accidents in the states of Wisconsin, Montana, Indiana, and Oregon totaled 41 per cent over a two-year period. The report was based on accident experience before and after daytime use of headlights was made mandatory. If the difference between daytime and nighttime reductions, which indicates the effect of daylight headlamp use, is applied to total daytime motorcycle accident involvements in the United States, an annual reduction of 7,140 accidents can be achieved.

Also included in the study was a comparison of experience in four other states, including Minnesota, which do not have the new law. The other three were Idaho, Ohio, and Washington.

Based on the accident rate per 10,000 motorcycles registered, the states with headlight laws showed a reduction of 386 accidents over the two-year period, while the other four states showed a reduction of only 87 accidents per 10,000 registered motorcycles.

Substantial reductions were noted in accidents involving turning movements and in intersections. Results of the study also indicated that daytime use of headlights significantly increases the noticeability of the cycle by other drivers. It was also noted that the red rear lights were not as noticeable during daytime, but experiments with amber rear lights improved the noticeability considerably.

"Minnesota currently has a bill before the Legislature asking for the mandatory use of headlights on motorcycles at all times. Experience of Wisconsin and other states convinces us that this would be a good law, and would contribute substantially to a reduction in accidents and deaths," Hoaglund said.

Advise Tourists Of Little-Known Attractions

Near the little town of Jasper in southwestern Minnesota is one of only three quarries in the country from which jasper is obtained. In the old days, jasper blocks were used to pave streets; but now, because it is such a hard stone, it is in demand for industrial grinding purposes.

Much of the cutting work is done by hand because jasper is so hard. Watching the mining operation can be a fascinating way to spend a sunny afternoon.

A highly unusual geographic formation is chimney rock—a 50-foot pillar of limestone atop a 100-foot high hill in Dakota county. It is reached by going six miles south of Hastings on highway 61, three miles west on 220th street and a half-mile north on Joan road.

The rock has the man-made appearance of a fluted chimney, representing a chunk of real estate too high to be ground down by the retreating glaciers of 15,000 years ago.

Travelling west from highway 52 along highway 16, discover the picturesque community of Lanesboro tucked between towering rock cliffs. Not only does the town have a lovely park for picnicking, but it is the site of the state's largest fish hatchery.

The Lanesboro hatchery personnel welcome visitors and you may take either a guided or self-guided tour. Start at the front office for a briefing and prepare for an absorbing insight into the business of raising fish for Minnesota's lakes and streams.

Here then are three more little-publicized attractions for your secret activity file. Give them a try and don't forget to pack the picnic basket.

Insurance Agents Ass'n. In Favor Of Reform Bill

Wayne Boysen, Minneapolis, president of the thousand-member Minnesota Insurance Agents association, has endorsed the auto insurance reform bill sponsored by State Representative Otto Bang of Edina.

Boysen said, ..."The Bang bill is a major step forward in changing the automobile system. We feel his approach is the best way to keep auto insurance costs in line and to provide fast claims handling without giving up the concept of driver responsibility."

According to Boysen, the Bang bill:

1. Guarantees prompt payment of basic medical and income losses.
2. Requires all private passenger cars to carry $3,000 medical expense and $6,000 disability income coverage.
3. Retains liability protection—right to sue a negligent driver.
4. Limits "pain and suffering" payments to a percentage of total medical hospital expense.
5. Provides for arbitration of all claims for damages under $3,000 to reduce litigation.
6. Discourages fraudulent claims.
7. Regulates lawyer fees.
8. Prohibits unwarranted policy cancellation.
9. Encourages a more durable and repairable car.

Speaking for the premium-paying public, Boysen said, "of all the suggested changes being proposed for auto insurance that our association has reviewed, we like the Bang concept the best." Boysen went on to say, "The Bang bill will eliminate most of the problems we now face."

The Minnesota Insurance Agents association (prior to 1970, the Minnesota Association of Mutual Agents) is a trade organization for independent insurance agents operating under the American Agency system. Member agents and agencies usually represent more than one insurance company writing property and casualty insurance.

How To Save 3¢ A Gallon

Your car's air filter is a problem: it works too well.

The filter protects you from the dust and grit that would wear out your engine in a couple of years. This is vital, because with every gallon of gas a car burns, it breathes in 10,000 gallons of dusty air.

Air filters catch most of the dust because they are 99 per cent efficient. But, as dust accumulates, it clogs the filter, restricting the flow of air. Balanced carburetors reduce the amount of gas going in with the air, so that overall, power and mileage are reduced.

The result of your air filter's good work is a well protected engine, but one which doesn't take you as far for your money. You pay for the protection with reduced mileage unless you change your air filter at least every 10,000 to 12,000 miles.

According to Fram Corporation engineers, a car whose air filter has become clogged is throwing away as much as 12 to 15 per cent in mileage efficiency. At this rate a new air filter pays for itself in 1,500 miles.

Disaster Loans Widely Accepted

As much as $3 million in Farmers Home Administration (FHA) disaster benefits can be expected in Pennington County by the time all applications are processed, says Albert H. Mattson, FHA administrator in Thief River Falls.

Marshall County FHA administrator Elmer Sorenson in Warren said benefits paid for crop losses due to excessive moisture in 1970 could be as much as $6 million in his county, which is more than twice the geographic size of Pennington County.

"I have wall to wall stenographers in my office," Mattson said, "and they are working full time on old applications, but we're still swamped.

Mattson added, "We have recieved as many as 147 benefit checks coming into the office in one day. I never saw anything like it—the volume is so great."

So far 699 emergency loans to farmers have been completed. Mattson said that 526 applications have been returned. A total of 997 applications have been distributed at this time, he said.

Most of the farmers whose applications have been approved received U.S. government checks averaging somewhat less than $4,000 each, he said.

Mattson said that although his office has been barely able to keep up, there has been a minimum of delay in processing the emergency fund applications.

The Pennington County FHA committee meets here each Friday, he said, so that if an application is turned in by noon Wednesday, it can normally be processed for consideration in the same week.

The volume of applications for aid has been so great that the office staff found it necessary to set up a strict schedule so that farmers requesting aid can receive their benefits as soon as possible.

Disaster loan information requests dealing with titles and deeds have also increased the workload at the register of deeds office, according to Eugene Prestegaard, county register. "We would have had very little work in this office in the first months of this year had it not been for information requests connected with the FHA disaster loans," he said.

Immunization In TRF Schools Is Set This Month

April is immunization month in Thief River Falls Schools, starting this week with senior high. Permit slips were sent home with 12th graders before Easter vacation, and immunizations will be given on Wednesday.

All interested seniors should return their signed permits on Tuesday. The cost will be 25 cents each and the shots will be given in school.

Graduating seniors are also reminded that immunizations must be up to date if they are considering college.

Grade school students will receive their permit slips this week. Parents are asked to sign them and return them to school immediately. Grade children may bring their money with their permits.

Protection requirements include: Red measles vaccine before two years of age; German measles vaccine before two years of age; oral polio, two feedings plus a booster before two years of age, mumps vaccine, before two years of age; D.P.T. (diphtheria-tetanus and whooping cough) a series of three shots, plus a booster before two years of age, and every 10 years. A second booster between five and seven years, thereafter, smallpox vaccine, before two years of age, again between five and seven years of age and only every 10 years thereafter.

ICC Board Will Meet April 21st

Board of directors of the Inter-County Community council will hold its regular monthly executive meeting at the Olson cafe in Goodridge at 6:30 p.m. April 21.

The business meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., and the public is invited to attend at that time.

School Board To Meet Tonight

Limited agenda has been prepared for the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education tonight (Monday) at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln senior high school building. Approval of minutes, financial report and bill payment are scheduled, plus the superintendent's report and other business which may arise.

Pre-School Meet At Newfolden Tues., April 20

Pre-school round-up is to be held Tuesday, April 20, in the kindergarten room at the Newfolden elementary school. All children who will be five years old by Sept. 1 and who will be entering kindergarten this fall are invited to attend.

At the round-up, the children will be registered, a complete medical history taken, and the children will be measured and weighed. Parents are asked to bring the health census card and home questionnaire to the round-up.

Invitations to the round-up with accompanying medical forms and cards have been mailed. Parents who did not receive them should call 874-5445 for information.

In addition to answering regular health questions about their child, it is especially important that parents mention any past injuries or health conditions which may affect school performance.

Building Permits Total $11 Million Here In 1970

Just released annual summary of 1970 building permits compiled by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis shows Thief River Falls issued permits for $3,250,000 worth of new construction in that year.

In January last year, valuation of permits was only $20,000, but by December permit valuations reached the year's monthly high of $961,000.

Building permits averaged $270,800 per month, though an average monthly figure fails to show a wide variation in totals from one month to the next. Generally, however, and with the exception of November and December, the greatest number of building permits were issued from April through September.

A total of 140 building permits were issued last year. The most, 25, were issued in June, and the least, two, in February. December saw the high permit valuations of $961,000, but only four permits were issued that month. Again, most permits were issued from April through September. The average monthly number of permits issued was 12.

Housing unit permits issued throught 1970 in Thief River Falls totaled 72. (In the Federal Reserve Bank summary, a housing unit was defined as a house or apartment unit intended for occupancy as separate living quarters, having either a kitchen or cooking equipment for the exclusive use of the occupant and having direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Housekeeping units do not include group quarters such as dormitories or barracks.)

The most housing unit permits, 23, were issued in July, and none were issued in the months of February, March, and December. The monthly average number of housing unit permits issued was six.

On a county-wide basis, Pennington County issued a total of 512 building permits in 1970, 272 of which were for new construction. Of the others, 135 were for additions or alterations to houses and apartments, and 105 were for additions and alterations to other types of buildings.

One-family private housekeeping unit permits totaled 114, while two permits were issued for apartments for occupancy by from three to five or more families.

Total valuation of permits throughout the county in 1970 was $11,445,000, of which $10,822,000 was for new buildings.

WATER OVER THE DAM created quite a splash in Thief River Falls over the weekend as ice went out of the Red Lake river here. Ice began breaking up above the dam Saturday morning and by mid-afternoon had left a clear channel beyond the First street bridge. Wind and warm temperatures Saturday helped contribute to the ice break-up. Churning, swirling waters below the dam after the flood gates are opened is one of the common sights of spring in this community.

Liberalize Loan Program For Drying And Storage

Drying and storage facilities for grains, soybeans and other storable crops are necessary for many modern farms as specialized planting and harvesting equipment, according to Pennington county farm program official Winton Knutson, who announced changes in the loan program for farm storage and drying equipment.

A lower loan interest rate and an increase in the maximum loan amount are among the changes, as well as liberalization of other provisions.

Knutson said many farmers will be using the new set-aside farm programs to tailor crop production to meet market demand. "Producers are changing their crop planning from the patterns they have been locked into for so many years under restrictive farm programs. The new set-aside program lets them concentrate their production, if they choose on crops they can grow most efficiently.

"Modern on-farm and commercial storage and handling facilities are needed which will promote efficient marketing and provide for an orderly flow of goods from producer to consumer," he said.

Through use of both on-farm and commercial storage, farmers are better able to avoid a harvesttime glut, make more effective use of transportation facilities, and spread their marketing over a longer period, Knutson said.

Under the farm storage and drying equipment loan program, eligible farmers can obtain Commodity Credit corporation loans through their local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service (ASCS) office to buy or build on-farm storage and drying facilities and to buy essential operating equipment.

Loans can be made for storage needs based on two-year production of a producer's crops which are eligible for price-support. In Pennington county these include barley, oats, rye, wheat and flax.

Winton Knutson, who is chairman of the Pennington county ASC committee, said the changes in the program include:

—Lowering the interest rate on loans to 50 cents per $100 per month, which is a six per cent annual rate. The loan rate had been 7½ per cent. It was possible to lower the interest rate at this time because of recent lowering of the borrowing cost of money to the CCC.

—Increasing the maximum loan or outstanding aggregate balance from $25,000 to $35,000.

—Removing the $5,000 loan limit on drying equipment and permitting such loans for 85 per cent of the net cost up to $35,000.

—Removing restrictions on various items of equipment essential to the practical operation of the storage or drying unit.

—Removing restrictions on costs of foundations and electrical wiring in the loans.

These program changes will not only help farmers install needed on-farm storage but also will help them modernize facilities to keep up with new techniques, Knutson concluded.

Goulet and Lindberg Vows Said At East Grand Forks

Our Savior's Lutheran church in East Grand Forks was the scene of the recent wedding of Miss Kathryn Goulet of this city and Jonnthan Lindberg of East Grand Forks.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Doris Goulet of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs August Lindberg of Fertile.

Officiating at the ecumenical double-ring ceremony were Rev. Anderson, Rev Stenberg and Rev. Jerome Ditzler. Mrs Gary Berg presided at the organ and accompanied Mrs. Suzy Kotts, a friend, as she sang, "Ave Maria" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the chancel setting for the 5 p.m. ceremony were baskets of white gladioli accented with large lavender bows. On either side of the candle lit altar was a 15 branch candelabrum. Greens and lavender ribbon bows marked the pews along the center aisle.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother-in-law John Holm. She was attired in a floor-length gown of candlelight satin styled in empire fashion with beaded antique lace accenting the stand-up collar. Seven miniture buttons secured the cuffs on the full-length bishop sleeves. Antique lace edged her modified train and her chapel-length mantilla fashioned of bridal illusion. She carried an old-fashioned styled bouquet of red roses, hot pink and white baby pompons, and lavender statice, complemented by ribbon streamers in harmonizing shades.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Diane Gunderson of Thief River Falls. Other attendants were Donna Goulet, sister of the bride, Mrs. Pat Wagner, sister of the groom, Karen Noper and Kris Helm, friends of the bride. They were attired in identical gowns of purple satin with antique lace at the high-rise waistline and on the stand up collar, bodice, and sleeves. They wore a cluster of lavender statice in their hair and each carried a bouquet of lavender pompons and pink carnations, accented with lavender statice.

Attired like the attendants was little Lisa Glass, a niece of the bride, who served as flower girl. Ring bearer was Brad Lindberg, a nephew of the groom.

Richard Larson of Fargo, N.D., a friend of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Robert Lindberg of Minneapolis, a brother of the groom, Mike Goulet of Thief River Falls, brother of the bride, Ardean Swenson of Bemidji, friend of the groom, and Wayne Lindberg of St. Cloud, cousin of the groom. Seating the guests were James Goulet of Thief River Falls, brother of the bride, James Rasmus of Borup, friend of the groom, Lyle Lindberg of Harwood, N.D., cousin of the groom, and Rick Wagner of St. Paul, brother-in-law of the groom. For their attire, the men chose Edwardian double-breasted tuxedos with celebrity bow ties. The groom wore a red rose boutonniere and his attendants had boutonnieres composed of lavender baby pompons.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs Goulet wore a melon and white knit ensemble complemented by a corsage of baby pink roses. A similar corsage was worn by the mother of the groom who was attired in a royal blue knit dress.

Honor guests at the ceremony were Mrs. Josephine Goulet, grandmother of the bride, and the bride's sister Mrs. Duane Glass, who served as personal attendant.

Approximately 175 guests attended the supper reception given in the church parlors by the mother of the bride. Serving as reception host and hostess were Mr and Mrs. Mike Bump, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Miss Virginia Goulet, sister of the bride, presided at the guest book as Mrs Ardean Swenson, a friend, served the punch.

The four-tiered Lady Windemere cake, topped with fresh pink and red roses, was cut and served by Mrs Pat Grunelle, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Ray Lindberg, aunt of the groom. Pouring were Mrs. John Holm, sister of the bride, and Mrs Robert Lindberg, sister-in-law of the groom.

Friends of the bride also assisted at the reception. Misses Roxanne Langlie and Debbie Bragler served as waitresses as Barbara Briełond and Mrs. Brad Gaudry opened and arranged the gifts.

Guests attending were from Fargo and Grafton, N.D., Minneapolis, Hastings, Glencoe, Mankato, Bemidji, St. Cloud, McIntosh, Crookston, St. Paul, Warren, Borup, Argyle and Thief River Falls.

For traveling to the Lutsen resort area, the bride wore a red woolen pants suit styled with a back center pleat and martingale belt. Her accessories were in black.

The newlyweds are now at home at 502 Sixth avenue southeast, East Grand Forks. The bride, a graduate of Lincoln high school is employed in Grand Forks, N.D., by Red River National Bank. The groom is a graduate of the Fertile Public school and is employed by Lumber Dealers Supply company in East Grand Forks. Photo—LeMar Photography, Crookston

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Mrs. William Moeglein
515 Kendall Avenue South

Thief River Falls' 75th anniversary commemorative plate has been added to my collection of dishes. Although the collection contains several pieces of rare Bavarian china, it also features "conversation" pieces like this plate. These pieces have a tremendous sentimental value and when used together with the regular dinner set are so unusual that they become conversation pieces.

The plates went on sale last week.

People with sentimental ties to Thief River Falls will find them interesting. They were designed by a group of Thief River Falls women and feature authentic pictures of local interest. The women, all members of the Zehlian art club of the Federated Women's club, worked together securing pictures and planning the format. After much discussion, it was decided that the plate feature early industries and the first religious, educational, cultural and governmental centers in this city. To eliminate the possibility of favoring any certain religious denomination, a church steeple was used to illustrate centers of worship.

Heading the group in making the final design were Mrs. Rudolph Sagmoen, chairman, Mrs Holland Meltam and Mrs. William Moeglein. We hope to introduce all these women to you through Kitchen Karnival.

Our recipe today comes from Mrs. Moeglein. It is for a sweet-sour dish utilizing the left-over white meat of turkey.

Turkey Tiki

- 2 cups chopped celery
- 2 cups sliced green pepper
- ½ cup sliced water chestnuts
- ⅓ cup pineapple chunks
- ⅓ cup shoe-string pimento
- ½ cup white sugar
- ⅓ cup white vinegar
- 2 cups white turkey meat, diced

Method: Combine celery, green pepper, water chestnuts, pineapple chunks and pimento. Brown in butter. Add sugar and vinegar and stir in a little soya sauce to give mixture a golden look. Thicken with a little corn starch dissolved in cold water. Add turkey meat and simmer until meat is hot. Serve over browned rice.

Mrs. Moeglein said that this is a very quick meal to prepare. In making the browned rice, she prefers using left-over rice and heating it in butter and a little soya sauce.

The Moegleins came to Thief River Falls in 1959 from Little Falls. They have two children: Marcus, 8, and Martin, 5.

When questioned as to her hobbies, Mrs. Moeglein stated that she was interested in everything, especially in the field of art. She feels that she was born with a certain flair for art as she has two brothers who are sculptures. Although she liked to "dabble" in painting, she had had no formal training in that field until she came to Thief River Falls. The first year that classes were offered at our local junior state college, she took a course in oil painting. She has also attended art classes for two summers at Lincoln high school. She spoke very highly of the instruction received.

Mr Moeglein is an instructor at Northland State Junior college. This summer he will be skipper on a sailboat on the Lake of the Woods.

Care Keeps Knits Looking Best, Specialist Says

Whether you're a man with his new pair of knitted slacks and sport coat or a woman with a whole wardrobe of double knits, you can keep those polyester knits looking their best if you follow a few tips on care.

Thelma Baierl, extension clothing specialist at the University of Minnesota, gives these suggestions:

. Hang knits on a padded hanger or keep them in a drawer when not in use. If hung on a narrow wire hanger, knits may stretch or become misshapen.

. Remove greasy soil with a grease solvent or concentrated detergent before washing knits. Remember that polyester knits retain grease.

. Wash and dry polyester knits in small loads. They need room to flex. If you avoid drying them at very high temperatures, they will not even need touch-up ironing.

Funds Will Be Released To Pay Disaster Grants

U. S. Department of Labor confirmed to Congressman Bob Bergland today that funds will be released to pay unemployment compensation to eligible farmers in Minnesota's 100 county disaster area. The labor department's decision followed a ruling, earlier this week, by the comptroller general that payments should be uniform on all legitimate applications.

Bergland initiated the action leading to the payments when he learned of what he termed "inconsistent and unreasonable payment policies" toward farmers eligible for the aid. Under those policies, some farmers received full payments while others with nearly the same circumstances were paid less or nothing.

The inequities occurred when policy changes were put into effect by the labor department on November 2, 1970. Berland noted that the offices of Senators Mondale and Humphrey and Gov. Anderson, "fully cooperated in having the case reviewed."

The Minnesota department of manpower services will now review over 4,000 applications and appeals for the unemployment payments. Funds for the expected additional payments are being provided by the office of emergency planning. Berland again emphasized that the Minnesota department of manpower services "was most helpful in this effort and suspended payments only after Washington authorities had changed the rules."

The 11 counties eligible for aid include all or part of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Beltrami, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Norman, Clearwater and Mahnomen.

Fire Destroys Karlstad Home

A fire of unknown origin destroyed the Kenneth Skinner home in Karlstad April 3.

The fire department was called to the home at 11:55 a.m., but the fire was well under way and efforts to combat the flames were futile.

Neither Skinner nor his wife and two young children were home at the time, but a dog dashed through the kitchen door when it was opened by a fireman attempting to search the house.

The fire apparently started in a combination bed-living room. There was a stove in the room but it had not been used for several days because the house was being heated by a kitchen stove. Nothing was saved from the fire.

The Karlstad Baptist Church is trying to aid the family. Donations of clothing, money, canned food, furniture, kitchenware, and other items can be brought to the church basement today between noon and 4 p.m.

Meyer Is Named New General Of Viking Division

Brig. Gen. Paul V. Meyer, 55, Mankato, has been appointed the new commanding general of the Minnesota 47th "Viking" Infantry division, Maj. Gen. Chester J. Moeglein, state adjutant general, announced today.

General Meyer succeeds Maj. Gen. Donald C. Grant, 58, Golden Valley, who commanded the division since 1963.

Meyer joined the National Guard as a private in 1934 and was a master sergeant when called to active duty for World War II. He was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant in 1941 and was released from active duty in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel.

He was recalled to active duty with the Minnesota Guard for service during the Korean War.

As commander of the 47th division, General Meyer will be responsible for Army National Guard units in Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois. The division has 8,000 guardsmen in Minnesota, 3,000 in Illinois, and 2,200 in Iowa.

During the past eight years the division has sent more than 5,000 Guardsmen from these states to Fort Greely, Alaska, for training periods on military skiing, winter survival and warfare training.

Many of these men have since acted as instructors in the same training programs conducted during winter months here in Minnesota at Camp Ripley.

Meyer was assigned as the assistant division commander in June, 1966, and was appointed brigadier general in May, 1967.

He has served as commander of the state headquarters command group since the Minnesota Army National Guard was reorganized in 1968 until his recent assignment as division commander.

'Pro' Burglar Takes $1,400 At Greenbush

What is believed to have been a professional burglary took place in Greenbush a week ago Sunday night or Monday morning, according to the sheriff's department there.

A 400 pound safe at the Greenbush Implement company office was taken into a back shop and carefully "peeled".

Taken from the safe was $1,400 in cash (including $400 in Canadian currency) and about $1,600 in checks. A brown leather zippered bag lettered "Greenbush State Bank" was also taken.

Entry was apparently gained through the rear of the building, since a door to the office was forced once the burglar or burglars were inside. There was no visible evidence of the method of entry, it was reported.

Resources Dep't. To Plant 4.5 Million Seedlings

Department of natural resources is gearing up to plant 4.5 million seedlings this spring, it was announced this week by R. L. Herbst, commissioner of natural resources.

Planting operations will be carried out under the direction of the department's division of lands and forestry. Norway pine and white spruce will make up the bulk of the tree species to be planted this year.

Planting machines are being repaired and greased and other preparations are being made to begin operations the last week in April. It is expected that crews will be working in all regions of the state by the first week in May.

In addition to pine and spruce, the division will plant some green ash, black walnut, yellow birch and bush species this year, some of it designed to provide food and cover for wildlife.

One species that won't be planted this spring is white cedar. The division had intended to plant 66,000 cedar seedlings, but hungry deer ate them all this winter while they were still in the seed beds in the nurseries.

A special effort is being made by the division to encourage landowners in southern and southwestern Minnesota to plant trees this spring. Trees are badly needed in this area to provide cover for pheasants and other wildlife as well as erosion control and farmstead protection.

Assistance is being offered to landowners by district foresters in the south and southwest. State planting machines are being made available where possible at nominal cost.

Gov. Anderson Notes Earth Day And Earth Week

Department of natural resources this week reminded all citizens of the state that Governor Wendell Anderson has proclaimed April 19 through 24 as Earth Week and April 22 as Earth Day.

As part of an effort to get citizens involved in Earth Week activities rather than listen to speeches, the department has published an environmental action guideline, being mailed to all schools in the state.

"Last year students learned about environmental problems through literally hundreds of presentations in the schools," said Roger Grosslein, environmental education specialist for DNR. "This year we are encouraging schools to attack those problems rather than hear about them again."

Copies of the booklet are available from the Bureau of Information and Education, 350 Centennial Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Herbst Favors Appointive DNR State Officers

Robert Herbst, commissioner of the department of natural resources, told a senate committee last week that he favors continuation of the department's assistant commissioners and division directors in the unclassified service.

A bill is presently before the legislature that would place all department personnel under civil service classifications except the commissioner, the deputy commissioner and a confidential secretary.

Other department positions which are now appointive that would be affected by the bill are the directors of game and fish; lands and forestry, parks and recreation; waters, soils and minerals; and enforcement.

Herbst said he feels that the commissioner should have the opportunity to "choose his administrative management team for the key positions of the department."

The commissioner also spoke in favor of higher salaries for state employees both in the classified service and outside it.

"I believe very strongly that all salaries in the unclassified service should bear equitable relationships to one another and should be adjusted with the same frequency as salaries in the classified service," he said.

Herbst added, "I am a strong advocate of fair and equitable salaries for all state employees whether they be classified or unclassified."

Gene Nelson Herd Leads Averages In County DHIA

Jerry Hamre, supervisor of the Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement association, lists the following herds as the top in the association for the month of February:

	lbs. milk	lbs. fat
Gene Nelson	1,386	54.0
Donald Erickson	1,378	51.0
Mylo Carlson	1,270	51.0
James H. Muzzy	1,193	50.6

Marian Augustine	[illegible]	38.3

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat produced is averaged out over all the cows, giving the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month.

If many dry cows are included in the herd, the average for that month may be low, even though the cows which are milking are high producers.

There were 40 herds on test, with a total of 1,393 cows, in the Pennington association during February.

Twenty-one cows finished with over 500 pounds butter fat during the testing year, in a 305-day or less lactation. They were from the following herds:

	lbs. milk	lbs. fat
Mordy Morrison	13,700	508
Darrow Lundeen	15,530	574

Minnesota School Bus Safety Week To Be Observed

Minnesota school bus safety week will be observed throughout the state April 18 through 24 to call attention to the importance of the pupil transportation program and emphasize the safety aspects of the program, in accordance with a proclamation issued today by Governor Wendell R. Anderson.

Governor Anderson pointed out that in Minnesota 7,000 school buses transport 400,000 pupils to and from school each day, and that 14,000 licensed school bus drivers are involved in the program.

He summarized the purposes of the safety week as "to make safer drivers of the school bus operators, to emphasize the state law regarding when and when not to pass a school bus, and to help inform the general public of the importance that a school bus plays in the education program."

The observance, he said, is intended to "underscore the vigilance, caution, and courtesy that must be exercised by every citizen in order for there to be any significant reduction in vehicle accidents."

Management Of Horses Will Be U of M Offering

Horses Crazy over horses. The old song of the thirties expresses the present day equine interest that has developed into a $12.5 billion industry in the last 10 years.

With this expansion and its needs in mind, the University of Minnesota technical college, Crookston, is including a major in "Light Horse Management" beginning next fall to provide mid-management trainees for horse-oriented enterprises. On successful completion of the program the student will be granted the Associate in Applied Science degree.

"Minnesota has no light horse management programs," says Dr. David Larrabee, curriculum coordinator at the college. "In fact, there is a dearth of them all over the country. The only horse-related program in this state is a farrier (horse-shoeing) course at Anoka vocational-technical school."

The UMC course aims to teach individuals to work as trainers, riding instructors, breeding supervisors, stable supervisors, showmen and horse farm managers, he explained. Approximately 110 credit hours, with a minimum GPA of 2.00, will be required to graduate. These will include 65 credit hours in agriculture, 30 in general education and 15 in electives.

Any high school graduate who is interested in this type of career is encouraged to register, Larrabee said. Based on the interest that has been expressed in the program, a high percentage of the beginning enrollment is expected to be female.

HOME BUYER CLINIC
By John W. Warren
Vice President
American Land Title Association

It isn't unusual to encounter a home owner who confidently states, in effect:

"Sure, I own my property. My name's on the deed."

Unfortunately, a deed may not assure the home buyer that he owns anything. It is merely a document in which the seller of real estate transfers his right of ownership to the buyer in a home purchase transaction. The deed does not prove the seller is the owner, nor does it eliminate rights others may claim in the property.

John W. Warren

A woman in a southeastern state learned of difficulty that can be experienced with a deed when workmen unexpectedly began clearing her land to make way for a shopping center. She had been paying taxes on the real estate for years and held a deed. But the shopping center owner also had a deed and his title prevailed.

The woman had to give up her land, but her financial loss was covered by owner's title insurance.

It's wise to learn all you can about purchasing real estate before you buy — and that includes consulting an expert when it comes to a deed. Investigate your local purchase situation closely because customs and practices differ around the nation. And, to safeguard against possible financial loss from a defective deed or other land title problems, be sure to secure a title search and owner's title insurance.

Minnesota Has Few Pesticide Accidents

There are few recorded accidents and no recorded deaths in Minnesota due to pesticide poisoning, according to a Minnesota department of health official.

Most cases of pesticide poisoning result from carelessness or lack of supervision, said Warren Lawson, deputy executive officer with the department. Many accidents could be prevented if the user would follow label directions, he said.

"We had a case two summers ago where six people were using organic phosphate insecticides for aerial spraying. Within four hours one got sick and within 9 hours, all were sick and in the hospital. They were careless and got some of the insecticide on their skins," Lawson said.

Another case involved the accidental spraying of Argyle with the insecticide parathion in July, 1966, he said.

"The town was supposed to be sprayed with a safe dilute solution of DDT and malathion for mosquito control," Lawson said, but someone accidentally substituted parathion for the malathion midway through the application.

"Immediately we started looking for an adequate supply of atropine (a theraputic agent) in case it was needed for the 800 who lived in Argyle. There wasn't that much atropine available in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska if we pooled all the resources," Lawson explained.

As it turned out, only a small amount of parathion was used in the spraying. "No one got sick, but everybody was pretty scared for a few hours," Lawson said.

The Argyle incident is another reminder of the different toxicities of insecticides, Lawson said. Parathion, an extremely toxic insecticide, must be used with extensive precautions.

Pesticide usage on a national basis has doubled during the five-year period from 1964-69, but there have been no increases in accidental deaths or poisonings, added Phillip Harein, extension entomologist at the University of Minnesota. "In fact, there have been no increases in pesticide poisonings in the U.S. during the past 20 years despite a tremendous increase in the use of these chemicals," Harein said.

"The only exception in this trend occurred in 1970 when there were a few more accidental poisonings as a result of a switch from chlorinated hydrocarbons to organic phosphates, a more persistent pesticide," he added.

While pesticides can be dangerous if not used correctly, they have been part of an agricultural system which has brought us a higher standard living than ever before.

And insecticides have played an important role in improving public health. Malaria is an example. It has been practically eradicated in the U.S., Lawson said.

While pesticides have improved our standard of living, they have sometimes been found in unacceptable quantities in food, according to Horace Allen, former Minneapolis district deputy director of the food and drug administration.

Some pesticide problems that the FDA has uncovered are:

—Fish in Minnesota's Red river have been found to contain high levels of mercury residue.

—Coho salmon being shipped to Minnesota from Lake Michigan contained 20 parts per million of DDT.

—A few years ago, milk from Wisconsin was found to contain high amounts of the pesticide dieldrin. The cattle were being fed with beet pulp from the Red River Valley which contained the pesticide.

—In Montana, chlordane was being used on alfalfa. It consequently got into milk and was discovered in routine FDA sampling.

"Very few samples that the FDA examines approach the tolerance level even with the most strenuous use of pesticide. Trimmings and other treatment in food processing reduce pesticide residues even further," Allen said.

Many food processing plants are now making their own tests, Allen said, to aid the FDA in discovering pesticide residues.

Motor Vehicle Industry Notes 75th Anniversary

The 1971 model year has special meaning for American motor vehicle manufacturers, for it was 75 years ago—in 1896—that the first auto company began production.

Although American inventors had been working for several years previously and a number of working models were on the streets, the birth of the industry came as the Duryea Motor Wagon company got into operation with the production of 13 vehicles in 1896—the first time that more then one car was made from the same set of plans.

The industry has marked many milestones since these crude beginnings and in the process has changed virtually every aspect of American life. Motor vehicles opened the nation to an unparalleled period of economic growth and development, spawning new industries, broadening markets and providing a personal mobility never enjoyed before.

The Duryea was the first of some 3,000 automotive nameplates produced by more than 1,500 manufacturers since the dawn of the auto age. Some were single trial models while others have soared into the millions.

An indication of the nation's reliance on motor vehicles—cars, trucks and buses—to move both people and goods is shown in a review of production records.

The first one million American motor vehicles required 16 years—from 1896 to 1912. Only 18 years later, cumulative production reached 50 million. The 100 million mark was reached in 1948, despite the wartime halt to civilian production.

An expanded economy and improved standard of living in the post-war years saw aggregate production doubled to 200 million by 1962. For the past five years, annual production of cars, trucks and buses has averaged about 10 million vehicles.

The early success of the automobile in America resulted from its rapid transition from a high priced luxury item to a low-cost family workhouse within easy financial reach of all.

The availability of a low-priced car, followed by improved roads, changed the American life style. Greater freedom of choice was afforded as to where to live, work, shop and spend leisure time. Farm families found easy access to town and city dwellers could find more open living spaces in the suburbs.

The motor holiday became an accepted part of vacation planning and the nation's natural wonders changed from stereoscopic pictures to realities for millions of families. Camping out became a popular pastime and a new tourist and recreation industry burgeoned.

The rapid development of sound highway transportation also afforded new opportunities for manufacturers of other products to expand their markets and create additional jobs.

The motor vehicle industry today plays a leading role in the national economy with some 800,000 businesses directly related to the manufacture, distribution, servicing and use of cars, trucks and buses. The automotive industry is a prime market for a host of other businesses while it and its products represent a major revenue source for both national and state governments.

The first 75 years have been exciting years of growth, change and adjustment for the automotive industry and not even its severest critics can challenge its substantial contributions to the national welfare.

Cardiovascular diseases claim some 250,000 lives annually among people under age 65, chiefly family breadwinners, Minnesota Heart association reports.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q) Why did I get estimated tax forms? I've never filed one before?

A) Estimated tax forms were sent not only to everyone who filed a declaration of estimated tax for 1970 but to those who had a balance due of $40 or more when they filed their 1969 returns. Read the instructions that came with the forms to see if you are required to file an estimated tax declaration for 1971. Disregard the forms if you are not.

If you are required to file, be sure to use the pre-addressed forms sent you. These forms are identified with your name, address and social security number just as they appear in IRS files.

Q) Can I deduct the alimony I pay to my ex-wife?

A) Yes, alimony payments are deductible if you itemize expenses. Your ex-wife should declare these payments as income.

Note, that child support payments are not deductible to you and are not income to your ex-wife.

Q) My son is in Vietnam. What should I do about the tax forms you sent him?

A) Just hold them for him until he returns. Military personnel on duty in a combat zone such as Vietnam do not have to file a return until 180 days after they leave Vietnam.

Q) Do I have to pay tax on the strike benefits I received from my union?

A) Yes, this is taxable income unless it can be shown the benefits were intended as a gift.

Q) Is March 1 the filing date for farmers and fishermen this year?

A) March 1 is the deadline for farmers and fishermen, who did not file estimated tax declarations, to send in their final returns with any tax due paid in full to avoid penalties for underpayment of estimated tax. Farmers who made estimated tax payments for 1970 or who were not required to make them, have until April 15 to file their 1970 returns.

Q) Can I deduct my Medicare premiums?

A) Yes, premiums for health insurance such as Medicare are deductible if you itemize. Note that one-half of your health insurance premiums up to a maximum of $150 is deductible without regard to the 3 percent of income limitation. The balance should be added to your other medical expenses which are subject to the 3 percent of income limitation.

Q) How do I have taxes taken out of my company pension?

A) Obtain a Form W-4P from your local IRS office, fill it out and give it to the company paying your pension or annuity. It will authorize them to withhold taxes. Amounts withheld must be at least $5 a month and in whole dollar amounts.

Q) My wife has no income so why does she have to sign our tax return?

A) Your wife does not have to sign the return unless you wish to file a joint return which generally results in a lower tax liability. Income tax returns are legal documents which must be signed to be valid. Both signatures are required on a joint return even though only one had income.

Q) I'm a salesman and have to use my own car to call on customers. How much can I deduct for this expense?

A) You may deduct either your actual business expenses or a standard rate based on the miles driven. The rate for 1970 is 12 cents a mile for the first 15,000 business miles and 9 cents a mile thereafter. However, if you are reimbursed, only the amount of the cost in excess of your reimbursement may be deducted.

If you use the mileage rate, you may also deduct parking fees and tolls. Only if you use your actual expenses instead of the mileage rate, can you deduct such items as gas, oil, insurance, repairs and depreciation.

Driver License Renewals Eased

Beginning this month, preprinted applications for renewal of driver licenses will be mailed out by the driver license office, W. R. Hoaglund, Minnesota commissioner of public safety, announced today.

"We now have driver license information on every driver in Minnesota on the computer. When the time comes for renewal of the driver license (every four years), a preprinted application will be mailed out to the applicant. These will be mailed approximately 60 days before expiration of the license.

"All of the required data, including name, address, date of birth, color of eyes and hair, height and weight, etc., will be entered on the front side of the application. No entry need be made if there have been no changes.

"There are, however, a number of questions on the back of the form which will have to be answered. These have to do with recent experience with violations, physical condition, etc.

"Upon receipt of the application, the driver will need only to note the changes, if any, on the front, answer the questions, place signature on the back and return the application with the fee.

Trash Clean-up Encouraged By Highway Dep't.

"With a trash cleanup bill of $442,800 last year, we would welcome assistance from responsible groups who might wish to help in a spring cleanup of litter on portions of the state highway system," James A. Murchie, assistant commissioner, maintenance division, Minnesota department of highways, said today.

In the past years, Boy Scouts, 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America and other groups conducted local cleanup drives throughout the state and the "job was well done," Murchie asserted.

In getting a beautification campaign underway, the group representative should contact the area maintenance engineer of the state highway department in their locality to make arrangements.

Headquarters of the 10 area maintenance engineers in this area are at Bemidji and Crookston.

County roads, city streets, parks, etc., could also be cleaned up by contacting the proper local officials.

Volunteer groups will not be permitted to work on interstate highway system routes (freeways) or expressways, it was explained. Much of the cleanup operation will be assigned to wayside rest points and historical markers as well as open trunk highways.

"Your state highway department is committed to help preserve the natural environment on and adjacent to state highway system and is most willing to assist responsible groups which might want to conduct a litter cleanup project," Murchie said.

Select Garden Mums Now For Flowers In Fall

Now's the time to select the best garden chrysanthemums for your fall display of living color.

Chrysanthemums provide a colorful display when most other garden flowers have been tarnished or killed by early frosts, says Richard Widmer, University of Minnesota horticulturist.

However, not all varieties are satisfactory for Minnesota gardens and selecting the right variety now will pay off next fall, Widmer says. Minnesota gardeners must select cultivars—or cultivated varieties—which start to bloom in September. Cultivars developed for other parts of the country often bloom too late for Minnesota where the average date for a killing frost is about October 14 in the Twin Cities area.

The university's department of horticultural science has been breeding chrysanthemums tailored to the needs of Minnesota gardeners for 40 years, according to Widmer. All varieties must pass a rigorous testing program for at least 5 years before they are recommended.

This year the department's 50th introduction, Golden Jubilee, has been released. It is a stocky plant with deep-gold colored, 2½ to 3-inch flowers.

Minnesota introductions are available from many greenhouses, garden centers, nurseries and mail-order nurseries. Order your plants by name and don't accept substitutes unless you know that the substituted varieties are equally well suited to Minnesota conditions, Widmer cautions.

For more detailed information and colored pictures of recent Minnesota introductions, write for Miscellaneous Reports 82 and 101 to the Bulletin Room, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

8-Cent Stamp To Be Issued In Missouri

An eight cent stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary of Missouri's admission to the Union will be first placed on sale May 8 at Independence, Mo.

The stamp was designed by Bradbury Thompson, a member of the citizen's stamp advisory committee, who modified a submission by R. C. Holmes, staff artist of the Missouri tourist commission.

The subject of the horizontal stamp is the central portion of a Thomas Hart Benton mural in the Harry S. Truman library at Independence.

The stamp shows a Pawnee [illegible] and a group of settlers. In the background are oxen-drawn covered wagons. Across the bottom of the stamp is "Missouri 1821-1971 United States 8 cent". The numerals are in orange, the rest in black. An initial printing of 130 million stamps will be printed by gravure on the Andreotti press.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of stamps to be affixed, to Postmaster, Independence, Missouri 64051. Personal checks will not be accepted. Orders for covers must not include requests for uncanceled stamps. Cover requests must be postmarked no later than May 8.

"There are various routes of escape from responsibility: escape into death, escape into disease, and escape into stupidity. The last is the softest and easiest, for even intelligent people are usually closer to the goal than they would like to think." —Arthur Schnitzler

Minnesota First

Many sportsmen in Minnesota for a number of years have voluntarily supported an organization known as Ducks Unlimited. This group of concerned individuals is largely responsible for saving a large portion of the prairie pothole region in Canada which is rightly termed North America's "duck factory".

Ducks Unlimited uses voluntary contributions, primarily from United States sportsmen and conservationists, to purchase and-or control Canadian territory where ducks traditionally have nested over the centuries. We applaud the program which has done much to restore what was once a dangerously low waterfowl population.

But Minnesota also produces a large number of ducks, and Minnesota hunters harvest the majority of those which are taken each year. Regardless of the value of the work done by Ducks Unlimited, it seems to us that Minnesotans must first be concerned about Minnesota and our own waterfowl production potential.

We mention this because of pending legislation in the Minnesota legislature. The $1 surcharge which was placed on small game hunting licenses almost 10 years ago for wetlands acquisition is soon to expire. Minnesota Federation of Conservation clubs polled its member organizations, which voted almost unanimously to renew the surcharge and add another dollar to the license fee for the wetlands program.

In the senate natural resources committee, however, the second dollar for Minnesota wetlands was rejected and a Ducks Unlimited request was substituted. As we understand it, the DU bill would call for a one dollar state duck stamp, required by waterfowl hunters in Minnesota. Of this one dollar, the state would retain 50 cents and Ducks Unlimited would receive 50 cents for waterfowl work in Canada.

There is no question that we get some Canadian ducks past our blinds every fall, and we heartily endorse the Ducks Unlimited organization. But if it comes down to a question of where the money from a $2 surcharge on hunting licenses goes, we believe it should go first to Minnesota. There is much work that can be done here.

Time To Write Again

Persons who believe in protecting their personal liberties in private ownership of firearms are advised that it's time to write to their legislators again. Restrictive and possibly confiscatory regulations have been proposed in the Minnesota legislature and have gained at least a semblance of support.

Main pusher of the legislation, which was introduced in the Senate by Sen. William McCutcheon of St. Paul, is Attorney General Warren Spannaus. This is, of course, less than surprising. The former state DFL chairman told the people his views of private firearms ownership long before the election, and there was no reason to expect he would change his tune. The firearms owners in Minnesota are now beginning to pay for what they bought in the last election of attorney general.

What would the legislation in question do? There are many provisions. Among them is that a person must obtain a permit from the police chief or county sheriff for the purchase or other acquistion of a handgun. (Since most criminals would probably steal the handgun, we would assume a permit would be needed for that type of acquisition as well.)

Investigation of the application, according to the proposal, will be made by the official to whom the application is made. Fingerprinting of the applicant would be required. A permit (to acquire the handgun) would be issued within 15 days of receipt of the application, unless "good cause" exists for denial of the application. "Good cause" is not further defined.

Within five days of transfer of a handgun, the transferor shall deliver by certified mail two copies of a properly completed permit to the local police chief or county sheriff, as the case may be. Handguns unlawfully possessed, carried, acquired or used are declared to be nuisances and forfeited to the state.

There are other provisions in the proposal, including several exemptions, but we feel these are attempts at appeasing opponents rather than any redeeming factor in the legislation. Once the holes are drilled, the screws can be tightened later.

That summarizes SF 1223. There is also SF 1224 which regulates the carrying and transporting of handguns. That legislation would also require a permit to carry the handgun which the owner already has a permit to own.

It is significant that no permit to carry shall be issued to any person who cannot prove to the satisfaction of the permit-issuing official a need for carrying a handgun and prove "familiarity with the handling and use of the particular weapon". Permits would be renewable annually.

We do not know what fees, if any, have been proposed for such permits. It is entirely possible that they could be set extremely high to discourage ownership, just as the red tape of permits for the casual owner or user would discourage ownership.

If personal freedom doesn't upset you, maybe this will: According to the cost study prepared by Research Associates for the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, this type of bill would cost the taxpayers about $34.67 to investigate EACH APPLICANT, even though a similar program in New York cost $72.87 per applicant.

According to the staff report done for the commission, Minnesota households have the same percentage of handgun ownership as the national average. The report notes that 46 per cent of handguns are acquired new at a rate, in 1968, of 2,500,000 per year. The total number of annual transfers in Minnesota, pro-rated by population, would be 103,260. The annual cost of transfer permits under the attorney general's proposal would be $3,580,024! The state crime bureau now has a total annual budget of $1,265,000.

If the same procedure is used to investigate owners of the estimated 493,000 handguns now existing in the state, that $3.5 million cost would be multiplied several times.

Write your legislator and tell him what you think, and you don't have to be a literary genius to do it. And it wouldn't hurt to tell Gov. Wendell Anderson what you think of his attorney general, either.

Precious Time

While time is a constant thing, broken down into years and months and weeks and days and hours and seconds, it is also a relative commodity. Some people seem to have more of it than others—or at least the freedom to use it as they see fit.

Time is relative in that it goes fast during the dinner hour but drags by when waiting for a bus or plane. It seems to stand still for young people impatient to grow up, but fairly flies for the middle aged not eager to grow old. And since time itself can not be changed, we can only hope to control that part of it which is available to us.

A study by the Phil Price agency in Louisiana was mentioned recently in the Minnkota Power cooperative's publication, the "Minnkota Messenger". It shows how much of our time will be used under current use patterns.

For instance, a man will spend only about nine years of his total life earning a living. The agency figured 40 hours per week, 50 weeks a year, for 40 years—which it considers the average working career for most men.

It also figures the average man will spend 20 years of his life sleeping! We find it hard to believe that we sleep three times as much as we work, but the agency deals in lifetime averages and we'll take their figures at face value.

So how else do you spend your time?

The agency estimates that you'll spend 30 full days just dialling the telephone—not to mention the amount of time talking on it. The average man will spend eight days tying his shoes and at least five months waiting for buses. More than a month will be spent waiting for red lights to change to green and about the same amount of time in barber or beauty shops.

If you're average, you'll spend four years eating and three months brushing your teeth. Watching the boob tube will consume 10 years of the average lifetime, the agency estimates, with two years spent reading books and six months spent in the tub or shower.

With so much time already programmed for you, it may take a bit of personal scheduling to make room for being you. If you set aside an hour a day for five days a week, you will gain 260 hours a year, or the equivalent of 32 full working days. Just think what you could accomplish in such an amount of time.

Time is made precious by the fact that it can be used only once, because each moment that goes past is lost forever. And nobody knows when the time allotted to him or her on this earth may come to a close. Something as precious as time deserves to be used wisely.

How are you using your time?

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I would like to make a few comments about the movie "Diary of a Mad Housewife" that was shown in our local theatre. It was rated "R" (restricted). I assumed this meant bad language or was full of violence. There was no violence in this movie just filthy language, a lot of nudity, (from six inches below the navel on up) and raw sex. My first reaction was to leave but at the time I was too embarrassed.

Sex education should be taught in school but after checking with the school administration I found there is too much opposition to a course of this type, yet parents will let their children go to movies and observe cheap demonstrations of love making and sex acts. If you think I was shocked you should have seen the seven or eight year old boy that sat across the aisle from me.

Library Offers Tax Publications

Minnesota tax payers who want more information on taxes of all kinds will find help in a number of new tax and business materials added to the Northwest regional library's reference section, according to Miss Mary Croteau, librarian.

The Minnesota Tax Reporter, published by Commerce Clearing House, is an up-to-date loose leaf service that covers the entire field of state and local taxation. It includes income, property, excise, sales, and city taxes, the law and any new matters.

In addition to the Tax Reporter, the library also receives weekly issues of State Tax Review. The Review highlights major pending legislation, new tax laws, regulations, decisions and other tax news for taxes in all states.

The Federal Tax Guide, another Commerce Clearing House publication, includes income, estate and gift tax explanations, tax planning, rate tables, new withholding tables and any 1971 new matters. Tax Week offers understandable guidance in quick-reading form.

The library also subscribes to Prentice-Hall's Executive Report, a weekly roundup of profit making ideas for business. It has recommendations for marketing and sales, management policy, employee and tax saving ideas. One of the features in the March 20th Executive Report is "How to bring down mailing costs when postage rates go up."

Supplementing the Executive Report is the Washington Letter with the latest news from the capital that effects business.

Businessmen will also be interested in the library's acquisition of Standard and Poor's Register of Corporations, Directors and Executives. This directory has 33,000 corporate listings, directors and key executive personnel, number of employees, approximate annual sales volume and the products and services of each company in order of importance.

Economist Says State Economy "Doesn't Lag"

Although per capita personal income is and has been lower in Minnesota than for the nation as a whole, the state's economy is not lagging, John D. Helmberger, agricultural and applied economist at the University of Minnesota, said.

The decline in agriculture's significance and the rapid growth in such expanding industries as electronics suggest that Minnesota's prospects for greater than average economic growth are good. This applies to growth in total personal income despite continued migration from the state, in non-farm income and in per capita personal income, he added.

Minnesota's rate of non-farm income increase from 1929 to 1969—810 per cent—was higher than any neighboring state and higher than the national increase of 750 per cent, according to U. S. department of commerce figures.

Weekly manufacturing wages are greater in Minnesota than the national average and the state's manufacturing payrolls increased 1,126 per cent from 1929 through 1968 while the national manufacturing payroll increase was 807 per cent, Helmberger said.

Non-farm incomes and manufacturing wages have also increased more in the state than in the nation in the past two decades.

Minnesota's growth is good considering it has "more than its share of farmers" whose incomes are lower than those of urban residents and considering the migration from rural areas and from the state, he said. Minnesota's cities absorb most of its rural migrants, but not all of them. The state's loss in rural residents has occurred as farmers all over the country have flocked to urban areas, but farming remains relatively more important in Minnesota than in the nation as a whole.

Commerce Dep't. Adds Ombudsman To Aid Business

Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans has created an ombudsman for business in the U. S. department of commerce.

The ombudsman will serve as a special assistant to the secretary and will provide the business community with a high level person to whom businessmen may bring their inquiries, criticisms and suggestions and obtain information, guidance and assistance on government matters.

The secretary named Thomas E. Drumm Jr., a senior commerce official with extensive experience in government-business relationships, to fill the post.

In creating the new position the secretary said, "My action today is part of a continuing effort to improve communication between government and the businessmen." The ombudsman will provide information and answer inquiries in regard to federal programs of interest to business—within and without the department of commerce.

The secretary cited as an example of improved government-business relationships, the international business assistance service which he established in the department in September of 1969 to provide government-wide assistance to businessmen with specific international trade problems. "By helping U. S. businessmen on a case-by-case basis, we have been able to speed the solution of problems faced by our companies in specific international transactions and thereby increase sales abroad."

While the assistance to be rendered by the Ombudsman will be government wide it will not include intervention (a) on specific cases before federal regulating agencies or (b) in negotiation or renegotiation of contracts between business and the government.

The functions and responsibilities of the ombudsman will, at the outset, include the following four-point program:

1. Receive and answer questions on federal programs of interest to business.
2. Assist business by providing a focal point for receiving and handling communications involving information, complaints, criticisms and suggestions about government activities relating to business.
3. Arrange conferences with appropriate officials within the Department and in other departments and agencies and follow up on referrals to determine whether further assistance is necessary and appropriate.
4. Develop suggested changes to remedy the causes of legitimate business complaints about the federal government, and refer them to the secretary of commerce for further action.

Drumm may be reached by phone at 202-967-3178. His mailing address will be c-o Office of the Secretary, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C. 20230.

Policyholder Questions Answered by the Health Insurance Institute, 277 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q: What features should I look for in disability insurance?

A: Disability policies are designed to help replace income lost as a result of illness or an accident.

Some important points to consider in chosing a policy are:

1. How much income will it provide per month?
2. How long must you be disabled before starting to collect?
3. How long will the income continue?
4. What disabilities are covered or excluded?
5. Is the policy non-cancellable by the company?
6. Can the premiums be increased?
7. Can a change in your occupation or earnings affect your coverage?

All these points affect the cost of your policy.

Maximum benefits usually run 40 to 60 per cent of your regular earnings.

A number of factors determine your benefits under different policies. For example, whether your disability is due to illness or an accident. Whether you merely cannot perform your regular occupation or are unable to perform any gainful occupation for which you may be reasonably qualified. Whether you're confined to a hospital or institution, to your home, or have a "non confining" disability.

The benefit period can be either short-term or long-term. Short term policies cover temporary disability and generally pay benefits no longer than one or two years. Long-term policies typically pay benefits up to 10 years or to age 65 for disabilities due to illness — or, with some policies, as long as you live if you're disabled by an accident. Obviously, the longer the benefit period, the higher the cost of the policy.

Your insurance agent can help you choose the coverage that's best for you in the light of your needs and resources.

JUST ENOUGH dry ground remained above water to give two horses and a dog room to keep their feet dry—or so it would appear in this photo. While generally few water problems were experienced in the area thus far this spring, the above scene took place last Wednesday on the William Sanders farm eight miles east and a mile south of Thief River Falls. Owner Jerry Sanders "rescued" the animals without any difficulty.

SPRINGTIME is the time to release some of that pent-up energy that has been building up all winter. Kristie Ortloff and Debra Mortrud braved the wind and dust on Saturday to take a whirl of their own on the equipment at the Knox elementary school playground.

Grant Will Help Speed Coding Of Traffic Mishaps

A special grant from the federal department of transportation is making it possible for the accident records section of the Minnesota department of public safety to speed up the coding of 1970 traffic accidents for computerization, Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today. As a result, the department expects to have full information on 1970 accidents available much earlier than usual, probably within the next 30 days.

Minnesota is one of a few states selected for acceleration of accident coding because it was currently processing its accident data ahead of most other states. The department of transportation reportedly is interested in getting early information on 1970 traffic accident patterns for studies and reports it is preparing.

The federal aid is making it possible to assign additional coding clerks and to extend the working hours. The computerization of the year's accident records involves coding from 30 to more than 50 items of information from each of approximately 100,000 records. Every reportable accident is coded, whether it was attended by an officer or not. While most of the work has already been done, the most sensitive part of the job, reviewing, editing, and correcting has not been completed.

Computerization of the records makes hundreds of thousands of items of information more available for a variety of studies. The Department of Transportation regularly prepares annual summaries of accidents in 18 tables containing about 1,500 items of information, making it possible to observe accident characteristics, including such features as time of day, day of week, age of driver, type of accident, contributing circumstances and other information.

Data thus stored in the computer are drawn upon almost daily for a wide variety of information important to highway safety. For example, the traffic engineering section of the Highway Department calls for quarterly studies of high accident locations. These provide guidance in re-designing roads, correcting surface conditions, and making other corrections. The Highway Patrol carries on a continuous study of accidents by location, time of day, and day of week as a guide in assigning patrol duty. Many local police and sheriff's departments call upon the Public Safety Department for accident studies related to their own special problems.

IRS Grants Tax Exempt Status To Mpls. School

Internal Revenue service has issued a favorable ruling of tax exemption to the second foundation school of Minneapolis, according to George Lethert, district director.

The second foundation school has publicized its racially non-discriminatory admissions policy in local newspapers.

This ruling was issued under a statement of position announced by the IRS July 10, 1970 which concluded it could no longer justify legally allowing exempt status to private schools which practice racial discrimination.

Where a private school has adopted and publicly announced an admissions policy which does not discriminate due to color, creed or national origin, Lethert explained the IRS will assume that such a policy will be maintained in good faith.

Lethert stressed also that the IRS has begun a vigorous program of auditing tax exempt organizations. Examinations of private schools will take into account complaints from the public or information from other sources that indicate non-compliance with assurances made by the schools.

Where such examinations show that a school has not administered its nondiscriminatory admissions policy in good faith, the tax exempt status of the school will be challenged.

7 Million Vets Are Eligible For Additional Loans

About seven million World War II and Korean conflict veterans who financed their homes with Veterans administration-guaranteed loans before May 7, 1968, are eligible for additional home loan benefits, the VA announced today.

John R. Murphy, director of the VA center in St. Paul, said these are veterans who obtained loans during the years when loan guaranty was substantially lower than now. As a result, some $37.5 billion in unused home loan benefits is available for their use.

Murphy noted that the current VA loan guaranty maximum is $12,500, or 60 per cent of the loan, whichever is less—a maximum in effect since May 7, 1968.

This compares with the $4,000, or 50 per cent maximum guaranty, set when VA started its home loan program after World War II. This maximum was increased to $7,500 or 60 per cent on Sept. 1, 1951, and raised to the current $12,500 maximum May 7, 1968.

Murphy explained that any veteran who financed his home with a VA-guaranteed loan before May 7, 1968, now has either $5,000 or $3,500 home loan entitlement available—depending on when he received his loan.

He urged veterans and servicemen who want to establish eligibility for entitlement remaining from their original GI loans to contact the St. Paul VA office located in the new federal building at Fort Snelling, or their local service organization representative.

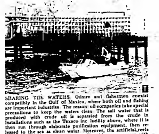
NEWS OF ECOLOGY



SHARING THE WATERS. Oilmen and fishermen coexist compatibly in the Gulf of Mexico, where both oil and fishing are important industries. The reason: oil companies take special precautions to keep the waters clean. The salt water that is produced with crude oil is separated from the crude in installations such as the Texaco Inc. facility above, where it is then run through elaborate purification equipment, then released to the sea as clean water. Moreover, the artificial reefs formed by pilings of installations like this soon swarm with marine life, to create exciting new fishing in the Gulf of Mexico.

Planned Unit Makes Housing Mix Possible

A compatible mix of expensive and inexpensive housing units—town houses, apartments and homes—is possible in a planned unit development, Robert Engstrom, vice president for planning and design, Pemton, Inc., Minneapolis, said.

Engstrom addressed the recent land in transition symposium in St. Paul, sponsored by the agricultural extension service and the association of metropolitan soil and water conservation districts.

Planned unit developments, made possible by local legislation, attempt to encourage good design in specific developments through design review by local boards and officials rather than relying on uniform, established zoning and subdivision regulations pertaining to the area.

There's a potential for planned unit development ordinances, given the flexibility of this concept. But as a municipality develops more sophisticated administrative organizations, adding a fire marshal, right-of-way engineer, sewer engineer and water engineer—"all trying to do a good job—they all take a little whack at you." Then the very purpose for which a planned unit development ordinance was enacted in the first place—to do a more effective job—is destroyed, Engstrom added.

"Regulations continue to pile up the more populated and sophisticated the municipality is. In other words, more staff—more regulations....The smaller the community, the easier it is to work with a planned unit development ordinance," the construction firm executive said.

Housing densities can be greater in planned unit developments than subdivisions, yet more open space can be made available. By concentrating densities, a golf course can be provided in a planned unit development, thereby creating value that flows back to a large area, he said.

A consequence of present zoning regulations is a surplus of single-family residentially-zoned land and a shortage of apartment land. This creates "an artificially high price for apartment land, thereby forcing people who can't afford to own homes to pay a higher-rent in the interest of health, safety and welfare," Engstrom added.

With an overall density of 60 units per acre—three times that of a standard subdivision, it could be decided what type of housing would be best for the site and what natural features of the site should be preserved. This would allow people to put more money back into the land rather than "just wasting it on things that don't contribute to conservation and livability....If you can economize on things underground—utilities, etc—then you can afford to haul in trees and improve the environment," he said.

Highway Head Calls Attention To Polk Contract

Commissioner of Highways N. T. Waldor called attention recently to the economic impact of highway construction contracts on local communities. At the March 26 letting there were three contracts let in rural areas which exceeded one million dollars each.

One contract for construction on TH 15 in Brown and Watonwan counties was for $1,227,781. The population for the two counties, according to the 1970 census, is 42,000 (Brown, 29,000 and Watonwan, 13,000). If the cost for this construction were to be divided equally between all the citizens in these two counties it would have cost each citizen more than $29.

In Polk county two contracts were let for construction on TH 2 with a total in excess of five million dollars. If we were to collect this amount on an equal basis from each of the 34,000 citizens of Polk county, it would cost each one $147.

"Although this money is not collected in this direct manner from each person in the county, the allocation to the counties involved does produce the improved highway facilities, directly reduces costs to the motorists by reducing wear and tear on his automobile and by providing quicker and safer routes to his destination. The local economy is also stimulated by introducing additional traffic into the area and by stimulating new truck and bus routes into these areas," Waldor said.

North Central Airlines Holds Annual Meeting

Hal N. Carr of Minneapolis was re-elected chairman of the board at the North Central airlines annual stockholders meeting in Wausau, Wisc., last Wednesday.

The company earned a profit of $2,178,000 after an out-of-period charge of $617,000. Total revenues for the year were $91,952,000, up 34 per cent over 1969.

During 1970 North Central's route system increased 1,020 miles to 9,900 miles. New nonstop service was inaugurated between Milwaukee and New York City. Nonstop service was also started between Milwaukee and Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus and between Minneapolis and Omaha.

Roseau Electric Income Was Highest Ever

The largest crowd ever to attend the Roseau Electric Cooperative annual meeting April 3 heard that the cooperative had had a record-breaking year.

Office manager Norrell Erickson said that receipts for the cooperative were $703,585.48 in 1970. Total margins were $100,186.52. A total of almost 35 million kilowatts were sold in 1970, compared with just over 29 million kilowatts the year before.

A change in the by-laws was approved so that only members from within a district from which a director is to be elected may vote on that directorship.

Albert Gust, Strathcona, was elected over Clarence Lian of Middle River. Lian had served on the board since 1969. Also elected to the board were Robert Wicklund and Delmar Hagen, Gatzke.

The group was told that rates for electricity would remain unchanged for at least the next two years.

Students Report Views On Pollution

Soil conservation service displays were shown recently in Thief River Falls elementary schools, stressing methods of combatting the problem of pollution.

Following the presentation at St. Bernard's parochial school, students were assigned to write their views on pollution. The following essays were selected and submitted to the Times as winners from grades four, five and six:

Laurie Ackenbach
Grade 4

I think water pollution is a very serious thing because pretty soon we won't have clean water, and without clean water we cannot survive. Animals will die without water, too.

In the first exhibit I saw a farm by a river. The water from the animals flowed into the river, which is our drinking water. That is one of the many things that pollutes the water.

So, trying to save our water, the Soil Conservation Department tried a new method. They started digging reservoirs around the farms.

In the second exhibit I saw how this worked. First the waste is caught in the reservoirs before it reaches the river. Then it is stored until spring. In spring it is put in the ground to fertilize the soil. The water helps the plants grow because it has lots of food value in it. One head of cattle produces twenty-six dollars worth of fertilizer each year.

The Soil Conservation Department had a good idea because it helps to save our water and helps to fertilize the soil.

Farmers near Red Lake River and other rivers or lakes should have this done to their farms to help prevent water pollution.

Lori Klemisch
Grade 5

Many different things are dumping wastes into our lakes, rivers, and streams. And smoke filled with chemicals into our air such as factories, farms, and automobiles.

Factories do it by wastes going through a pipe from the building to the river. They also put smoke into our air.

Farms do it by animals' wastes on their fields in the fall. And then the snow comes. In the spring it melts and flows into the lakes, rivers and streams.

People in automobiles pollute the air with their car exhaust. All these ways of pollution could be prevented if people stopped to think.

Renae Gerardy
Grade 6

Water pollution is an enormous problem in Thief River Falls and other places also. Water pollution is everyone's fault, for the waters now are being contaminated or shall I say polluted.

A lot of water pollution is from the farms because the farm wastes run into the rivers and pollute them. This usually happens in the spring, when the sun melts the snow and all this wastes run into the rivers.

But now farmers are digging trenches around the farm yard, and the wastes run into a tank so it won't pollute rivers.

The government is making laws so we can have clean water to drink and swim in.

But I think it has a lot to do with factories for everyday tons of rubbish is thrown in rivers, hopefully laws will be passed against this. Minnesota is a land of one thousand lakes, lets not have them all polluted.

New Air Quality Control Areas Are Established

William D. Ruckelshaus, Administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), has announced designation of boundaries of eight new air quality control regions in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota. In addition, three existing regions had their boundaries revised.

In Minnesota the new regions are: Central Minnesota intrastate air quality control region, comprising nine counties; Northwest Minnesota intrastate air quality control region, comprising 25 counties; and the Southwest Minnesota intrastate air quality control region, comprising 18 counties.

The actions, as detailed in the "Federal Register," result in the entire territory of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota being covered by a total of nineteen federally designated air quality control regions.

The administrator's action was taken under the 1970 amendments to the clean air act. These divisions, to cover all of each state, will permit development of a uniform, stringent and enforceable program to clean the air in each region.

As required by the act, the air pollution control office of EPA held a consultation on Jan. 15, 1971 in Madison, Wis.; on Feb. 9, 1971 in Lansing, Mich., and on Feb. 22, 1971, in Twin Cities, to discuss proposed boundaries for the regions with state and local officials. Representatives of many of the states and affected local agencies participated.

Under the 1970 amendments to the clean air act, federal designation of interstate and major intrastate regions were to be completed by EPA before April 1, 1971. After that any undesignated portion of a state automatically became an air quality control region. Over 100 regions, covering most of the United States, were designated by April 1.

Also under the 1970 amendments, on Jan. 30, 1971, administrator Ruckelshaus proposed national primary air quality standards for the protection of public health and national secondary air quality standards for the protection of welfare for six contaminants—sulfur oxides, particulate matter, carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons, nitrogen oxides and photochemical oxidants. Final standards must be set no later than April 30, 1971.

When the standards are set, the state or states responsible for a region are on notice to develop plans for implementing the primary standards within three years, and the secondary standards, within a reasonable time. The states are to conduct public hearings and submit their implementation plans for EPA approval within nine months after the air quality standards are established. The administrator may grant a state an 18-month extension of the submittal date in the case of plans to implement secondary air quality standards.

Voided License Plates Re-Cycled At Scrap Mill

Development of recycling processes for scrap metal has simplified one problem of the motor vehicle registration section of the Minnesota department of public safety—the destruction of voided license plates, Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

Each year several thousand plates are turned back to our state, for a number of reasons such as change of registration, registration in another state, junking of the vehicle, etc. Careful records must be kept on each plate turned in, and each plate must be destroyed. Until recently, they were destroyed manually, a time-consuming process, which has now been discontinued.

On March 22, the state began instead to feed them into a shredding and fragmentation mill at the Kaplan Scrap Iron and Metal company on Shepard Road. This mill, which normally devours automobiles at the rate of 250 a day, made short work of 3,000 plates accumulated since last July, pounding, grinding and shredding them and delivering about 4,000 pounds of waste metal into a railroad gondola in a matter of minutes. This compares with more than two days of labor required for their manual destruction.

The following day, the metal arrived at the North Star Steel company mill in St. Paul, and three days later was a new product, possibly reinforcing rods for new highways.

The Kaplan mill fragmentizes whole automobiles including engine blocks, glass and upholstery, and separates the ferrous metal from the waste and other metals. Most of the iron and steel go to the North Star mill in St. Paul. The rest goes to the U.S. Steel plant in Duluth.

How Does Your Garden Grow?

Gardening can be fun.

Even if you've just been a reluctant weed puller before, with the wealth of materials at hand today, gardening can be a breeze.

And the rewards are blossoms from the first flush of spring right up to frost.

Here are some gardening tips to help you wishful would-be gardeners get started:

- The secret of a beautiful garden is in the planning. For instance, if strong color accents are your goal, they must be planned.

Flower beds and borders should fit into a definite overall pattern. One blossom here and another there makes no "show" at all.

- Plan accents in your garden, too. One way is with an expandable Rubbermaid border fence. The sturdy white fence won't rust, warp or break. Four galvanized steel stakes come with each, so it's easy to install and it folds to just a few inches for compact storage.

Other interesting additions might include a small fountain, colorful pots of flowers or even outdoor lighting for enjoying your garden in the evening.

- By planning ahead you can cut the usual time spent mowing the lawn, too. Make sure the strips along flower beds are wide enough so the power mower can be used. Otherwise you'll spend hours trimming the grass between the flower beds by hand.

- Use a mulch. Mulching makes gardening easier because it cuts down on such chores as weeding, cultivating and watering. And it helps plants grow better, too.

- Hand-to-hand warfare in the battle of the weeds is out, chemical warfare is in. A garden sprayer or spreader to apply chemical controls will free your lawn and flower beds of weeds in record time.

- Save time and energy by investing in the right tools. Tools that are sharp and rust-free can cut your working time, too.

To get started you'll need grass shears, a garden hose and nozzle, garden hoe, edger, spade and at least one rake. Other essentials for gardening include a garden trowel and bulb planter.

- Organize your equipment for easier gardening. A 10-foot section of your garage wall should accommodate all the tools you'll need. Hang tools from nails or pegs on perforated hardboard. Use shelves to hold packages of supplies, like fertilizers, weed sprays, packets of seeds and the watering can.

Rasmussen Is Award Winner

Harold G. Rasmussen, Thief River Falls, has been named a 1970 merit award winner by the board of Time Insurance company, a Milwaukee life and health firm. This is the sixth time Rasmussen has been named an award winner by the company.

Of the more than 3,000 independent insurance agents associated with the company, only 10 per cent received the award, which is based on service to clients, product knowledge, and 1970 sales activity.

Using Snow Tires During Summer Is Poor Economy

As warmer weather begins to melt the snow and ice of the winter, skiers put away their skis, skaters put away their skates and sledders put away their sleds. The question is: Why don't more motorists put away their snow tires?

Tire Industry Safety council advises motorists who continue to use snow tires during warm weather months that they are practicing false economy. By driving on dry pavements, the life of the tire is greatly reduced because of excessive heat build-up and accelerated tread wear. The tire may have been used next winter, but will now have to be replaced.

"Heat is a tire's worst enemy," says Ross R. Ormsby, chairman of the council. "Sustained high-speed driving on these extra duty, deep-tread tires in warm weather results in much greater heat build-up than in conventional tires with normal tread design and thickness."

"Running such a tire under these conditions easily raises temperatures above the critical level of about 250 degrees," Ormsby said, "and the tread begins to wear rapidly."

According to the council, snow tires used during the summer will be near useless when winter returns. With little, if any, tread remaining they will be unprepared when snow and ice conditions set in, and drivers are reminded that many states require that all type tires have sufficient tread depth.

The council recognizes it might be economical for motorists to leave snow tires on their vehicles if there is only one-eighth inch of tread depth remaining. When the tire is then worn to the one-sixteenth inch level, it should be removed as it is no longer has any value as a snow tire or conventional tire.

Federal law now requires all tire manufacturers to place "wear bars" on all new passenger car tires. The bars, officially known as "tread wear indicators," serve as a warning to motorists when the tires are worn to the danger point. The "wear bars" appear as smooth, narrow bands running across the face of the tire tread when it is worn to the one-sixteenth level.

Tires which have been removed for storage should be placed flat in a cool, dry area, away from sunlight and electrical equipment. The tire's air pressure should also be reduced to about 10 pounds to avoid unnecessary pressure on the beads and cords.

Many states require safety studded snow tires to be removed from vehicles after a certain date. Legal removal dates and states affected include: March 31—Washington; April 1—Idaho, Iowa, Oklahoma, Rhode Island and West Virginia; April 15—Kansas, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Dakota, Virginia and Wisconsin; April 30—New York; May 1—Arizona, California, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota; and May 31—Oregon.

One Out Of 50 Night Drivers Considered Drunk

"When you drive on the streets and highways during the evening and night-time hours, two drivers out of every hundred on the streets with you are drunk," Minnesota Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Haaglund warned today.

"Not just drinking. Drunk. This is the conclusion of the federal department of transportation, based on careful surveys. The survey teams concluded that this proportion of drivers had been drinking to the extent that their blood alcohol was at the intoxication level of 0.10 per cent or higher," he said.

He pointed out that to achieve this level an ordinary man of 160 pounds would have to consume the alcoholic equivalent of between six and seven one-ounce drinks of whiskey within two hours after eating.

Other studies, he said, show that at the .10 per cent level a driver is about six times more accident prone than a non-drinking driver. "Our own studies of Minnesota drivers indicate that the severity of the accidents and the degree of intoxication are correlated.

"There is also evidence that these dangerous drivers are more numerous on the highways during week-ends, and contribute to the sharp rise in accident rates based on travel mileage, which starts Friday night. Minnesota studies on rural trunk highways show that a sharp rise in accident rates begins on Friday evening and reaches a peak of more than 900 per hundred million vehicle miles in the early hours of Sunday. This compares with an average accident rate of 506 for all highways."

No "identity problem" for these young people!

. . . thanks to the annual Newspaper Skills Course at Anoka coming up again this summer. If you think you'd like newspaper work, read on!

The eight young people pictured above are among a growing group of young people who have "found themselves" in newspaper journalism . . . thanks to a training course at the Technical Education Center near Anoka, Minnesota.

Interested? Fill out the coupon below. You may be one of the 20 to be selected. But be prepared for eight weeks of very hard work, and don't bother to write unless you do have that strong desire to go into newspaper journalism as your life's work.

The 1971 course starts June 21. This is an eight-week concentrated course sponsored by the Minnesota Newspaper Association to train interested persons in the skills of newspaper writing and photography.

The course was established in the summer of 1969 at the Anoka Technical Education Center. Eleven students enrolled for the course, and six graduated. Of these, four immediately went to work on Minnesota newspapers. In 1970, 17 persons enrolled in the course, and 15 completed the course. Of these, eight became employed or re-employed on Minnesota newspaper staffs, one on a Wisconsin newspaper, and one in Iowa.

There are only three prerequisites for taking the course: (1) a high school education; (2) passing of entrance tests, including typing (35 wpm), an essay-type English usage test, and a personal interview, and most important of all (3) a deep desire to work on a newspaper.

Falco Sparverius Sparverius

Often mistaken for a robin perched upon a roadside pole, power line or dead tree, Falco Sparverius is seldom given a second glance by the casual traveler. Only when he stoops swiftly to the ground, or hovers like a humming bird in mid-air, is the passing observer likely to note that this robin-sized bird bears strong resemblance to a tiny falcon. Indeed, he should, for that is exactly what Falco Sparverius is—the tiniest member of the falcon clan in North America.

Known by a number of common names including Sparrow Hawk, Grasshopper Hawk, Short-Winged Hawk and Killy Hawk, this little falcon is not only the most brilliantly colored hawk in North America, but one of the least destructive. No greater misnomer could possibly have been given him than the label of Sparrow Hawk by which unfortunately, he is best known. Very rarely does his diet include sparrows or other small birds; in fact, many small birds show no fear of him at all and frequently have been observed to chase him away if he venturrs too close.

Insects, such as grasshoppers and crickets, form the bulk of his food staples during the warmer part of the year. Mice and other small rodents constitute his principal fare at other times. Such beneficial feeding habits make the Sparrow Hawk a friend to the farmer and even where not legally protected, he is seldom deliberately destroyed.

As with most birds, the male is the more colorful. The slate-blue upper portion of his head is crowned with a patch of reddish-brown. Chin and cheeks are off-white and are broken by a pair of vertical dark streaks that almost frame the eyes. His back, rusty-brown barred with black, contrasts strikingly with bluish gray wing coverts and whitish underparts. Black spots dot his light buff colored breast. The female Sparrow Hawk, a bit larger than the male, is roughly similar except that her wing coverts are dark brown and her breast carries streaks of light brown rather than black spots.

Seldom bothering to construct a conventional nest, the Sparrow Hawk chooses some odd spots in which to deposit its average clutch of three to five eggs. These places can range from rock ledges or old woodpecker homes to shallow depressions in the ground and hollow trees. This bird is one of the most widely distributed hawks in North America. He and his several subspecies are found in just about all parts of the continent. Though seldom used for falconry, this diminutive hawk is often kept as a pet where state law permits.

Fly Rod Fishing Quiz
by Leon Chadler

Q. What are the advantages offered by fly fishing?

A. Many experienced fishermen agree that they get far more personal satisfaction and enjoyment in catching fish with fly rod equipment than any other type gear. An important factor is that a large portion of the diet of many game fish is of the type represented by imitation flies, nymphs, etc. It is logical that under certain conditions more fish will be caught if offered the type lure most attractive to them.

Q. What kind of fish can I catch with fly rod equipment?

A. Generally speaking, any species of fish that feed on or near the surface can be caught with stranded fly rod equipment. Fresh water species like trout, bass, bluegill, whitefish, offer excellent fly rod fishing. By using sinking lines, it is possible to submerge flies to sufficient depths to catch almost all fresh water game fish.

Q. I understand fly fishing is very difficult and is used only by the experts?

A. This is an unfortunate misunderstanding by many anglers who have never tried fly rod equipment. To the contrary, with properly balanced equipment and normal coordination, almost anyone can learn to fly cast well enough to catch fish after being given a few minutes basic instruction, followed by practice casting.

Q. Why do experts claim that fly fishing is more effective than other types of equipment?

A. It is true that when conditions are right, a skilled fly fisherman will catch fish when all other methods fail. This is especially true when fish are feeding on surface insects. The natural flies and bugs can be duplicated with artificials and fish can be caught when they ignore other types of lures.

Q. There are no trout streams in my area-where could I go fly fishing?

A. A great many people have the mistaken idea that fly fishing is reserved only for trout fishing. Nothing could be further from the truth, as fly fishing for bass and bluegill (and other pan fishes) is great sport. Frequently overlooked is the excellent fishing available in farm ponds which are located conveniently throughout the entire United States.

The Need For Earth Week

Measured by the calendar, it is a long way to April and Earth Week, which this year will be from Monday, April 19th to Sunday, April 25th. But it is not so far when measured by the urgency of pollution. Hardly a day passes that another grim fact of environmental neglect, threat or abuse is not reported.

One of the latest cases discussed in the press is what appears to be a most serious threat to the famed Atlantic salmon.

About 300 Danish fishermen, in 35 trawlers, have now developed a way of trawling that nets them approximately 400,000 salmon a year, with the possibility of even increasing these numbers, from the major ocean feeding around called Davis Strait in the northwest Atlantic off Greenland.

The ecological problem is that, unlike most other fish caught commercially on the high seas, the Atlantic salmon migrates to the rivers of North America and Europe where they are highly prized as a game fish. This also happens to be their natural spawning grounds. However, the wholesale netting of the fish in their part-time habitat in the northwest Atlantic prevents them from returning home in sufficient quantity to reproduce themselves in natural balance.

Recently an organization called the Committee on the Atlantic Salmon Emergency met in New York to ask such questions as, "If high seas fishing (for salmon) is unjustified, and not to be condoned, why cannot Denmark, or any others for that matter, be brought before the bar of world opinion . . . ? Simply because there is no law of the sea as regards Atlantic salmon . . . ?'

Actually, 1971 is shaping up as the biggest environmental year yet and at the grassroot level of state government.

That is saying a great deal in view of last year's astounding record. A cross country spot check uncovers literally hundreds of measures taken, including environmental bills of rights approved by Virginia, Rhode Island and Illinois voters while Congress was just thinking of one. Even so, more projects probably are getting attention right now than this time last year.

Take California. Its lawmakers passed a hundred environmental acts in 1970. This year, conservationists will make protection of the state's 1200 mile coastline a prime objective, along with land use and smog control. In Florida, which also has a burgeoning population as well as vast natural assets to protect, last year had the best legislative session yet on conservation. Now much more activity is in prospect with emphasis on control of pollutants and on helping construct sewage plants.

Other states with sweeping programs afoot include New York, North Carolina, Oregon and Washington, among others. Proposals included would affect litter control, detergents, feed lots, auto exhausts, pesticides, billboards, water quality, nuclear plants, water front zoning, education, snowmobiles, and the environmental impact of public projects and much else.

On litter control, the Poles were able to show the way back in the 1960's when they had printed on the back of labels of their domestic vodka bottles (you could see the writing through the crystal clear vodka, which, incidentally was discovered by the Poles, contrary to the historic facts of some dictionaries)—"Sell the empty bottle at the next liquor store," and "If you have been drinking, don't sit behind the steering wheel."

These thoughts, though first proposed by Polish officials, are equally appropriate to America's "Earth Week". Using public transport rather than private autos and lowering the possibility of road side litter are both sound principles for the age of ecology.

A resolution by Congress setting aside a week for one cause or another often means little more than a fancy bow in a useless duel. But the environment is not just another cause. It is a serious movement. Those who doubt its power need only reflect on the SST (Supersonic transport plane) debate, and how the politicians probably would have handed over the funds, if public awareness had not been aroused by this threat to the fragile environment.

A push by Congress to get behind Earth Week may be the kind of torch like symbol that local groups need to set their ecological awareness on fire. It can be a way to get the news media to make the environment a matter of daily coverage, not merely specialized reporting. In short, if we are going to celebrate such days as July 4th, when the nation was born, why not a week of dedication and planning—to make sure that the nation remains livable.

Bring Student To Environment, Says 'U'M Conservationist

Bring the student to the environment if education is to be used to develop a better environment—that's the advice being given primary and secondary teachers in Minnesota today.

But how close do students need to be to the environment?

"If students are going to learn how to properly use our natural environment, they should be out in it. If the teacher is going to teach environmental management or conservation, he must learn 'where the action is' too," according to Clifton Halsey, extension conservationist at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul.

Halsey said a teacher can conduct environmental education activities at a site near the school. For example, in order to appreciate qualities of a good trout stream, the teacher and class would study a nearby creek. They would measure stream vegetation and water speed, temperature and clarity.

Carl Vogt added another dimension to the "student and environment" proposition recently at the land in transition symposium in St. Paul, sponsored by the agricultural extension service and the association of metropolitan soil and water conservation districts. He is a staff associate with the environmental science center in Minneapolis.

Vogt suggested that outdoor environmental study areas be established on school grounds and that this be achieved through "realistic planning." With metropolitan areas growing by leaps and bounds and available land becoming more expensive to acquire, the time for "intelligent land acquisition is now," he added.

"Instead of just looking for a nice flat field to literally 'plunk' a building, sites should be selected that contain marshland, ponds, woodlots or hilly areas where students can study under real conditions.

"The creation of virtual deserts around schools is practiced by some planners who have not taken time to acquaint themselves with the real needs of the school community. Cars receive more consideration than people.

"No longer can we be satisfied with 'clearing' every tree and shrub around school buildings for the sake of saving one hour's time on a crawler tractor. Natural land features are irreplaceable once destroyed. No matter how many ornaments are planted, the constituency of a woodlot cannot be man-manufactured.

"Where trees or shrubs have to be cleared for footings and foundations, equipment operators, planners and educators should work hand in hand to assure the least amount of damage to residual vegetation...The mechanics of ecology and social interaction are difficult to teach on school grounds patterned after Victorian gardens that suggest man's dominion over nature. The sterility of a brick and mortar building standing in the middle of a flat field is a terrible epitaph to those who are really interested in creating a true learning environment," he said.

Vogt said these points should be considered when selecting and planning a new school site:

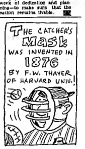
—Architects and community representatives should work together in planning and implementing phases of any project.

—Select sites that are functional and as aesthetically pleasing as possible.

—Save as many of the natural features of the site as possible.

—A quality school site may cost more at the outset, but remember that thousands of students will be utilizing the site in the future.

—Find out what has been done and think about what can be done to enhance the educational potential of our schools.



QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q — I know a veteran who was discharged with service-connected disabilities that left him totally disabled. What is the deadline for converting his SGLI policy?

A — He has up to one year after discharge to apply for conversion to a commercial policy if he remains totally disabled.

Q — I am a serviceman's widow, presently enrolled in junior college. If I remarry, will I forfeit my educational allowance?

A — Yes, a widow's remarriage terminates her entitlement.

Q — I am a veteran of World War II, presently planning my insurance estate. I understand that some type of death pension is payable by the Veterans administration to my children when I die. Does this pension depend on the child's income?

A — Yes it does. If, at the time of your death, you leave a minor child, or one who has not yet attained age 23 and is attending school, the child quite possibly could be entitled to death pension benefits if income limitations are not exceeded. Arrange to have some responsible adult relative contact the VA after your death.

Q — Can a veteran whose Veterans administration benefits have been forfeited apply for reinstatement of these benefits?

A — Yes, he may apply for a Presidential pardon which, if granted, may again entitle him to the VA benefits for which he was initially eligible.

Q—Will the Veterans administration deduct the premiums on my GI insurance from my monthly compensation check?

A—Yes, the insured may authorize the monthly deduction of premiums from compensation or pension payments. Such authorization may be made on VA Form 9-888, "Authorization for Deduction from VA Benefit Payments."

Q—Are widows of World War II veterans who died on active duty or from service-connected disabilities still eligible for GI home loans?

A—Yes. Unused, expired entitlement for widows of World War II veterans, as well as for veterans themselves, was revived by recent legislation.

Q—My husband has a total and permanent disability from a service-connected injury. Can my children be recipients of Veterans administration educational assistance?

A—It is likely that you and your children are eligible for assistance to wives and children of deceased or totally and permanently disabled veterans. Apply to your nearest VA office.

Q—I am eligible for training under the Veterans administration vocational rehabilitation program. Is it possible for me to take part-time training under the program?

A—Yes. This has been possible since July 28, 1968.

Q—I entered military service last year before completing high school. When I get out of service, will the Veterans administration pay me any educational allowance while I complete high school? If so, how much?

A—Yes, if you have more than 180 days active service. If you are a single veteran, you will receive $81 a month for adult evening high school or $175 a month for full-time schooling; more if you have dependents. The law entitles you to this allowance without deducting anything from your entitlement to further education and training.

Q—Upon my discharge from the service, I received a lump sum disability severance payment. Will I have to pay this back to the government if I am awarded Veterans administration compensation for the same disability?

A—The law requires that VA monthly compensation payments for the disability in question be withheld until the amount received is equal to the amount of severance pay you received because of the disability.

Q—I plan to enter college under the GI bill and will be taking 18 semester hours. How much will the Veterans administration pay me since I have no dependents?

A—If you have no dependents and carry the full-time load you anticipate, your monthly payments will be $175 at the present time.

A Message to Mothers from Uncle Sam

And for their fathers and doctors, too.

An important message.

With vital information for mothers with children who simply can't learn in the ways most children learn.

You may have a child who is like seven million other American youngsters who are absolutely OK but for something which prevents their absorbing knowledge or, perhaps, simple everyday skills.

Maybe it's deafness or hearing difficulty, blindness or impaired vision, or some bodily defect. Such handicaps may not always be curable—but even so Special Education methods can teach these children a great deal.

And if a child has a mental or behavioral learning handicap, Special Education can often not only teach him, but also help to reduce or even overcome the condition.

If your child is hard to teach, write for the name and address of the nearest school or clinic having Special Education facilities. The information is free—from Uncle Sam.

LHS Athletic Teams Begin Spring Sports

Jim Sims' Prowler track squad began the spring sports schedule for the Lincoln high school athletic teams Saturday when the cindermen participated in the Shanley Invitational track meet in the North Dakota state University fieldhouse.

The track team will run in 15 meets this season, including four dual meets, leading up to the district 31 meet at the University of North Dakota May 22. The region eight meet will be held the following Saturday, May 29, at Bemidji.

Four home meets dot the schedule for the Prowler track squad for the '71 season. Lincoln will host the Bemidji Lumberjacks April 27, Roseau on April 29 and May 6 while also hosting the Prowler-Jaycees Invitational on May 1.

Ralph Skny's Prowler baseball team will open their 1971 season at Fertile Saturday afternoon, April 24, to begin a 16-game schedule.

Ten home games highlight the Lincoln baseball season, beginning with a 5 p.m. contest against Goodridge April 24.

Other home playing dates include April 30, Red Lake Falls; May 1, Newfolden; May 7, Bemidji; May 12, Warroad; May 17, Roseau; May 10, Oslo and Alvarado in a double header, May 21, Crookston, and May 22, Climax.

Thief River Falls will also be the site of the north half sub district tournament May 27 and 28; the district 31 tourney the week of May 21 to June 5, and the region eight tournament June 7 and 8.

The Lincoln high school golf team, coached by Jack Boyer, will open their 1971 season with a meet at Fergus Falls April 30.

The Fergus Falls meet is the only action scheduled in April for the golfers, but nine meets are on top for May, including a Thief River Falls tourney, May 24 and 25.

First home match of the season for the local duffers will be Thursday, May 13, when the Warren Ponies will be in town for a 4 p.m. contest.

Crookston will be the site of the district 31 and region eight golf meets. The district tourney will be held Friday, May 28 and the region eight competition will start at 9:30 a.m. June 4.

Deer Attracted To Logging Area

State foresters in the Loman area of Koochiching county report that several hundred deer have been attracted to a six acre logging operation being carried out on state land.

The department of natural resources said one forester counted 70 deer that walked by a truck being loaded with logs and that deer were coming from all over to feed on the trimmings lying about in the cutting area.

A spokesman for the department's division of lands and forestry explained that logging operations are planned to provide browse for deer late in the winter when the animals are often becoming desperate for food.

He said that after the spruce, balsam and cedar have been harvested from the Loman site, the area will be given a "prescribed burn" this summer and then replanted.

White cedar, a favorite deer food, will be planted in patches and the entire area then seeded to black spruce.

'71 Deer Hunting Will Be Closed In Prime Range

The 1971 Minnesota deer hunting season will be closed in the prime range, Robert L. Herbst, commissioner of natural resources, has announced.

Calculations by game managers show that the only possible season Minnesota could have, considering the poor fawn crop anticipated and last year's harvest, would be two days or less, the commissioner said.

"Unfortunately," Herbst said, "this past winter was relatively severe in the main deer range and will most likely eliminate the gain we had hoped for."

In fact, Herbst added, his field staff reports 30 to 36 inches of snow were still on the ground in much of the main deer range as of last Friday.

This snow accumulation, the late spring and the fact that Minnesota hunters harvested more deer than anticipated means that there will be less fawns this year, according to game managers.

Closure of the season, rather than another two-day hunt, would obviously allow a more rapid buildup of the herd, game managers and conservation officers feel.

"Therefore," Herbst said, "we are making a choice in favor of the deer population and, in the long run, the deer hunter."

The commissioner said that closure would mean a revenue loss to the department of over $1.5 million.

"Although this is significant, we must always base the decision on game management principles rather than monetary considerations. I believe the sportsmen of Minnesota will agree with this decision," Herbst concluded.

Summer Swim Sign Up Date Is Sat., April 17

Registration for the summer swimming lessons in Thief River Falls will take place on Saturday, April 17, at the Franklin junior high school gym.

The children may be registered for the program from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

There are four sessions a child may sign up for; June 7 to 25; June 28 to July 16; July 19 to August 6 and from August 9 to August 27.

Northland Begins Spring Athletics

Northland state junior college will open its spring sports schedule Thursday, April 15, when Chet Engelman takes a track delegation to Crookston for a 7 p.m. invitational meet.

Coach Engelman wasn't sure about a line-up of performers for the season opener for the Northmen. NSJC will also be in Crookston Tuesday evening, April 20 for a track meet.

Al Adams' junior college golf team will open their 1971 season at Brainerd Wednesday, April 21 with a dual meet at Brainerd, beginning at 10 a.m.

Coach Adams has three lettermen on this year's squad. Leading the NSJC duffers will be Steve Larson, Tim Carlson and Gerry Ulferts of Thief River Falls. Larson is the defending Thief River Falls Golf Club champion.

Also on the squad are Bob Lundbolm, Roseau, Brian Bennes, McIntosh, Billy Walker, Stephen, Jim Durary, Oslo, Craig Spilde, Karlstad, and Paul Mortenson, Thief River Falls.

PLAY BY PLAY ON SPORTS

with Mike Lundgren

Thief River Falls will play host to St. Cloud Appollo on the gridiron during the 1972 football season, it was announced last week by Lincoln high school coach Jim Sims.

Sims is trying to work out future schedules for the Lincoln eleven but is having a rough time of it. The Prowlers just missed scheduling games with West Fargo, Melrose, Littlefork-Big Falls, Brainerd and Moorhead.

Appollo is a brand new school in St. Cloud in its first year of operation after St. Cloud Tech became overcrowded. Tech is still in operation though. Before the split Tech was always a power in Minnesota prep football and was the state's number one ranked eleven in the 1969 season until a loss to South St. Paul knocked the Tigers to the number two position in the final game of the season.

Appollo has a school enrollment of 1,919 students and will replace Red Lake Falls on the Prowlers' schedule in '72. St. Cloud is coached by former Bemidji state college standout Bruce Melin who previously coached at Brainerd before taking over as football and track coach at Appollo.

Sims is also looking for an opponent to replace East Grand Forks Sacred Heart for the 1972 football season with a possibility of going all the way down to the metropolitan area for a game.

The Prowlers' 1971 gridiron season is set with Park Rapids being the only new addition to the schedule, in place of Grand Forks Red River.

A Detroit Lakes group is currently trying to begin a drive to raise $65,000 for artificial ice facilities in the Detroit Lakes fieldhouse.

The group is evidently running into opposition in its attempts to secure the money and has issued a "fact sheet" with questions and answers asked and answered in the sheet.

One of the questions brought forth was: "hockey has always been and should remain a secondary sport," (in Detroit Lakes).

The answer was quite fitting we thought; "no sport is a minor sport to those youngsters participating in the sport."

It almost sounds like the situation in Thief River Falls; only the sports are reversed.

It seems very unlikely that the Minnesota state high school league will ever go back to an eight-team state basketball tournament when the current two-year experiment with a 16-team field expires.

The old attendance record was shattered with the additional sessions added to the state classic and the number of tight games indicates the two-class system is here to stay.

The results of a ballot to attempt a two class play-off showed 80 per cent of the basketball coaches in favor of the plan, 79 per cent of the athletic directors, 78 per cent of the superintendents and 75 per cent of the principals favoring the 16-team field.

After the two-year trial, the member schools will re-evaluate the plan in an effort to establish a plan that best serves the student athletes.

There were 64 schools in the large, or class AA division and there will be more added to that number for the next cage season.

The only other change in the format will find the championship game between the class A and AA schools being played on the Monday following the Saturday semi-finals instead of the week lay-off as in this year's tourney.

Packers' Doug Hart Is Banquet Speaker

Doug Hart, veteran defensive back for the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, will be the guest speaker at the annual Thief River Falls athletic banquet to be held Monday, April 19, at 6:30 p.m. in the basement of St. Bernard's church.

The annual event for athletes and cheerleaders of Lincoln high school, Northland state junior college and the area vocational-technical school is sponsored by the local Lions, Rotary, Jaycees and Athletic Boosters clubs.

Hart is in his ninth year of pro ball after graduating from the University of Texas at Arlington in 1963. The 6-1, 190 pounder was signed as a free agent by the St. Louis Cardinals before the Packers picked him up on waivers during the pre-season.

Hart played on the Packers' taxi squad in the 1963 season before becoming a starter in 1965 for the Pack. Hart scored on a fumble recovery and run against the Vikings in the 1965 season.

The veteran has a record of 13 pass interceptions and three touchdowns in his eight years of pro ball.

Tickets for the event, which will be MC'ed by Doug Tiegtmeir, are available at Ekerens, Larson Music, Wilson Sport Center and Glen's Barber Shop for $2.

Serving for the event will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Map Of Trout Streams Offered

Department of natural resources announced that a new map of trout streams of southeastern Minnesota will be available to fishermen on April 19.

The map, which includes streams in Houston, Fillmore, Winona, Wabasha and Olmstead counties and portions of Goodhue, Dodge and Mower counties, is free.

Designated trout waters are marked and information on the back of the map describes the quality of trout habitat in each designated stream.

The maps will be available at area fisheries headquarters in Lanesboro, Lake City or at 1200 Warner Road at Mounds Park in St. Paul. Mail requests should be sent to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Bureau of Information and Education, Centennial Building, St. Paul, 55101.

Duluth Will Hold Smelt Bonspiel April 16-17-18

Duluth will be the site of the final curling bonspiel of the season in northern Minnesota beginning April 16 when the Duluth curling club sponsors its second annual smelt bonspiel.

The event will run April 16, 17 and 18, and is the only bonspiel of its kind.

Every curler entering this event is guaranteed not to go home empty handed .. ten pounds of fresh smelt will be given to each player. And if curlers wish to fish the silvery little fish, the Duluth Curling club is perfectly located for the fisherman. The club is situated on the shore of Lake Superior, with a creek that is famous for its smelt run, located 100 feet from the curling club.

Last year the bonspiel was a great success, an official commented, and this year promises to be bigger. Curlers in the U.S. and Canada are invited to participate.

The thousands of people that invade Duluth annually seeking the much sought after fish prompted the smelt bonspiel. The aim is to offer curlers the opportunity to combine curling and fishing in one trip—yet be assured of not returning home 'skunked'. The steelhead, or rainbow trout run usually takes place at this time, too. This is another big plus for the combined affair.

Besides free fresh smelt, there will be smelt fry Friday evening—music and dancing Saturday evening. Valuable merchandise prizes will be awarded in four events, including the semis.

The entry fee is $48 per rink with a three-game guarantee and a 48 rink limit. Because entries are coming in fast, curlers are asked to rush their entry immediately to Mr. Will Farwell, Mgr., Duluth Curling Club, 1330 London Road.

University of North Dakota competes in 11 intercollegiate sports.

Chamber Meeting Tuesday Attracts 170 To Attend

Attendance reached 170 for the quarterly meeting of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Tuesday at the Elks club rooms in Thief River Falls. Fair credit reporting act and plans for the Diamond Jubilee were main items on the program.

Entertainment was provided by the Jubilee Singers, a group of ladies sponsored by the American Legion auxiliary, who have agreed to sing at various functions in promotion of the Diamond Jubilee in Thief River Falls September 16-17-18-19.

Dennis Wojahn, manager of the Thief River Falls credit bureau, summarized the fair credit reporting act which will become effective April 25. He showed a film presentation with informational narration regarding the law which will affect a number of local business places.

William LaFave, general chairman of the jubilee committee, spoke briefly regarding promotion of that event. He introduced Joe Sever of St. Boniface whose firm builds floats for parades, handles float building materials and does float designing. Sever showed a film of floats in the Manitoba Winter carnival parade and announced that he would be in Thief River Falls today (Wednesday) to visit with interested businessmen.

Marvin Lundin, president of the Chamber of Commerce, reviewed the clean-up, paint-up, fix-up campaign which is being planned for May. The event will include a retail trade promotion and a concentrated effort toward community clean-up. Coordinating activities for the event will be the retail trade committee and total community development committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Reminder was also issued that persons who have old cars and car bodies which they would like to dispose of may call the city police department. The city police will relay the information to the street department which will have the cars removed for disposal. Equipment is now located in the city which will crush the old cars and remove the metal for recycling.

School Board Makes Changes In Policies

Adoption of significant changes in the policy book, acceptance of seven faculty resignations, approval of two new contracts, announcement of the 1971 graduation speaker and several other business transactions highlighted the Thief River Falls board of education meeting Monday evening at Lincoln senior high school.

Among the more significant changes in the school district's policy book was establishment of policy relating to the school day. Under policy adopted by the board Monday, teachers in the school district will be required to be on duty eight hours per day during the 1971-72 school term. Previous policy required faculty members on duty one-half hour before start of classes and 15 minutes after dismissal of classes. The eight-hour duty per day is exclusive of a lunch period.

Corrected school calendar for 1971-72 calls for a total of 176 student days and 185 teacher days, exclusive of two days for MEA or MFT conventions.

Since policies prohibiting husband and wife from teaching in the same school district have been declared illegal, the policy book position on nepotism was deleted. A grievance procedure for certified personnel was established through adoption of a recommended procedure. Policy on maternity leave was revised to provide for a compulsory leave of eight months.

While previous policy required teachers to obtain nine quarter-hour credits each four years for professional growth, and provided reimbursement for the cost of obtaining those credits, new policy was adopted which does not require the credits and provides no reimbursement.

The policy book was also revised to describe such positions as assistant director of the area vocational-technical school, administrative assistants to secondary principals and athletic director. Policy was also adopted for use of school buildings.

Offers will be received at the next board meeting from Home, Lampert and Robertson Lumber companies for lease of auxiliary buildings to temporarily house classes at the east side complex (Mark Twain and Franklin schools). The board had previously considered a lease-purchase agreement with another firm.

Graduation speaker for commencement exercises on June 3 will be Dr. Neal Nickerson of the University of Minnesota college of education.

Recommendation that Chris Ballas, administrative assistant to the senior high school principal, be transferred to the position of elementary school coordinator and principal at St. Hilaire on 220-day contract, was not acted upon by the board.

New contracts were approved for Alan Dahlan, post high school vocational agriculture, and Miss Elaine Linder, grade three at Northrop school.

Dahlan has a bachelor's degree from the University of Minnesota and 15 quarter hours of credit following his degree. Now at Cokato, he has 12 years of experience and will start in the new position on July 1.

Miss Linder is a native of Plummer, graduated from Bemidji state college three years ago and has been teaching since that time at Pine Bend. She will replace Mrs. Alice Vran who is retiring from teaching here.

Resignations were received from Mrs. Priscilla Keough, junior high school vocal music; Mrs. Gloria Miller, junior high school art; Peter Steen, fifth grade at Northrop; Diana Stoeckman, grade four at Washington; Mrs. Mary Tillmann, junior high school English; Michael Tillmann, speech and drama at Lincoln, and Sue Wolbeck, junior high school girls' physical education.

Maternity leave was approved for Mrs. Krough from April 14 through June 4.

E. C. Olson of the board of education and Russ Smith, athletic director, will attend a Congress of Schools called by the Minnesota state high school league for April 23 and 24 at Hotel Leamington in Minneapolis.

County Board Opens Bids, Acts On Roads

Pennington county commissioners at their monthly meeting April 9 discussed drainage and penal problems, accepted bids, adopted a resolution in support of bills now before the legislature that would give crude oil pipelines the right of eminent domain, and took several other matters under advisement.

Bids for the season's supply of corrugated metal culverts were opened and read. Westeel-Rosco company of Fargo was lowest bidder at $15,033.50. Nine bids were presented, the highest being $22,796.38.

Three bids for diesel fuel, fuel oil and gasoline were opened and read. The lowest bid was by Standard Oil company, with No. 1 diesel fuel at 15 cents, No. 2 diesel, 14 cents; No. 1 fuel oil, 15.06 cents; No. 2 fuel oil, 14 cents; and gasoline, 15.4 cents.

Chairman of the board of commissioners Carl Anderson stepped down from the chair to move that the engineer and auditor advertise for bids for grading 9.5 miles of CSAH 10 north of SA 3 to TH 1 at 11 a.m. May 11. After call for a second to the motion, acting chairman Donald L. Olson declared the motion lost for lack of a second.

In other matters, the board discussed drainage problems with the chairman and clerk of North township, Leland Nelson of Sanders township, and with others from Smiley and Kratka townships. No action, however, was taken.

A motion that the claim against Great Lakes Gas Transmission company contractor R. H. Fulton for $6,130 for damage to county roads in 1968 construction be settled for an adjusted amount of $5,000 was approved.

A report entitled "A Comprehensive Plan for Regional Jailing and Juvenile Detention in Minnesota" was before the board for its consideration. Sheriff Charles Richards and city Police Chief Roland Waller were present to discuss the report with the board.

The regional jail concept appeared to meet with general approval, but other proposals on local lockups, communications networks, detection facilities and law enforcement training appeared to be far afield from what could be accepted. The matter was taken under advisement.

A resolution stating that "it would appear in the best interest of all that crude oil pipelines be allowed the right of eminent domain as set forth in bills now before the legislature in H.F. 1389 and S.F. 1110 and as enjoyed by other utility lines" was adopted and was to be transmitted to Representatives Skaar and Fitzsimons and Senator Sinclair.

The proposed Northwestern Mental Health program was reviewed by Roy Waters and H. M. Lindquist of the staff. The total proposed budget amounted to $246,930 with the participating counties furnishing $88,532 based on population.

The share for Pennington County was estimated to be $13,690 with a possible reduction to $12,340 depending on state participation. The matter was taken under advisement.

Three and one-half miles of county state aid highway 28 from trunk highway 1 to the north county line will also have a base constructed and receive bituminous surfacing.

Arctco Transfer Not Confirmed By Management

No official determination has been made regarding the rumored transfer of Arctco Distributors from Thief River Falls to another location, according to an official of Arctic Enterprises, Inc.

In response to questions from the Times this morning, John Penn, vice president of Arctic Enterprises, said any speculation regarding a move is premature. He said that Arctic management is constantly considering methods to best serve the public and the interests of Arctic stockholders, and that possible transfer of Arctco is among the methods receiving consideration.

Penn said that no management decisions have been made and that public announcements would immediately follow if and when any such management action takes place.

It had been rumored here that Arctco—Arctic's distributor for Minnesota and North Dakota—would be relocated in the Fargo-Moorhead area and that the building now under construction on the Arctco site southwest of the city would be used for office and display area of the main company.

Scout Exposition Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the annual Penn-Ro-Shall Boy Scout exposition and hobby show will go on sale Saturday at 9:30 a.m., according to Art Heinze, chairman of the exposition. The exposition and hobby show will be held Sunday, May 2, from 2 to 7 p.m. at the National Guard armory in Thief River Falls.

All Thief River Falls Cubs and Scouts and their units' ticket sales chairmen are asked to be at the city auditorium at 8:30 a.m. Saturday to receive their exposition tickets. Tickets will go on sale immediately following the distribution. Admission will be one dollar per family.

Heinze explained that a scout exposition is designed to give scouts an opportunity to demonstrate to the public the skills that they have learned in scouting. To date nearly 20 troops and packs have made application to participate and an additional 10 hobby booths have been reserved to provide added interest for the event.

Sponsors of the exposition are the Penn-Ro-Shall district of the Boy Scouts of America and the Thief River Falls Jaycees. Penn-Ro-Shall district is composed of scout units from Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire, Holt, Newfolden, Karlstad, Roseau, Greenbush, Badger, Grygla and Warroad. Everyone is invited to purchase a family ticket and attend the festivities.

Hobby booths entered include Oakland Park nursing home, Falls day activity center, wood carving by Dwight Norrell, photography by Orville Ellingson, oil painting by Thomas Waale, liquid embroidery by Mrs. Medi Cota and coins by Pat Klemisch. Others may have reserved space since this information was proved to the Times. Jack LaMaurier is chairman of the hobby show.

City Council Acts On Several Matters

More than an hour of discussion on street excavation and backfill, storm sewers, curbs and gutters and completion of streets in the six city additions and trailer courts in Thief River Falls led to a city council decision Tuesday night to continue their talks on the subject at a special meeting next Tuesday.

Total estimated costs of all improvements in the six areas was $75,000. Members of the council heard area developers report on the need for the improvements in the additions, and the council speculated that as many as 100 new homes could be built this summer if all developers' information is correct.

"The city's money is all tied up in these areas," said one city councilman, "and we have to start getting that money back. We can't do that 'til we have houses out there and people won't build the houses unless at least some, if not all, the improvements are in."

"Our most critical need in Thief River Falls is housing, and we have to consider that first," said council chairman Robert Carlson.

The council discussed deferring some improvements in some additions until 1972, and also discussed possible variations in bond issues to cover the costs.

Sums of money involved in the suggested bond issues ranged from $600,000 to $850,000 in both long and short-term bonds that would be issued this year and in 1972 or all issued in 1972. (To pay the bonds, the commissioners estimated they would use most of the $120 the city receives each year on the $700 annual tax income from a $20,000 home, plus income from public works services from the homes.

In other matters before the council, city clerk Bill Fahey reported that the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (PCA) says the Thief River Falls dumping facilities are "absolutely inadequate" and also that no burning at all will be allowed after July 1.

ONE FINAL FLING (!?) at winter was attempted by Mother Nature Tuesday morning but the attempt was only half-hearted. Heavy snow reduced visibility to a short distance for about a half-hour, but the snow accumulation was light and had been reduced to water by early afternoon. Area residents are hoping that it will be the last sight of snowflakes this spring, but nobody seems willing to give any odds to that effect.

Lynnell Sande-John Pemble Vows Spoken at Redeemer

Escorted to the altar by their parents, Miss Lynnell Sande and John Pemble exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, April 3, at 7:30 p.m., at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Sande of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Pemble of Janesville.

Rev. Phil Lathrop officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. William Halbasch presided at the organ, playing Rossini's "Wedding Processional" and "Wedding Recessional." Serving as soloist was Mrs. Charles Lund. After the wedding party assembled at the altar, she sang "Love One Another" accompanied by Jennifer Martinson, guitarist. During the ceremony, accompanied by Mrs. Halbasch, Mrs. Lund sang, "May Thy Blessing Rest Upon Them" and following the exchange of vows, she sang, "The Greatest of These Is Love." The assembled guests participated by singing the hymn "Praise to the Lord, the Almighty."

Forming the chancel setting for the bridal party were potted palms and wrought iron branch candelabra. On the candelabra were sprays of gladioli and pompons accented with aqua velvet fruit. Matching fruit and white satin bows marked the pews along the center aisle.

For her wedding, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white bridal taffeta styled with a fitted bodice. Rows of ruffled Chantilly lace edged the high neckline and elbow length sleeves and created a bib effect on the bodice. Miniature covered buttons cascaded down the back to the natural waistline, accented by a bow. The slightly gathered skirt swept back to form a peacock train. Flowing over the gown and train was a mantilla of bridal illusion made by the mother of the bride. Rows of Chantilly lace, like the trim on the gown, edged the mantilla. To complete her attire, she carried a cascade created of miniature carnations topped by a white Cattleya orchid. Magnolia leaves and yellow satin streamers accented the bouquet.

Serving the bride as her personal attendant was her cousin, LeAnn Sande of Brooklyn Center.

Miss Ilene Haasen of Newfolden, who is attending the University of Minnesota, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Gail Sande, who is also attending the University of Minnesota, and Carol Sande, at home; and the sister of the groom, Miss Joyce Pemble of Janesville. All were attired in identical floor-length gowns of aqua sata peau over taffeta, made by the bride and her mother. The gowns were styled in empire fashion with sheer bishop sleeves featuring wide cuffs secured by miniature buttons. White lace beading interwoven with aqua ribbon, accented the waistline and rounded neckline. In their hair, they wore bows of narrow, double ribbon. The shoulder length streamers ended with miniature multicolored lace flowers matching the flowers that accented the lace beading on the gowns. Each carried a white wicker basket of yellow and white mums and white satin streamers.

Roy Pemble of Janesville attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Mike Marineel, Craig Zinter and Brian Higgins, friends of the groom. Serving as acolytes were Greg Sande and Dale Sande, cousins of the bride. The guests were seated by Bruce Halbasch and Randy Adamson of Thief River Falls, friends of the bride. The men of the wedding party wore strollers featuring striped trousers, grey vests and dark coats. Their boutonnieres were yellow carnations while the groom's was composed of a white carnation centered with a yellow rosebud.

The mother of the bride was attired in a light aqua knit dress designed with long sleeves and an aqua ascot. The mother of the groom wore a dress in a deeper shade of aqua complemented by bishop sleeves of accordion pleated fabric. Both wore beige accessories and identical corsages of yellow rose buds and miniature white mums.

Corsages and a boutonniere were also presented to the honor guests: Mrs. Emil Mellem of Thief River Falls, maternal grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. John Sande, also of Thief River Falls; her paternal grandparents. Mrs. Mellem was attired in a lavender crepe dress and Mrs. Sande wore one of turquoise knit.

A reception in the fellowship hall followed with 225 relatives and friends attending. Serving as host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Poole, friends of the bride's family. Mrs. Ken Judes of Brainerd, a friend of the bride, registered the guests at a table covered with a lace trimmed cloth. Centering the table was a yellow candle with a green foliage ring accented with aqua fruit. Matching arrangements, complemented by aqua and yellow streamers, graced all the tables.

The three-tiered wedding cake was iced in white in a basket weave design. On the corner of each tier was a yellow rose with aqua trim. Topping the cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Henry Waale, was a golden Christogram. Mrs. Mike Marineel, Kay Martin and Karlene Kelly cut and served the cake. Pouring were Mrs. Vern Melin, godmother of the bride, and Mrs. Marion Potz, aunt of the groom. At the punch bowl were Mr. and Mrs. Keith Ackmen, friends of the couple.

Waitresses were Lori Sande, Jean Mellem, Barbie Mellem, cousins of the bride, Mary Bren, Linda Reidel and Mrs. David Lundstrom, friends of the bride. At the gift table were Mrs. Pat Rigdon, sister of the groom, JoAnn Fallon and Janet Rollings, assisted by cousins of the bride, Tom Mellem and Darren Sande, who carried the gifts.

Serving the reception were members of the Redeemer Lutheran Church Women.

Relatives and friends attending were from Denver, Colo., Grand Forks, N.D., Minneapolis, St. Paul, LeSuer, Mankato, Janesville, Eagle Lake, Newport, Lake Lillian, Willmar, Lester Prairie, Brainerd, Moorhead, Erskine and the towns surrounding Thief River Falls.

At noon, the day of the wedding, the parents of the groom hosted a dinner at the Rex cafe for members of the two families and the bridal party.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Denver, Colo., the bride wore a yellow crepe dress with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow rose buds and white carnations.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school. She attended the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, and during the winter quarter received her bachelor of science degree in home economics with nursery school certification.

The groom is a graduate of St. Clair high school and attended Bethany Junior college and the University of Minnesota. He is now engaged in farming and is employed by Joyce Implement company at Smithsmill.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Borgen, Sr., of this city were guests of honor at a 25th wedding anniversary reception given by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Borgen, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Borgen, together with the members of the Seventh-day Adventist church. The event was held March 21 at the church school with Mrs. Ervin Kiesz in charge.

The couple, Miss June McCann and Floyd Borgen, was married on St. Patrick's day in 1946. Their attendants were Miss Alyce Geske, a cousin of Mr. Borgen, and Herman Loberg. Both were present for the anniversary celebration. Also in attendance were over 50 relatives and friends.

The celebration began with a program. Rev. Leslie Cox, as master of ceremonies, read an appropriate poem which he had composed for the occasion. The program also consisted of songs, readings and the "Newly-Wed game." Participants in the game were the three Borgen couples and Mr. and Mrs. Jerald Diede. The Diedes won the first prize and the honored couple, placed second.

The green and silver motif was carried out for the reception that followed. Highlighting the serving table was a square, three-tiered anniversary cake decorated with pale green roses and silver accents. Topping the cake was a silver anniversary ornament featuring two silver bells. Miss Alyce Geske cut the cake and Mrs. Herman Loberg served the punch.

In keeping with the St. Patrick's day motif, Mrs. Borgen was attired in a two-toned green dress and Mr. Borgen wore a brown suit complemented by a green shirt with coordinating tie. Their corsage and boutonniere, gifts from their sons and daughters-in-law, featured green carnations. Mrs. Borgen's corsage was accented with white feathered carnations and silver ribbon.

To mark the occasion, the couple received many gifts, including several pieces of silver.

Library Geared For Earth Week

April 15 to 24 is Earth Week, 1971. According to Senator Gaylord Nelson, the focus of the week has changed from the spectacular activities of last year to "a time of low-key, locally oriented efforts with no national coordination.. a time of quiet community organization."

The Northwest regional library has available for loan a variety of materials on the environment and a new reading list, "When Your Whole World Seems to be Falling Apart." The reading list and the large display of materials emphasizes what citizens can do to protect their environment.

The popular demand for informational materials after Earth Day of 1970 resulted in the publication of a number of books and new periodicals. The periodicals, especially, are a major source of current information on community action programs, environmental policies and product news.

Rodale's "Environment Action Bulletin" is a weekly newsletter printed on recycled paper. A major feature is environmental tips and tactics which range from how to save money on your gas and electric bills to procedures for citizens to seek enforcement of the Refuse Act.

The Bulletin also reports on state and federal legislation, runs an environmental employment service and frequently has listings of free environmental pamphlets.

"Environment" is published ten times a year under the sponsorship of the Scientist's Institute for Public Information. It contains substantial articles about the effects of technology on the environment and about the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

"Ecology Today" began publication in March of this year. The first issue has articles on the future of the forests, the "popollution" crisis, a report on recycling, mercury pollution and an article by Senator Nelson on new legislation to control throw-away packaging. Regular features in each issue will be "Wave-Length" with last minute environmental news briefs and "Eco-Dynamics" or practical action.

Among the numerous books listed in "When Your Whole World Seems to be Falling Apart" is Richard Saltonstall's "Your Environment and What You Can do About It". The book reports successful community programs across the nation, provides basic information on environmental quality and tells what you can do about air and water pollution, noise, chemical pollution of the land, waste disposal and litter.

Two Children Die In Fire At Karlstad

Two children of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Wojchiechowski died on Friday afternoon in a barn fire on the Wojchiechowski farm four miles west of Karlstad.

Dead are John, 3, and Colleen, 8. Leonard, 11, survived the fire but is reported in very critical condition at the University of Minnesota burn center in Minneapolis.

He was brought by ambulance to the Thief River Falls airport Friday evening, and was flown to Minneapolis aboard a university ambulance plane.

Authorities are not sure of the cause of the fire, but believe it may have been caused by heat lamps for pigs in the barn.

The children were evidently playing in the hayloft when the fire started.

Ag Commissioner Says Potatoes Are Hot Bargain

Minnesota potatoes are a hot bargain currently for consumers, advised Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald.

He said farmers are selling their stored spuds for only $1.70 per 100 pounds, or 25 cents less than one year ago, according to the latest farm price study by the Minnesota department of agriculture.

"What other food can you buy for only 1.7 cents per pound?" Commissioner Wefald challenged. He noted that even at regular retail, after processing, washing, hauling, grading and packaging, that "potatoes still can't be beaten for value."

A national potato stock carryover eight per cent greater than a year ago is helping create the bargain, although Minnesota's balance of fall storage spuds is four per cent lower than in 1970. The Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota has the nation's third largest stocks of potatoes.

Commissioner Wefald suggested that homemakers need only to consult any cookbook, or the new one just released by the Red River Valley Potato Growers association, to renew awareness of the wide variety of hot or cold recipes for the amazingly versatile potato, as a complete meal or as a complementary side dish.

A National Decline

Deaths from cancer of the uterus have declined about 50 percent in a generation. This is due in large part to early detection by the Pap test and prompt treatment, says the American Cancer Society.

City Council Acts On Several Matters Tuesday

"After July 1 we're out of the burning business completely," Fahey said. He added that the city must submit to the Pollution Control Agency a plan for development of a dumping ground acceptable to the agency. The plan must be prepared by an engineer to meet PCA requirements, and if a suitable plan is not submitted, the PCA will prepare one to their liking and bill the city for it.

Several councilmen termed the PCA requirements "foolish" and asked how the burning ban could possibly be enforced. Fahey replied that he was uncertain as to how enforcement would be carried out, but said that the agency planned to hire 180 people to enforce the recently-passed anti-pollution laws.

The council also expressed its dismay at the possibility of having to buy as much as $50,000 worth of compacting machinery to comply with state laws, which say that trash must be compacted in a certain manner.

The council also considered a plan to revise the city council so there would be four aldermen-at-large and only three ward aldermen, rather than the current five-ward aldermen with only two at large.

The three new ward boundary lines, which must be drawn up by July 1, would follow enumeration district lines. Further studies were decided on.

The council adopted ordinances on prevention and control of Dutch elm disease and ordinances amending the municipal code water and sewer rates to raise them. The council purchased a check-writing machine from Burroughs Corp. for $2,465, and agreed to purchase from $12,704.28 power line owned by Red Lake electric in areas recently annexed by the city. The price includes the buying of 15 services and all meters, poles, lines and transformers.

The increased water prices are 70 cents for the first 1,000 gallons, up from 68 cents; next 1,000 gallons, 65 cents, up from 54 cents, and the next 5,000 gallons 52 cents, up from 41 cents. More than 150,000 gallons will cost 52 cents per thousand gallons.

Sewage bills will be one-half of the monthly water bill, while formerly the sewage bill was half the January water bill and remained constant throughout the year.

The council also approved liquor licenses for the American Legion, VFW, Elks and Eagles clubs and forwarded them for approval to the state liquor commissioner.

The council also decided to remove the stop signs on Brooks avenue at the intersection of Brooks and First street and erect stop signs on First at that intersection to alleviate early morning and late afternoon traffic problems there.

The council also heard the first reading of an ordinance that prohibits horseback riding or the driving of horses in the city except during parades and special events and after approval by city police.

County Board Opens Bids And Acts On Roads

The sum of $3,660.37 was appropriated to be paid to the department of corrections and probation services for the period July 1 to Dec. 31, 1970.

It was decided that an agreement with St. Louis County for board and room of prisoners at the St. Louis County work farm be renewed at a cost of $10.50 per day per person. (Last year the rate was $8.75.)

A motion that a county attorney contingency fund be set aside for use by the county attorney and to be dispensed by verified claims approved by the district court was carried.

It was also decided that the road and bridge committee would inspect roads, bridges and culverts in the county on April 14. A motion that the board meet to appraise tax forfeited lands on April 29 also carried.

A total of 19 applications for adjustment of valuation of real estate were approved and referred to the state department of taxation for approval.

The next regular meeting of the board will be at 10 a.m. May 11.

Minnesota Tech Offers Course In Ag Journalism

University of Minnesota technical college in Crookston next fall will offer a college level course in agricultural journalism and broadcasting leading to an associate in applied science degree.

"There is a great need for professional agricultural journalists," said Dr. David Larrabee, curriculum coordinator. "Owners of rural newspapers and radio and TV stations agree that it is difficult to find well-trained individuals for their staffs."

To fulfill the requirements for the degree, the candidate must satisfactorily complete a minimum of 110 quarter hours of academic work, 15 in the major field, 35 in agricultural sciences, 12 in internship, 29 in general education and business, and nine in electives.

The local daily newspaper and radio station will cooperate with the college in providing laboratory experience.

Further information may be obtained by calling 218-281-6510, extensions 250 or 246.

Lead Found In Pottery Patterns

Minnesota department of health has broadened its recent warning about leachable lead in some Metlox brand pottery because of new findings implicating two additional patterns.

According to Bruce S. Olson, supervisor of the state health department's poison information center, the federal food and drug administration has found dangerous levels of lead in the Mission Verde pattern of the Metlox Poppytrail line and in the Petalburst pattern of the firm's Vernon line. Earlier, leachable lead was found in the Tempo Blue pattern of the Poppytrail line.

Lead poisoning can result if the lead used in the pottery manufacturing process is absorbed into food or beverages. This can produce serious illness or even death.

Metlox Potteries, Inc. of Manhattan Beach, Calif., is recalling from dealers all patterns of its products containing dangerous or possibly dangerous levels of lead. The recall includes the entire Tempo pattern even though lead has been found only in Tempo Blue.

Farmers Cut Use Of Pesticides 50%

Commissioner Jon Wefald reported state farmers sharply reduced by more than 50 per cent, the use of persistent pesticides in 1970, according to a special survey just completed by the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Only 271,000 acres, representing 1.6 per cent of the total acreage of corn, hay, soybeans and small grains harvested by Minnesota farmers last year, were treated with any of the now restricted pesticides considered hazardous to the environment.

Commissioner Wefald said that figure compares with an estimated 546,000 acres treated with hazardous pesticides in 1969, the first year a special survey was made of farm use of economic poisons by the Department's Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

At the same time, he said the survey disclosed increased use last year of the approved pesticides for control of weed, insect and disease problems that jeopardize farm crop and livestock production.

The survey demonstrates the continued voluntary compliance by farmers with ecological concerns for the environment, Commissioner Wefald said. He pointed out that farmers had three months free access to hazardous pesticides last year during the peak usage season, before the Department's tough restrictions became effective on July 1, implementing the state law enacted in 1969.

Some 11,000 Minnesota farm operators cooperated in the 1970 pesticide survey, a substantially bigger sampling than the 1969 survey, which had 6,700 cooperators.

DDT was used on 6,000 acres of corn in 1970, compared to 19,000 acres in 1969, and represented less than one per cent of the state's total corn acreage. Use of DDT for treatment of livestock also was cut in half, reported on less than one per cent of the farms last year.

Aldrin was used on 248,000 acres of corn, compared to 448,000 the year before. No use of aldrin was scored for soybeans, compared to 2,000 acres treated in 1969.

Heptachlor was used to treat 53,000 acres of corn in 1969, only 17,000 acres last year. However, increased use of heptachlor for seed treatment prior to planting last year jumped to five per cent, compared with one per cent in 1969.

Lindane usage in 1970 was cut to five per cent (11 in 1969) for treatment of livestock on farms, and from two to one per cent for seed treatment.

Usage of the other restricted pesticides—dieldrin, DDD(TDE), endrin, thallium sulfate and compound 1080—by Minnesota agriculture in 1970 was considered so minimal that these were not included in the survey. In 1969, farmers had used dieldrin on some 24,000 acres of small grain.

Over 9,184,000 acres of crops, or 54.3 per cent of Minnesota's total 1970 production, were treated with one or more pesticides. Repeated applications on some of these acres boosted the gross of "treated acres" to 11,829,000. This included 10,530,000 acres (62 per cent) treated for weeds, 1,181,000 acres (7 per cent) treated for insects, and 112,000 acres (.07 per cent) treated for disease problems.

Corn, Minnesota's biggest field crop, showed an increase from 72 to 78 per cent in the use of herbicides for weed control, but insecticide applications were reduced last year to 21 per cent, compared to 29 per cent in 1969. It is the insecticide group of pesticides that contains most of the hazardous chemicals considered most dangerous to the environment, Commissioner Wefald noted.

Insecticide applications held about the same as 1969 last year on soybeans and small grains, less than one per cent of the total acreage. Herbicide usage on soybeans increased seven per cent, to 62 per cent, but chemical control of weeds on small grains was cut from 59 to 56 per cent.

Commissioner Wefald said detailed reports on the 1970 pesticide survey have been mailed to cooperators, including farmers and staff members at the Institute of Agriculture at the University of Minnesota. Other interested persons may write for a copy of the report to: Minnesota Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 560 State Office Building, St. Paul, Minn. 55101.

Ben Bjerken has successfully completed the agricultural fieldman's school at Fort Dodge, Iowa, co-sponsored by Felco-Land O'Lakes, Inc., and the local cooperative members throughout the trade area. The course of study ran from January through March of 1971.

The fieldman's training consisted of the basic philosophy of cooperatives, economic inputs and outputs of the farmer patron, basics of plant and livestock nutrition, coordinated systems from farm to market and maximizing returns to farm patrons.

Home study achievement involved the local trade area survey and long term objectives of their cooperative in their own communities.

Northwestern Minnesota—known to tourists as Vikingland, because the Kensington Runestone was found there—offers many special treats including two parks of unusual historic interest.

The first is Old Crossing Treaty, a state wayside park encompassing over 100 acres just west of Red Lake Falls. It was here that the U. S. Government negotiated with the Chippewa Indians a treaty giving whites possession of 11 million acres of rich farm land.

Included in this area were the routes of ox-cart travel from Canada (a future story in this series will deal with the famed Red River Ox-cart era).

Although unwilling to sell their land, the Chippewa were persuaded to agree to treaty terms after many days of speeches, feasting, the exchange of gifts and the diplomacy of U. S. agents. Unlike treaties made with the Sioux, Old Crossing was conducted peacefully and with no resulting hostilities.

Today a handsome bronze monument marks the conference site and a plaque outlines treaty events. A footpath circles the scenic park, leading to a small marker on the ox-cart trail. A giant cottonwood tree, over six feet in diameter, stands nearby. This tree once served as an early postal station.

And after more than a century, the rutted trail of the old ox-cart caravans is still discernible on the river bank.

A different kind of history is preserved at Old Mill State park, about 35 miles north of Red Lake Falls between Argyle and Newfolden.

Here you can show your children a water-powered flour mill, constructed in 1898, which has been restored to perfect working condition. It uses the original grindstones, shipped from France and hauled to the site by ox-carts.

The park has a bath house, beach, foot trails, stream fishing, picnic and camping facilities. Both parks are ideal for a family outing, plus giving the youngsters an entertaining education.

Prowler Trackmen Run In Shanley Invitational

Lincoln high school track team got off to a slow start to open their 1971 season Saturday as the Prowlers failed to score a point in the Shanley Invitational meet held in the North Dakota state University fieldhouse.

"All in all, we did a pretty fair job against a great field," reported head coach Jim Sims. "We were pretty well pleased with our performance and we had a good workout that will be a big help to us," said Sims.

Sioux Falls, South Dakota, won the invitational with 51 points, finishing two points ahead of runner-up Moorhead with 49 team points.

The top performance turned in by Prowler runners were registered by Markoe Hanson and Steve Beich in the 60-yard dash. Hanson ran the event in 6.7 seconds and Beich turned in a 6.9 to qualify for the semi finals.

In the 60-yard high hurdles the Prowlers were paced by Jon Wangberg's 8.8 clocking while Doug Aaseby ran a 9.0 and Rick Larson 9.8.

Gerald Trickie also ran in the 60-yard dash for the Prowlers and turned in a 7.1 while the winning time was recorded at 5.5 for the 60 yards.

Mike Fitzgerald paced the Prowler runners in the 440 as he ran a 55.7 with Mark Hamerlinck running a 58.3 and Mike Drury was clocked at 62.2.

In the 220-yard dash, Markoe Hanson recorded a 24.9; Steve Beich, 26.6, and Tim Votava, 28.4.

The 60-yard low hurdles were manned by Wangberg with a 7.9, Aaseby, 8.1 and Larson with an 8.7.

Tim Strand and Jon Folkedahl ran the two-mile event for the Prowlers and turned in times of 11:01 and 11:21 respectively. Two runners from Sioux Falls placed one-two as they turned in an incredible 9:36 and 9:40.

Kim Murphy led the Prowler milers with a 4:53.4 as Greg Buiger ran a 4:58.8 and Mike Engiestad 5:26.3.

The Prowler 880 relay team ran a 1:41.1 while the mile relay team finished with a 3:50.

Paul Battleson was the top half-miler for the Prowlers as he finished with a 2:09, ahead of Mike Fitzgerald's 2:11.6 and Rande Smith with a 2:15. The event was won in the time of two minutes.

Mike Liden tossed the shot put 39 feet 6 inches and Rick Larson had a toss of 38 feet. Jon Markstrom participated in the long jump for the first time and recorded a jump of 17 feet 4 inches.

The Prowlers will run in the Dragon indoor today, Wednesday, beginning at 4:30 p.m. at Moorhead. Over 600 athletes from North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota will run at Moorhead with each team limited to one athlete in each event.

Sims said his line-up for the Dragon meet would find Markoe Hanson running the 60-yard dash; Kim Murphy, mile, Jon Wangberg, high hurdles, Mike Fitzgerald, 440, Doug Aaseby, 60-yard lows; Paul Battleson, half mile; Jeff Rhodrn, high jump, Mike Liden, shot; Jon Markstrom, long jump, and a sprint medley relay team of Beich, Hanson, Markstrom and Wangberg.

Thief River Falls will be one of four teams entered in the Sioux Outdoor meet Saturday at Grand Forks along with Crookston, Roseau and East Grand Forks.

LHS Nine Opens Season April 24

Lincoln high school head baseball coach Ralph Skay began his 19th year at the Prowler helm April 2 when he welcomed 36 boys to the opening day of practice.

That number has since been trimmed to 21 candidates, headed by nine returning lettermen and three starters from last year's club.

"We've got a good bunch of kids working out but we're very young and inexperienced," Skay reports. There are four seniors, four juniors, nine sophomores and four freshmen on the 1971 Prowler roster.

"We don't have any experience behind the plate or pitching, but we do have strength at second base, short stop and in right field," said Skay. "We were hurt by the loss of Tom Wurst with his knee injury since we were counting on him to be our number one catcher," stated the coach. Wurst hurt his leg during the hockey season and the junior's chances of seeing action this year are limited.

"Mike Hamerlinck gained the most experience pitching for us last year but he didn't pitch in the tough games and Dale Hanson throws real hard but he sometimes has a control problem," Skay said. "The most impressive pitcher at the present time for us is sophomore Pete Sullivan."

Sullivan is one of the nine returning letter winners along with Brian Peterson, short stop and second base, Mike Hamerlinck, pitcher and first base, Dale Hanson, pitcher, first base and third, Jerry Morben, outfield; Tom Wurst, catcher and outfield, Mike Hamilton, short stop, Neil Nelson, third and outfield, and Rick Johnson, left field.

The rest of the roster includes sophomores Tom Hanson, short, second and outfield, Kim Johnson, second and outfield, Jon Jensen, second and outfield; Bruce Johnson, outfield, Gary Burstad, outfield; Ross Gutterud, first and outfield; Ordean Peterson, short, third and outfield, and Rob Almquist, outfield.

Freshmen practicing with the varsity include Randy Dallmann, third, short and outfield, Greg Sorenson, outfield, Mark Bernhardson, outfield, and Jaye Johnson, outfield.

Skay rates the Bemidji Lumberjacks as the favorite in region eight circles with Crookston and Red Lake Falls coming up with tough teams in district 31.

Skay, who has been in baseball for the past 36 years, will be assisted by Charlie Cmeli again this season. In 13 seasons as the Prowlers' head baseball coach, Skay has compiled a 238-79 won-lost record with 13 district 31 titles.

The Prowlers will open their season April 24 at Fertile with a 3 p.m. contest and will play their home opener Tuesday, April 27, against Goodridge at 5 p.m.

Law Day U.S.A. Proclaimed By Gov. Anderson

Governor Wendell R. Anderson has proclaimed May 1, 1971 as Law Day USA. The proclamation was presented to Otis H. Hilbert, Minneapolis, a member of the state Law Day USA committee of the Minnesota State Bar association, by Governor Anderson.

Also in attendance at the presentation of the proclamation were Chief Justice Oscar R. Knutson of the Minnesota supreme court; Attorney General Warren Spannaus, and Ronald P. Smith, chairman of the state bar association's Law Day USA committee.

The observance of Law Day USA has been set aside by an act of Congress and by official proclamation of the President of the United States as a time for reflection upon our heritage of individual liberties under law. The governor proclaimed observance that our system of representative government is built upon laws of our own making which are administered by independent courts under the Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Because our form of government is a government under law, it is fitting, he said, that a special day be set aside for directing our attention to the place of law in American lives and to demonstrate that Americans are united in their determination to preserve the way of life protected by our concept of law and justice.

The governor urged all citizens, public bodies, schools and private organizations to participate in the observance of this day through appropriate programs or ceremonies and to consider the fundamental importance our code of laws holds in the daily existence of each and every individual in our state.

Region eight high school hockey coaches have recommended that the regional hockey tournament again be played in Thief River Falls in 1972.

The area coaches made the recommendation at their annual meeting Wednesday night at Brooks. The group also urged using the Thief River Falls arena as the site of the region three championship game between the runner-up teams from region eight and seven.

The group also recommended using the Fargo Coliseum for the south sub region eight tournament.

The coaches went on record as supporting the entry of Brainerd into region eight competition for the 1971-72 hockey season. The Warriors played a B squad schedule during the 1970-71 season.

A resolution to change officials was also introduced at the meeting. The coaches recommended bringing in officials from the outstate area, mainly Minneapolis-St. Paul, for the regional tournament.

Be sure to make plans to be on hand Monday night, April 19, when Doug Hart will address the Thief River Falls Annual Athletic Banquet.

The banquet will be held in the basement of St. Bernard's church with serving to begin at 6:30 p.m.

Grand Forks radio personality Doug Tegtmeier will MC the event which honors the athletes and cheerleaders of Lincoln high school, Northland junior college and the area vocational-technical school.

Hart is a veteran defensive back with the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League who once ran back a fumble recovery for a touchdown against the Vikings.

Although we haven't had the opportunity to hear Hart speak to a group, you can be sure it will be an interesting evening.

Tickets for the event are available for $2 at Ekeren Drug, Larson Music, Glan's Barber Shop and Wilson Sport Center.

Kirk Holmes, Middle River high school graduate, was cited by head baseball coach Bill Thomas of Moorhead state after the Dragons' seven-game southern road trip last weekend.

Thomas said he received a pleasing pitching performance from Holmes and the rest of his pitching staff as the Dragons returned with a 4-3 record and what Thomas called "an encouraging trip."

The Middle River grad won a contest in relief as he pitched three innings of scoreless ball for the Dragons.

Moorhead has found itself in the midst of a fine athletic year in all sports and its track team will be seeking its seventh straight win of the season April 13 when they host the annual Indoor Classic.

The Dragons have not finished lower than second in any track meet over the past two years.

College basketball coaches who harbored hopes of knocking off perennial champion UCLA next season better check the back pages of their newspaper's sports sections.

A small article in the back of a Minneapolis paper pointed out that the UCLA freshman team ended its season undefeated with 20 straight victories against major opposition.

The Bruin frosh averaged 105.3 points per game and gave up just 65 points per contest.

The Californians will also return star guard Henry Bibby who shot 50 per cent from the field this season as UCLA rolled to its fifth straight NCAA title.

Effect Of Drugs Often A Mystery, Writer Reports

by Bill Hafling
University of Minnesota
Science Writer

Dan, a dairy farmer, rubs a new brand of salve on his cows and is strangely dizzy the rest of the morning.

Ann, his wife, a former mental patient, works at the grocery store in town. Liked by everyone, including her boss, Ann might still be hospitalized if she had not been given drug therapy.

Their son, Steve, tries to show off with his pals by smoking some "Minnesota green" they have picked. Despite their efforts to "get high" the boys experience no more than mild headaches.

How The Drugs Work

Drugs—used and abused—are a large part of the American scene today. Most drugs, in addition to their other properties or uses, have varying effects on how people behave. These behavioral effects—just how the drugs work—often are little known. They often remain a mystery.

A new science has sprung up to attempt to study the effects of drugs on behavior. Known as "psychopharmacology," the science is described by Dr. Gordon Heistad of the University of Minnesota as a cross between psychology—the study of behavior—and pharmacology—the study of drugs.

"Typically," Dr. Heistad said, "a psychopharmacologist is either a psychologist who has studied a bit about drugs or a pharmacologist who has studied a bit about behavior. The University of Minnesota is one of the few places in the world where students can get full training in both areas of study, getting into these basic sciences at an early stage in their training in addition to studying drugs, they study many other things which can affect behavior such as learning processes and brain function."

Involved In Real Problems

The university's pharmacology department was recently rated first in the nation while the psychology department rated seventh. "I sometimes get a bit nervous," Dr. Heistad said, "when I read in the papers about students demanding 'relevance.' My anxieties are relieved when I actually associate with the students themselves.

"I think the public is fed up with talk about 'relevance' and with what the students are 'going to do next.' Here, I see students as scholars and researchers very much involved with the society around them. They have a definite place here where they may apply their scholarship to real world problems rather than trying to escape these problems.

Volunteer Educators

"A great many of our students spend their spare time as volunteer drug educators all over the state and as consultants to state institutions," he said.

Dr. Heistad, an experimental psychologist by training, is the director of the University of Minnesota drug information and education program. He is also co-director, with Dr. Burtrum Schiele, of the university's early clinical drug evaluation unit. Funded by nearly $2 million over the past 10 years, this unit has studied over half of the drugs in use today in hospitals for treatment of mental illness.

Note: This story is intended primarily to answer questions we have been receiving about what psychopharmacology is. It may be helpful in understanding stories about drugs we have planned for the near future. If readers are curious about the drug effects which may be acting on Dan, Ann or Steve, or have any other questions about drugs, write to Bill Hafling, University News Service, S 68 Morrill Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn. 55455.

Shoulder Color On Roads Noted In Effect Study

Minnesota highway department recently received a report from the highway research board discussing the effects of shoulder color effects on roadbeds.

A test pavement with a portland cement concrete slab and one black shoulder and one white shoulder was instrumented so that both temperatures and moisture contents could be read through a winter and spring season. The temperature patterns showed black shoulders to be substantially warmer than white shoulders due to absorption of solar energy; black shoulders were especially affected by mid-winter thaws. Temperatures under white shoulders were cooler, caused earlier freezing, later thawing, and were generally associated with lower moisture content.

The most significant moisture content variation for the two shoulders was a large increase observed under the black shoulder starting at the time of a mid-winter thaw. This is reasoned to have occurred because of melt waters of adjacent snow flowing into the unfrozen soil. This did not occur under the white shoulder as it remained frozen during this period.

The usual explanation that high spring moistures come from the melting of ice lenses in the soil did not seem to apply in this situation. It is suggested that the use of white shoulders (thus keeping the underlying soil frozen for a longer period) might be used to reduce the flow of melt water from snowbanks to a position under the pavement.

Although this observation is of interest to the highway department's researchers, as yet no practical application has been made of the phenomenon.

State Fair Has Use Of Buildings During Summer

Minnesota state fair reports a pre-fair schedule of events to take place in April, May, June and July. Public, private and institutional activities scheduled include horse shows, dog shows, a circus, conventions, a merchandise show, a polka festival and a boy scout exposition. Tentative arrangements have been made for a student art show, a college commencement ceremony, a mobile home show and a livestock judging contest.

Because state fair buildings are not equipped with heating plants, the non-fair show season is limited to the warm weather months of April through October. During the winter, exposition facilities are used for storage of recreation equipment such as boats and campers.

Last summer, the fairgrounds hosted 55 special events with an attendance in excess of 167,000. When added to fair-week admissions, the 1970 summer attendance total rose to 1½ million or a weekly average of 68,190 visitors.

The 1971 state fairgrounds activities schedule to date is as follows:

Apr. 23-24, Bethel Temple Youth Conference, 4-H Building; Apr. 24-25, Minnesota Quarter Horse Show, Hippodrome; May 1-2, Girl Scout Overnight, 4-H Building; May 2, St. Bernard Dog Show, Judging Arena; May 2-4, Future Farmers of America convention, 4-H building; May 22-23, Indianhead Boy Scout show, Hippodrome; May 23-25, United Hardware Merchandise Show, Education Building; June 5, 4-H Horse Training Clinic, Hippodrome; June 5-6, Classic car parts swap, Midway; June 13, Land O'Lakes Dog Show, Hippodrome; June 15-17, 4-H junior leadership conference, 4-H Building; June 18-20, Minnesota Arabian Horse Show, Hippodrome; June 23-29, St. Paul Police Circus, Hippodrome; June 26-29, Baptist Youth Conference, 4-H Building and July 5, Polka Festival, Midway.

UNICEF saves lives in Latin America and Africa

These two smiling Paraguayan boys are on their way to recovery from leprosy, thanks to drugs supplied by the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF). Their sister (right) is healthy. UNICEF aid has dramatically reduced the incidence of leprosy in Paraguay, where one in every 400 children suffered from the dread disease a decade ago.

In Zambia's Luapula Province, this baby is thriving on protein-fortified porridge provided by UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund. Until UNICEF helped Zambia establish "under five" clinics to improve nutrition, four of every 10 children of this Central African nation died of malnutrition.

of cars and dates

Let's talk a moment, parent to parent....

It's quite an adjustment, isn't it? Your daughter, Jill, is on cloud nine because Jack asked her for a date. Jack's driving his dad's car. That is, you hope he drives it. Maybe he just aims it and takes off.

Yes, it's quite an adjustment. And all the books say there's nothing you can do about it. Kids date. So, watch television, read a book, listen for the muffled "Good nights" and the click of the doorlatch, then stop worrying and go to sleep. Until her next date....

The churches of our community have no simple solution for this problem. They have a complex solution: Through moral and religious training, develop in every boy and girl a mature sense of responsibility, a respect for life and Christian character.

The young people we'll have the greatest confidence in tomorrow are going to church today.

BUICK BARGAIN DAYS ARE HERE
Buick Bargain Days are saving days.
A bargain price on a stripped-down car is no bargain.
But a Buick or Opel at a bargain is something else again. Because we're not selling some special stripped-down model.
We're selling Buicks and Opels, the same great cars we've sold all year.
With one difference. The deals have never been better.
Which means that you can move out in a new Buick or Opel at a price that's hard to believe.
When Buick talks about a bargain, we give you something to believe in.
Opel 1900 Sport Coupe. With 1.9 liter engine that operates efficiently on low-lead or no-lead gas, plus hydraulic valve lifters for quiet engine operation, power front disc brakes and more.
Skylark Custom. With Buick's exclusive nickel-plated engine exhaust valves for smoother operation on today's cleaner fuels, Comfort Flo ventilation system and more.
The business of auto safety.
Auto safety is everyone's concern. But it's our business.
And we think the attention that's being paid to auto safety now is a good thing. Because it will result in better driving for everyone.
And, frankly, better driving for everyone means better business for us.
We say Buick is something to believe in. That's why we're trying to make it easy to be safe by putting in safety features that work by themselves. You don't have to do anything to make them work.
Like side guard beams. And the energy absorbing steering column. And the cargo guard between the trunk and back seat. They start "working" even before you get in the car.
But two safety features, two of the most vital, are worthless unless you do something first.
Seat and shoulder belts.
Unfastened they do nothing. And you've seen enough statistics to know what a difference they can make. So use them.
But that's not all you can do. Because the most effective safety feature of all can't be added to our cars or anybody else's.
That feature is you. And the way you drive.
Which should be defensively. And rested. And sober.
We're all in this together. And together we can solve the auto safety problem once and for all.
And the time is now.
Your Buick-Opel dealer will give you better reasons to buy a new car now than anybody else.

No Deer Season

Commissioner Robert Herbst of the Minnesota department of natural resources has announced that there will be no deer season in the prime deer range of Minnesota this fall. He estimates the closing will cost the department $1.5 million in lost license revenue.

Last fall there was a well-publicized movement in northeastern Minnesota to have the deer season closed. Just how much actual support the movement attracted is unknown, as is the number of closed season proponents who went hunting anyway because the season was open.

Our particular area of the state had a pretty good winter for wildlife. There was enough snow for ruffed grouse roosting but not too much for deer to travel. In general the snow did not crust to any degree during the winter, there were no major storms, and deer should have survived in pretty good condition. To the east, there was more snow and more severe conditions.

There is an "out" to Commissioner Herbst's statement, however, and that is his reference to the "prime range" where the season will be closed. This would seem to indicate that seasons could be opened in the remainder of the state, and it's no secret that deer have adapted well to the central and southern farm country of the state. Percentage of success by hunters runs high in much of this area.

The possibility remains, then, that further study will "reveal" a "surprisingly" good deer population in these areas—enough to justify opening perhaps two thirds of the area of the state to hunting this fall. This could recover a good portion of the $1.5 million in estimated lost license revenue.

But it is also true that the department of natural resources, for the good of the state's wildlife resources, can ill afford such a loss. The department has never been over-funded and the loss of a couple hundred thousand dollars would be serious—to say nothing of $1.5 million!

It remains for the dedicated deer hunter, the advocate of the closed season, to do more than re-oil his 30-30 and turn his back on the deer problem until at least 1972. How about showing some financial concern as well as vocal concern?

Might we suggest that the groups organized to promote a closed season now advocate a voluntary non-hunting license and push the sales of same. Something like that would show the sincerity of interest which sportsmen have in the welfare of Minnesota's deer herd. It would be a positive reaction to the department's action and, if followed through, could restore at least a portion of the license fund losses.

In Fairness To Hunting

Sportsmen who cherish their opportunity to hunt, their possession of firearms, their days in the field or on the firing range, must remain united to continue to enjoy their above-mentioned activities. That fact is noted in an editorial from the National Rifle association's publication, the National Rifleman.

While interest in nature and the environment is growing, and ecology is fast becoming a household word, the danger of an over-shift is too possible to take lightly. People who never cared about wildlife at all may over-shift from indifference to over-protection. Caught in the middle will be the hunter who has done more to preserve wildlife over the years than any Johnny-come-lately preservationist. The Rifleman editorial follows:

Hunting, an age-old and honorable practice, has come under increasing attack by preservationists and others of late. It is scarcely possible to view television or read printed matter without encountering it. Some few opponents of hunting are sincerely opposed to taking any form of life more significant than vegetables or crabgrass. The motives of certain others are not always so clear.

What to do or not to do about hunting is to some a part of a far bigger question raised by the soaring interest in environment, pollution, ecology. Such interest in the physical world around us is, in itself, basically healthy and humane. But it leads headlong into some crashing controversies. Maryland resounded with one recently when a Maryland official suggested an open season to take 5,000 of the 50,000 protected whistling swans which winter on Chesapeake Bay. Though Montana, Nevada and Utah already permit the shooting of these majestic waterfowl in limited numbers, some Marylanders objected sharply. One argued that hunting, after 50 years of protection, would betray "the confidence in men that these magnificent birds have learned..."

The U.S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife takes the position, spokesmen said, that all hunted species should be covered by a program of wildlife management with regulated hunting, usually meaning bag limits and closed seasons.

As matters stand, sharp public dispute can occur where a species, either under protection or under some favorable circumstance, breeds and builds up rapidly in number.

In one instance, involving a deer herd in a swamp wildlife refuge in northern New Jersey, national publicity was stirred up when game management administrators authorized a limited hunt to thin the herd. A New York City organization rallied some noted actresses and singers to oppose it in a highly emotional appeal.

All in all, emotionalism and propagandism seem to characterize too much of the discussion of what to hunt, where to hunt and whether to hunt. There are those who contend that Americans no longer "need" to hunt. There are those who contend further that Americans no longer "need" to own firearms.

In many public discussions, one question appears to lead, sometimes spontaneously and sometimes almost too neatly and readily, into another: Should we hunt? Should we own firearms?

There is already afoot a movement which would divide firearms ownership by passing laws directed against handguns, but not rifles and shotguns. The anti-hunting movement might tend to split apart hunters and other gun owners. While nearly everyone feels a genuine concern for conservation, non-hunting gun owners should not allow themselves to be taken in by the kind of preservationist program which subtly undermines legitimate possession and use of firearms.

We need unity in improving the world around us. We need unity in working out the best game management methods to preserve both wildlife and sport hunting. We also, emphatically, need unity in the ranks of American firearms owners on movements affecting firearms. To quote old Ben Franklin, either we hang together or we hang separately.

In Balance With Nature

Another view of the ecology movement is given in this article by Dr. John Carew, chairman of the department of horticulture at Michigan State university:

In the beginning there was Earth; beautiful and wild; and then Man came to dwell. At first, he lived like other animals, feeding himself on creatures and plants around him. And this was called IN BALANCE WITH NATURE.

Soon Man multiplied. He grew tired of ceaseless hunting for food; he built homes and villages. Wild plants and animals were domesticated. Some Men became Farmers so that others might become Industrialists, Artists and Doctors. And this was called Society.

Man and Society progressed. With his God-given ingenuity, Man learned to feed, clothe, protect and transport himself more efficiently, so he might enjoy Life. He built cars, houses on top of each other and nylon. And life became more enjoyable. The Men called Farmers became efficient. A single Farmer grew food for forty-one Industrialists, Artists and Doctors, Writers, Engineers and Teachers as well.

To protect his crops and animals, the Farmer produced substances to repel or destroy insects, diseases and weeds. These were called Pesticides. Similar substances were made by Doctors to protect humans. These were called Medicine.

The Age of Science had arrived and with it came better diet and longer happier lives for more members of Society. Soon it came to pass that certain well-fed members of Society disapproved of the Farmers using Science. They spoke harshly of his techniques for feeding, protecting and preserving plants and animals. They deplored his upsetting the BALANCE OF NATURE; they longed for the GOOD OLD DAYS. And this had emotional appeal to the rest of Society.

By this time Farmers had become so efficient, Society gave them a new title: Unimportant Minority. Because Society could not ever imagine a shortage of food, laws were passed abolishing Pesticides, Fertilizers and Food Preservatives. Insects, diseases and weeds flourished. Crops and animals died. Food became scarce. To survive, Industrialists, Artists, and Doctors were forced to grow their own food. They were not very efficient. People and governments fought wars to gain more agricultural land. Millions of people were exterminated. The remaining few lived like animals, feeding themselves on creatures and plants around them. And this was called IN BALANCE WITH NATURE.

The Rosewood Homemakers held their March meeting at the Calvin Peterson home with Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. George Solney leading the discussion of the lesson "Work From the Ears Up Saves Work from the Ears Down". Guests at the meeting were Mrs. Ronald Shem of Viking, Mrs. Helmer Kolbakdalen and Mrs. Pete Sabo. After the lesson, the entire group took part in a "Show and Tell" of items that could be made of inexpensive materials at hand. Many novel ideas were shown and enjoyed by all. A decorated cake was made by Mrs. Douglas Martinson in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ranstrom's Golden anniversary, which was that day. It was used as the centerpiece on the serving table. Pictures of the Homemakers group and special cake were taken which are to be souvenirs for Mrs. Ranstrom who was unable to be present. The remaining cake, following the lunch served by Mrs. Peterson, was taken to Mr. and Mrs. Ranstrom to share in the best wishes of the Homemakers club.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bauer and Barbara were dinner guests a week ago Sunday at the Emil Hellquist home.

Recent visitors at the Peter Montry home have been Norbert Johnson and Jerome Brazier of Greenbush.

Mrs. Bernice Erickson of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Bert Kron had coffee with Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ranstrom during their observance of their 50th wedding anniversary and brought them special greetings.

School Activities

With the passing of March many of the sports of the young people have been wound up through contests and tournaments.

Winding up a successful wrestling season was Tim Wold with the Prowlers at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and Dwight Johnson with the Prowler basketball squad at Lincoln high school. Leonard Kron finished 7th grade C team basketball at Marshall County Central at Newfolden. Hockey games concluded with tournaments for Lyle Johnson in grade school and Neil Johnson in Junior High at Franklin in Thief River Falls.

In speech Debbie Reierson and Susan Johnson have been busy with contests with Susan still winning and continuing into the regional competition to be held at Bagley April 24.

TRF Employment Above Last Year

Thief River Falls employment decreased from the record high reached in December of 1970, but remained 353 above year-ago employment figures, according to statistics released by J. K. Stadum, manager of the Minnesota Department of Manpower Services branch office in Thief River Falls.

March employment levels stood at 5,048, a decrease of 941 workers from the all-time high last December. The largest employment decrease was in the manufacturing industry due to layoffs. Stadum said, however, that the layoffs should be of short duration and that manufacturing employment levels should exceed 1970 figures by about five per cent by the end of the year.

There were 973 fewer jobs in manufacturing in March than in last December. Other areas with declining jobs were construction, with 44 less, retail trade, with 53 less, and wholesale trade with two fewer jobs.

More jobs were available in the areas of finance, 5, transportation, 8, service, with 43 more job openings, and government, with 74 more. The government area includes public school and all city, county, state and federal employees.

Total local employment has increased over the last few years, with 2,805 being employed in 1965 and 5,049 in 1971.

The demand for workers continues to be favorable, according to Stadum, with food service workers, experienced office personnel, sales clerks, farm workers and semi drivers in almost constant demand.

Also emphasized by Stadum were the increasingly large number of Vietnam veterans seeking employment. He asked that local businessmen assist the manpower services department in its "Jobs for Veterans" program to find jobs for former servicemen.

Library Friends Sell Old Books

Friends of the Library organization will sponsor a sale of old books at the public library in Thief River Falls April 25 from 2 to 5 p.m. Both adult and children's books will be priced at 10 cents.

Also at a recent meeting the Friends of the Library gave a donation to be used for purchasing art reproductions to be added to the library's collection. These are to be available for home use. Records from the library's collection may also be used at home.

It was decided that the library would remain open Sundays throughout the month of April and that it will then be closed on Sundays until the week of the Thief River Falls Diamond Jubilee.

Bids For Grading To Be Awarded

Bids for grading, installing reinforced concrete culverts and applying aggregate surfacing to CSAH 18 at Black River located one mile northeast of Huot; and to CSAH 18 for one mile between one mile northeast of Huot and one mile east, will be received at the county courthouse in Red Lake Falls by Red Lake County Auditor David G. Kankel until 2 p.m. April 26.

Day Care Center Group Appointed

Appointed April 15 to select a board of nine directors for a proposed day care center were Mrs. Gene Beito, Mrs. John Law, Mrs. Ward Aas, Mrs. Jerome Bray, Mrs. William Gosden, and the Rev. Lloyd Berger. Ron Mooers and Roger Worth were appointed advisors to the committee, which will meet again April 29.

The non-profit day care center in Thief River Falls will be for pre-school children of working mothers who want a supervised program with superior care and facilities.

At the present time there are only two day care centers in northern Minnesota, at Moorhead and Bemidji, with one in the planning stage in Fergus Falls.

Mrs. Eric Allen, the day care center regional director, was at the meeting to answer questions and discuss the setting up of an organization. Ron Mooers, director of the Pennington County Welfare department, was also present as an advisor.

"SOME DAY I'm gonna have me one of these things" is the obvious thought running through the mind of Mike Sparby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Sparby. Like most youngsters at the boat, sports and travel show in Thief River Falls, he couldn't resist the temptation to try one of the shiny new cycles for fit and feel.

Boyle Uses Creativity, Technique In Print Show

by Pete Volkert
Times Reporter

First one-man art show ever held at Northland state junior college opened Sunday at Thief River Falls in the science wing of the school as art instructor Joseph Boyle previewed an exhibition of his recent prints before the show moves to two galleries in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Scheduled through April 29 at the junior college, the theme of the show is "Architecture and Its Origin", so named, Boyle said, "because of the work I did this last summer with the architects in connection with the building expansion at the school."

Boyle, a graduate of the Minneapolis College of Arts and Design, said that in these prints, done over a period from October of 1970 to this month, he has tried to "put three dimensions into a two-dimensional art form and end up with at least a suggestion of three dimensions."

Boyle, who did graduate work at St. Paul's Macalester college and who has had previous shows in Ohio, New York and North Dakota, discussed his procedures in making the prints and his philosophy of art in a recent interview.

"I demand much in connection with my art," he said. "I make heavy demands on my students"—he's the only member of the art department and also teaches an introductory philosophy course at the junior college—"and I make demands on the people who come to view what I create; I want them to at least make an effort to understand what they see before them. But most of all, I suppose I make demands on myself to do what I think is right in art."

Boyle said that his current exhibition is the result of the first extended period of work in the area of prints, and explained that he worked only with zinc plates in producing the prints, though there are several other methods of print production.

"I found more pleasure using this technique," he said. He first cuts the zinc plate to the shape he wants and may run the plate through the press without ink to gain an embossed effect on a final uninked print. "In this way I gain a three dimensional effect by projection of the texture," he explains.

In a variation of technique, Boyle may draw a sketch on the plate with an etching needle and then place the plate in an acid

UN-INKED ZINC PLATES are placed over the print paper in the bed of the press. The plates, after being run through the press, will leave an embossed effect on the paper.

Married Veterans Entitled To Funds

Minnesota veterans in training under the GI bill were reminded today by John R. Murphy, director of the Veterans Administration center, Fort Snelling, that they are entitled to more money when they marry or have children.

For example, Murphy said, a full-time veteran in school will have his $175 a month increased to $205 when he gets married, and to $230 if he becomes a father.

Veterans taking cooperative, apprenticeship, on-the-job or farm cooperative training also have their VA payments increased when they get married and have children. Apprenticeship and on-the-job trainees get additional payments for only two dependents, while the others get them for all dependents.

Management Report Shows Farm Picture

Disastrous crop year of 1970 is reflected in the summary report of the adult farm management program of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school. Livestock enterprises fared somewhat better—particularly dairy operations—but the feeder pig business was an exception to general livestock values in farming.

There were 323 farms included in the summary reporting for 1970, including 78 from Thief River Falls, 31 from Roseau, 34 from Plummer, Red Lake Falls and Oklee, 26 from Goodridge and the remainder from Ada, Ashby, Barnesville, Battle Lake, Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Fertile, Fosston, Frazee, Greenbush, Halstad, Hallock, Hawley, Henning, Humboldt, Karlstad, Moorhead, Pelican Rapids, Twin Valley and Ulen.

Ed Sisler is coordinator of the vocational agriculture program. Don Johnsen and Verne Spengler are instructors at Thief River Falls with Harry Oen serving Plummer, Red Lake Falls and Oklee, Bud Leverington instructing at Roseau and Wally Shodean at Goodridge.

Averages are deceiving although they can be meaningful to a degree. According to the summary statistics, farmers in the program in 1970 had labor earnings of $2,184 with return to capital and family labor of $4,892. They had net worth of $52,572 and expenses of 93 cents per dollar of income.

(Labor earnings is the amount that would be left as a salary to the farm operator if he paid hired man's wages for the labor of other members of the family and six per cent interest on all capital used. The return to capital and family labor represents the amount the farmer and his family earned with their labor and capital investment.)

In computing labor to operate a farm, the management program has developed a system whereby "work units" are used. One work unit equals one 10-hour day. The summary showed a total of 353 work units (10-hour days) per farm during the year with 175 work units devoted to crops, 174 work units to livestock and four units to other farming activity.

Average total farm capital at the end of the year was $89,957. This included $12,343 in productive livestock, $6,873 in crop, seed and feed, $1,960 in farm share of auto and truck, $10,770 in power and machinery, $1,417 in livestock equipment, $47,450 in land, and $9,144 in buildings, fences, etc.

Total farm receipts for the year took a plunge to $29,660 from $35,202 a year ago. They averaged $8,861 in 1955, $15,249 in 1960 and $21,311 in 1965. There were 50 farmers in the program in 1955, 57 in 1960 and 202 in 1965.

While total farm receipts declined about $5,500, total farm expenses declined only about $1,100 from $28,566 a year ago to $27,458 in 1970. Labor earnings dropped from $6,636 to $2,202 during the same period.

Number of milk cows per herd has been steadily increasing, although the dairy industry in this area has seen a decline in the number of herds. In 1970 the

Cystic Fibrosis Study Benefits From United Fund

United Fund of Thief River Falls has made a contribution of $200 to the Minnesota Chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis foundation, upon the recommendation of the United Health services committee of the fund headed by Dr. Earl Dagg.

Cystic fibrosis is a childhood illness first recognized as a separate disease entity in 1938. The disease affects the respiratory and the digestive systems of the child. It is believed that about one child in 600 births is affected. No cure has been established, although patients are helped by a diet high in protein and calories but low in fat, supplementary feedings of vitamins A and C and the administration of antibiotics and extracts of pancreatic juices from animals.

Of the various research centers in the country, Minnesota has Dr. Warren Warwick, associate professor of pediatrics at the University of Minnesota medical school, head its program of research. Under his direction and staff, progress has been made in the care, cause and hoped-for eventual cure of the disease.

On August 2, 1970, a parents' meeting was held at Mayo auditorium on the University of Minnesota campus. Eighty-eight of the people in attendance volunteered for a biopsy study, a simple clinical procedure which could have very significant implications for CF research. The biopsy study should lead to a better understanding of cell function, and it is hoped that the study may provide a key to the long-sought "carrier" test.

North Central's March Boardings Total 744 Here

North Central airlines boarded 744 passengers in Thief River Falls in March and off-loaded 742 passengers, according to local airline officials. Airmail, express and air freight leaving Thief River Falls totaled 7,179 pounds for the month, and air freight arriving amounted to 17,493 pounds.

System wide, the airline carried 299,652 passengers in March, up 13 per cent over the same month in 1970. Revenue passenger miles flown rose 25 per cent to 67,202,104.

Cargo increased 21 per cent compared with March, 1970, as 796,475 ton miles were flown. Mail ton miles were up 32 per cent. The airline flew 2,228,007 of its 2,284,879 scheduled miles for a completion factor of 98 per cent.

In the first quarter of 1971, the airline boarded 866,845 passengers, 16 per cent ahead of the same period last year. Some 202,395,728 miles were flown, for a gain of 36 per cent. Cargo during the first quarter rose 22 per cent.

Knutson-Comstock Vows Exchanged At Trinity

Miss Gaye Knutson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lindahl Knutson of Radium became the bride of Daryl Comstock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Comstock of this city, on Saturday, March 27, at 3 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church.

Rev. Louis Hermanson officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by approximately 125 relatives and friends. Music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. Walter Larson, organist, who also played the traditional wedding marches for the processional and recessional. Arrangements of pink carnations and pink bows and streamers graced the sanctuary.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a floor-length gown of lace over satin styled in empire fashion with Victorian sleeves. A crown of pearls held her shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses and deep pink carnations with white ribbon streamers.

Miss Vicki Engelstad of Warren, a friend, was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Miss LaVon Knutson of Radium, a cousin. Bridesmaids were Janet Bedard of Minneapolis and Vicky Erickson of Viking, friends of the bride. They were attired in identical, medium pink, floor-length gowns fashioned with A-line skirts and Elizabethian sleeves. Floral trim accented the bateau neckline and the empire waistline. To complement their attire, they wore veiled headpieces with deep pink bows and each carried an arrangement of three, long-stemmed, deep pink carnations. Their green chokers were gifts from the bride.

Arden Comstock of this city attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Allen Howk, a cousin of the groom, and Les Yonke, a friend. The guests were seated by friends of the couple, Harold Kees and Robert Scholin. All reside in Thief River Falls. For their attire, the men wore black tuxedos. The groom wore a red rose pinned on his lapel and the other men of the wedding party had pink carnation boutonnieres. Their gifts from the groom were matching key chains.

The mother of the bride was attired in a blue knit, A-line dress featuring a back belt. Her accessories were in black. The mother of the groom wore a blue sleeveless dress accented with white heels. Both wore identical corsages of dark and light pink carnations.

Special guests at the ceremony were Gardy Lenhart of Radium, grandfather of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Comstock of Duluth, uncle and aunt of the groom.

The parents of the bride hosted a reception in the church parlors following the ceremony. Veronica Lenhart, a cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book as friends of the bride, Linda Berggren and Mary Jo Stengrim, ladled the punch.

Highlighting the reception table was a square, three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with pink roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Helen Knutson, aunt of the bride, and Stella Nesland, aunt of the groom, cut and served the cake. Pouring were Carol Erickson, sister of the bride, and Elaine Albaugh, cousin of the bride.

Waitresses were friends of the bride, Lynell Dixon, Kathy Katrba, Sandra Solvik and Marsha Jorgenson. At the gift table were Bernice Lenhart, aunt of the bride, and Ginnie Hawk, a friend. The gift carriers were Beverly Knutson and Lori Lenhart, cousins of the bride.

Relatives and friends attending were from Duluth, Minneapolis, Warren, Radium, Angus and Viking, as well as those from this community.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a yellow knit pantsuit.

The newlyweds are now at home in this city.

Food Preparation And Sanitation Cause Poisoning

An apparent increase in a relatively new type of food poisoning in this country is in part due to Americans dining more in public places and using more frozen and other processed foods, according to a University of Minnesota scientist.

Only in recent years have "clostridium perfringens" microorganisms been implicated in food poisoning outbreaks in the United States, said Edmund A. Zottola, extension food microbiologist.

The recent change in food consumption patterns in the United States is a factor in the apparent increase in the number of "clostridium perfringens" food poisoning cases. Nearly half the meals are eaten away from home, whereas in the past almost all were eaten at home. Of the 100 million meals served a day by 400,000 food service establishments, 82 per cent are served in public eating places and the rest in hospitals and other institutions, he said.

Also, food preparation is shifting from the traditional use of basic ingredients to prepackaged, frozen, ready-to-cook reconstituted, portion-control prepared and other ready-to-serve foods.

As a result, "people have a greater chance to become sick from contaminated food prepared away from home under unknown conditions," Zottola said.

Outbreaks more often occur after large banquets or at schools or hospitals where large amounts of meat, poultry and gravies are prepared.

Inadequate cooking of beef followed by cooling it slowly to room temperature apparently caused an outbreak of "clostridium perfringens" food poisoning in Tennessee public school system cafeterias. Of the 67,000 persons served the entree of braised beef on rice, about 13,500 became ill. This situation could have been prevented by adequately cooking the beef and rapidly cooling it below 45 degrees, he said.

Improper sanitation practices were the cause of an outbreak at a banquet in New York, where roast beef was served to 1,800 people. From two to 26 hours after the meal, about 900 people became ill with headaches, nausea, abdominal cramps and diarrhea. The illness was mild and lasted 12 to 24 hours.

"Clostridium perfringens" food poisoning was first noted in 1895 in Europe and for many years has been identified in England as a cause of food-borne illness.

Zottola's report appears in the new Agricultural Extension Service Bulletin 365, "Clostridium Perfringens Food Poisoning," available from the Bulletin Room at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minn 55101.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

features from the kitchen of
Mrs. Roger Mickelson of rural Goodridge

What is the value of your kitchen, in dollars and cents, if you were to replace everything at today's prices? That thought came to mind the other day while discussing the problems of a woman who had lost all her household possessions in a fire.

This woman said that when she was replacing her kitchen articles, she listed them in three categories: the absolute necessities as the kitchen appliances, pots, pans and dishes; the convenience gadgets, such as the cheese cutter, cleaver, measuring cups and electric mixer; and the little-used articles she will purchase as the need arises, such as a large roaster for the Thanksgiving turkey, the lefse and flat-bread rolling pins and the large coffee maker that is so handy when entertaining a large crowd.

Even after obtaining the necessities, she said that she felt like a pioneer homemaker because whatever she started to do, she discovered that she needed something else. She mixed a cake, only to discover that she had nothing to bake it in. To solve that situation, she used her frying pan after removing the handle.

Her biggest regret was that although she had insurance coverage, it was very inadequate as she had not up-dated the policy for over 20 years. When was the last time you took inventory and up-dated your policy? (EMS)

When Mrs. Roger Mickelson of Goodridge was contacted for a recipe, her family voted that she submit today's recipe for Pineapple Torte. She said that this dessert is their favorite. It is light enough for a dessert after a big meal, yet elegant enough to be used as a luncheon for a group of women.

Pineapple Torte

1 cup milk
1 lb. marshmallows
1 can No. 2, crushed pineapple, drained
½ cup nuts, chopped
1 pint cream, whipped or two packages powdered whip

Crust
20 to 30 graham crackers, crushed
½ cup sugar
½ cup melted butter

Method: Combine milk and marshmallows and heat until marshmallows dissolve, stirring constantly. Set aside to cool. While cooling make the crust and put half of the mixture in a 9 x 13 inch cake pan, reserving half of the mixture for topping.

When the milk and marshmallow mixture is cool, add pineapple and nuts and fold in whipped cream. Pour into crust, top with crumbs, and refrigerate over night.

The Mickelsons live on a grain and dairy farm near Goodridge. Mrs. Mickelson stated that keeping up with her children's activities in church, school and 4-H club is too time-consuming for hobbies. Of their eight children, six are in school. They are Beattie, a graduate of Northland State junior college and now a senior at Concordia college, Moorhead, Angie, a student at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Harland, who is attending Northland State Junior college, Paula, a senior and Harold, a sophomore, at Lincoln high school, and Stuart, in the seventh grade at Franklin Junior high school. Timmy, five and Tommy, three, are still at home.

The family attends services at the Telemorken Lutheran church, near Goodridge.

Garden Valley Finishes Mentor Exchange Work

Garden Valley telephone company last week completed a $100,000 upgrading project in the Mentor exchange. Some 270 subscribers in this exchange now have one-party, private line service.

Cutover for the project began at 5 a.m. April 12 and was virtually completed by 7:30 p.m. that evening. Some work remains to be done on telephones in cabins unoccupied during the cutover. Subscribers owning those cabins should contact the Garden Valley office in Erskine to arrange to make the necessary changes.

The excellent cooperation received from people in Mentor and the ideal weather contributed to the efficiency required to cutover nearly 300 telephones in one day, according to Orrin H. Ness and Gregg Peullot, who supervised the project.

Cutover was the final phase of Garden Valley's extensive upgrading program to provide an all-weather underground plant and additional central office facilities.

Mentor is the sixth of Garden Valley's exchanges to have access to total one-party service. Minerva, Maple Bay, Red Lake Falls, Brooks, and Fertile were previously cutover.

All calls to Mentor and Fertile must now be made with the new numbers on the white pages in the directory. The temporary blue pages should be removed from the Mentor and Fertile sections.

The Garden Valley Telephone company, with headquarters in Erskine, is a Minnesota cooperative owned by its subscribers. Harold W. Peterson is general manager of the company which operates 23 exchanges serving more than 11,000 telephones.

'70 Management Report Shows Farm Picture

average dairy farm in the program had 29.7 cows. This compares with 28.2 in 1969, 26.1 in 1965, 17 in 1960 and 14 in 1955. Tillable acres per farm in 1970 averaged 465 acres, compared [illegible] 1960 and 319 in 1955.

Butterfat production per dairy cow has had a marked increase over the past 15 years. Production which stood at 250 pounds per cow in 1955 has climbed to 331 in 1960, 361 in 1965, 393 in 1969 and 399 in 1970.

Return above feed cost per dairy cow has more than tripled during that time from $97.13 in 1955 to $149.93 in 1960, $176.75 in 1965, $303.59 in 1969 and $325.21 in 1970. Price per pound of butterfat has also increased from 73 cents to $1.31 during that 15-year period.

While dairy returns were climbing, however, crop yields and feeder pig markets hit the skids. Of all area crops, only rye showed an increase in yield of 30.2 to 35.8 from 1969 to 1970. Other yields for 1969 and 1970 respectively included: Oats, 63.2 and 40.8; barley, 51 and 36.9; wheat, 31.3 and 25.4; flax, 12.1 and 11.3; corn, 63.9 and 50.5; Alfalfa, benefitted from the early moisture and increased from 2.2 tons in 1969 to 2.3 tons in 1970.

Acreage not planted did not show in the summary.

A year ago the man with feeder pigs wore a grin and a new pair of coveralls. In 1970 the grin was turned upside down and the farmer was fortunate if he didn't lose his shirt.

Return above feed cost per litter of feeder pigs was $33.33 in 1970—about one-fourth of the 1969 [illegible] Pigs weaned per litter declined from eight in 1969 to 7.3 last year, with the average feeder pig operation farrowing 51 litters in 1970 and 56 in 1969. Prices at the latter part of the year made the major difference in feeder pigs, as return above feed cost per hundredweight of hogs dropped from $10.11 to $3.04 from 1969 to 1970.

Return above feed cost per ewe in sheep operations (averaging 90.2 ewes per flock) averaged $12.30 in comparison with $15.47 the previous year. Lambing percentage was down to 126 per cent from 138 per cent and prices received per hundredweight of [illegible] $22.35.

Pounds of feeder cattle produced on farms with that enterprise averaged 26,957 pounds while beef cow herds averaged 46 cows per herd. Return above feed cost was $8.70 per hundredweight of feeder cattle (down from $11.74) and $65.03 per head for beef cows (down from $71.38).

Net worth of the farmers in the program increased by $1,160 during the year to $52,572. A net worth statement includes a listing of all the assets and liabilities as of a given date. The difference between the farmer's total assets and total liabilities is his net worth, with both the farm and personal assets and liabilities included.

Boyle Technique On Display At NSJC Art Show

bath for up to 45 minutes. The acid eats into the etched lines and leaves a depressed pattern following the lines of the sketch.

A brayer (a type of roller) is then used to apply various colors of printer's ink to the plate, and the plate is then run through the press. The plate must be cleaned and re-inked for each different color of ink to appear in the final print.

Run through the press in a variety of positions and with a variety of inks, the same plate results in a variety of shapes, overlaps, and colors due to overlaps.

In several landscape prints, Boyle also ran weeds through the press to accomplish what he terms "a sense of incorporating nature and terrain" into the prints, using "weeds or whatever natural materials are easily available to me in this area."

"Texture and space is important in all these works," he said, "and I've tried to emphasize those qualities as much as I could within the limited size of the print paper."

For his prints, Boyle uses a special paper called German Copper, which must be carefully soaked for at least one hour before it is run through the press. The paper dries after ink application without wrinkling, but must be carefully blotted first in order for the ink to be applied evenly.

To gain other effects Boyle has dropped turpentine on the plates after applying the ink to gain a mottled and washed effect and has even used small circles of paper punched from college's computer tapes to achieve a spotted pattern on some of the prints.

"Making prints is a highly technical process, and it takes time to learn the techniques," Boyle says, "but after you learn the techniques you can do the proper things unconsciously and go beyond technique into creativity."

Boyle plans to have a student art show later in the year, and in the meantime expects to work in painting and sculpting rather than continue to produce prints. "I'm tired of printmaking now," he says, "and I don't know when I'll go back to it."

"What I'm trying to do with this show is to show the parents of my students what I'm teaching. I have a responsibility to show them what I'm doing and a responsibility to do what I'm doing. I would hope the community would be interested in that."

Boyle went on to add, "I want people to see this show not because it is my work, but because we have gotten to a 'look but don't touch' point in visiting museums, and I think that in a small and local show like this it is easier for the public to gain a sense of community in art. I want the viewer to stop and see what is going on in the works presented here."

Thief River Falls area residents who want to stop and see what is going on may view the exhibit from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Northland state junior college through April 29, when the show will be moved to the Twin City galleries.

BOYLE AND STUDENT ASSISTANTS John Halvorson and Sandi Nowacki discuss the arrangement of a group of prints while hanging the exhibit Friday afternoon.

ETCHING NEEDLE is used to sketch design on zinc plate prior to placing the plate in an acid bath.

Data Banks Hold Information On County Residents

How private are the lives and activities of Pennington county residents? Not as private as they think they are.

On the basis of testimony given recently before the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights, it appears that a wealth of personal information about local people has been stored in the data banks of computers in Washington and elsewhere, ready for instantaneous inspection.

According to one witness, Prof. Arthur Miller of the University of Michigan law school, "Each time a citizen files a tax return, applies for credit or for life insurance, seeks government benefits or interviews for a public job, a dossier is opened under his name."

Included is such data as age, birthplace, schooling, income, property holdings, political and social affiliations, tax payments, military record, marital status, law violations and a host of other tidbits of information.

On the computers of the Internal Revenue service, for example, are details of the earnings and expenditures of approximately 4,900 residents of Pennington county.

Although this is supposedly confidential information, it is being made available to state and local governments and may be "leaked" to others, it was testified.

In the files of the Social Security administration are the records of some 2,200 local residents who are receiving retirement or disability benefits. In addition, the administration has the employment records of nearly everyone in the area who is in the labor force.

Another collector of data is the FBI, which has an estimated 5,700 fingerprints on file of men, women and children living in Pennington county.

Included are prints of persons on public payrolls, of those who have been in military service, of people who have been arrested for felonies and of others who have voluntarily submitted their fingerprints for identification purposes.

The surveys made periodically by the census bureau also produce much private information about people but this is only for statistical purposes and is kept confidential.

The purpose of the Senate inquiry is to find a way to control the data banks and prevent the misuse of the information in them.

Wash-out Leaves Hole In Warroad Bridge By-Pass

Spring run-off from the Warroad River April 7 washed out a culvert and roadway in Warroad, creating a gaping hole in the highway 11 route and forcing motorists to detour seven miles to the west to another bridge spanning the river.

(At least two cars were reported to have "sneaked" across a nearby railroad bridge at night and without lights, but authorities warned that such traffic was illegal.)

Many area residents warned last summer that the road and culvert, a temporary bridge by-pass, could easily be washed out by this spring's floodwaters.

The culvert was torn away about 9:30 p.m., shortly after the regular bus from Winnipeg had crossed the by-pass. There were reports that motorists using the by-pass about an hour earlier noticed a distinct dip in the road.

Warroad Mayor Richard Roberts had been in contact with the district highway engineer's office in Bemidji trying to arrange for a temporary bridge to replace the by-pass.

It was hoped that a portable Bailey unit could be brought into use until the new bridge can be opened, since the traffic over the gravel detour is expected to be too heavy for easy maintenance and creates inconvenience for area and through traffic.

Because no temporary bridge units were available, however, work on other bridge projects was abandoned and work crews concentrated on building the new bridge at Warroad. It was reported the new bridge could be ready by April 30. A constant maintenance crew is being kept on the detour route by the state highway department.

Meanwhile, the incident means more than inconvenience for Warroad businessmen—for most it has meant a marked loss of business. One man owning a store on the highway said "Business? It's a washout."

Auto Insurers Pledge Reduction In No-Fault Law

Two major automobile insurers, echoing the belief of the member companies of the American Insurance association, which write 30 per cent of the automobile insurance written in this country, have pledged in letters sent to State Senator George Pillsbury, chairman of the Senate commerce and insurance subcommittee on no-fault, that their companies will reduce automobile insurance rates from 10 to 40 per cent if Senator Jack Davies' no-fault bill is enacted into law.

After saying that he is convinced that companies will price automobile insurance coverages from 10 to 40 per cent lower if S.F. 568 becomes law, with over-all premium savings of about 25 per cent for the average motorist, Aetna Life and Casualty president Donald M. Johnson said: "I can assure you that our companies will make price reductions of this magnitude and seek to increase our market share."

In referring to the same minimum and maximum reductions of 10 and 40 per cent, respectively, Waverly G. Smith, executive vice president of St. Paul Fire and Marine insurance company, stated that "In the aggregate we estimate total savings would be somewhere between 20 and 25 per cent."

Smith went on to say: "There has been much legislative discussion regarding costs. Some have contended that if S.F. 568 is enacted, reductions will not occur. We not only believe otherwise but pledge to reduce our rates, in accordance with what we have stated above, should S.F. 568 in its present form become law."

Both companies expressed their strong beliefs that Senator Davies' bill will benefit all consumers.

Fire Destroys Memorial Forest At Baudette

Fire destroyed the American Legion-Lake of the Woods county memorial forest Easter Sunday evening, and there is speculation that the fire was the work of an arsonist.

Loss in the blaze was set at about $1,500, including $450 for 30,000 trees on the 40-acre tract and $1,000 in federal cost-sharing payments made through the local ASCS office for the planting of the now-destroyed trees.

The forest, located 11 miles south of Baudette, was a memorial to the 42 people who perished in the 1910 fire that destroyed Baudette and much of the surrounding area.

Local Boy Scouts and Legionnaires spent five years planting trees at the site.

"While a man is contented with himself and his own resources, all is well. No Fault Insurance

The following comments on so-called "no fault" insurance were printed a short time ago in an editorial in the Bemidji Pioneer:

If anyone is looking for a fresh issue to rank right up there with the environment, health care and the economy as a focus of concern and controversy during the '70s, insurance is certainly a prime candidate.

Specifically, auto insurance, which as an institution is already displaying those symptoms of crisis and political and social complexity which can keep public debate going, usually bitterly and inconclusively, for years.

Superficially, the problem is financial, one of profit and loss for the insurance companies who find they are not taking in sufficient money in premiums to balance rapidly escalating payments on claims. But inevitably, it is the individual motorist who is paying, either through repeated hikes in insurance rates or by having policies cancelled outright for little or no reason.

The situation has everyone concerned and discussing solutions, with the "no fault" plan which went into effect in Massachusetts recently, over almost literally the dead bodies of major insurers, currently the prime topic of conversation.

Well, not quite everyone. Curiously enough, a poll on the subject by the University of Michigan's Survey Research Center showed that the great majority of those most immediately affected, the car-owners themselves, was either satisfied with (65 per cent) or indifferent to the present insurance system. Only 22 per cent were openly dissatisfied. However, when the significant features of the present insurance structure, and possible alternatives, were discussed with interviewees at length, some 44 per cent ended up favorable in some degree to "no fault."

Most simply put, under "no fault" an insurer pays off a client involved in an accident immediately—at least up to a certain amount—no matter who is at fault. Theoretical advantages include immediate compensation of injured parties, avoiding the lengthy delay in taking a contested case to court; administrative savings, which would be passed on to the policyholder as reduced premiums, and by taking claim adjustment out of the courts, relieving pressure on the jammed court system.

No-fault became a political issue in Minnesota in mid-February when the first no-fault bill was introduced into the legislature. Like most plans, the proposed legislation will replace the present liability coverage with no-fault insurance that pays all the medical and economic losses of an auto accident victim, without regard to who caused the accident.

Other than numerous dissidents within the insurance industry, major organized and outspoken opposition comes from the legal profession, which has a very direct and obvious interest in the issue. Some spokesmen have termed "no fault" delusive as a way out of the bind for insurers and motorists, contending that up to 98 per cent of accident cases are already settled out of court, that a best savings on the average policy would amount to only a few dollars per year and that a major deterrent to accidents—the threat of raised rates or cancelled policies—would be removed.

Minnesota sponsors of the bill—among whom are five lawyers—argue that benefits and premium savings can be substantial.

"Despite the high cost of auto insurance in Minnesota today, only 14½ cents of the premium dollar goes to compensate victims of out-of-pocket loss, and then only if the victim can prove that someone else caused the accident," says one of the sponsors. "Under the bill...which will make insurance available at a lower cost than the present system, payments for net economic loss arising from personal injuries will almost triple and will represent more than 50 per cent of the bodily injury premium dollar."

The senate majority leader has this to say about no-fault insurance:

"With more than 100 million cars on U. S. highways today, the time has come to abandon an auto insurance system that developed in horse and buggy days. The popularity of first party benefits under our liability system make it apparent that what the public wants from auto insurance is benefits, not lawsuits."

All of this is only the beginning of a long and involved debate. Through it all, one point hopefully will be recognized: The eventual solution, whatever its details, must be tailored not to the convenience or profit of the courts, the legal profession or even the insurance industry but to the needs for American motorists in their millions who have become, thanks in part to virtual abandonment of public transportation, the major and absolutely essential element in the national transportation system.

A Fitting Caption

We are still chuckling over the cartoon-editorial which was given us the other day. It depicted a probably male and female hippie type couple sauntering along together and contained the following caption:

"I'll run over and pick up my unemployment check and then drop off at the university to see what's holding up my check on the federal education grant and look into my research grant check. You go to the free VD clinic and check on your tests; then go to the free health center and pick up my glasses and after that go down and pick up the food stamps and slide by the food market. Then we'll meet at the federal building at noon for the mass picketing of the stinking Establishment."

Sound familiar?

Do You Remember When

The following is reprinted from the Los Angeles Fire and Police Protective League News:

Do you remember when:

A farmer could plant what he wished?

Taxes were a nuisance rather than a burden?

The Supreme Court protected society rather than the criminals?

The aged were cared for by their children?

Foreign officials visited the White House without asking for money?

We entered a war to win it?

Our flag was respected at home and abroad?

America conducted her foreign affairs without consulting the U.N.?

A father went on welfare only out of desperation and got off it as soon as possible?

Charity was a virtue instead of big business?

We could laugh at jokes about the Irish, Negroes, Jews or Polacks without being considered bigots?

The doctor's first question was "Where does it hurt?" rather than "Do you have insurance?"

U. S. Grant was the name of a president rather than a handout?

Giving aid to the enemy was called treason instead of foreign aid?

We had prayers in our schools? Now we have sex education.

The churches preached religion instead of politics?

You were safe on the streets and in your home?

The news media presented the truth rather than false propoganda?

The motion pictures were wholesome family entertainment instead of violence and sex?

A policeman was a human being instead of a "fascist pig"?

The three R's were reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic instead of robbery, rape and riots?

The Supreme Court consisted of judges instead of political hacks?

A radical had to have a soap box to reach 40 people? Now the networks provide him a microphone to reach millions.

The country was run by Americans instead of a group of aliens?

This was a Christian nation?

Borrowed Nonsense

A POOR PUN: Books of postage stamps that have been treated with a new adhesive are going on sale in 17 test cities across the nation. Because the adhesive is resistant to humidity, the need for putting separating tissue between the stamps has been eliminated.

The U.S. Postal Service estimates this will mean an overall savings of $75,000 in reduced assembly cost and cost of the treated paper.

Not much, perhaps, compared with the total postal budget, but still nothing to stick your tongue out at.

Letters to the Editor

TO: THE SILENT MAJORITY

As I write this, it is 1 April, 1971, a day so named April Fools Day. A day when friends play little tricks and try to embarrass other friends to a series of little witticisms. Most of the jokes played are quite harmless and also most of them are rather funny and make individuals laugh at their outcome.

But today, a day set aside for the bringing about of laughter there is one man in America that has no reason to be joyful. This man is a United States Army Lieutenant, William F. Calley Jr. (As I write this, I wonder how many of you people have heard and listened with interest about the happenings of this man.)

I am a soldier from this community presently serving with the 23rd (Americal) Division here in Vietnam; the same unit which Lt. Calley was a part of. When I heard the verdict, I was shocked that the people of Thief River Falls and surrounding communities did in fact convict the young Lieutenant.

The question that comes to my mind the most is, "What does it take, to motivate people to actively do something which might be for the good of the nation"?

I am guilty, my family and relatives are guilty and each and every citizen of the United States, is just as guilty as Lt. William F. Calley Jr. for what happened at My Lai three years ago!! This is a rash statement, but look at it from this point of view.

Lt. Calley was sent to Vietnam by each and everyone of the citizens of America. Then, here is a man that was sent BY THE PEOPLE to fight a WAR these SAME PEOPLE want no part of, HE carried out HIS military orders to the best of HIS ability, just as HE was trained and drilled to do, and then because HE done so, HE is found guilty, again by these SAME PEOPLE!!!

Now I ask you all, are you guilty?

The sentences are no laughing matter at all. That is why Lt. Calley does not smile. The alternative sentences are, life imprisonment or death. That doesn't leave much of a choice does it?

Many of you say to yourselves, that it is over and done with now, so it is best that it be forgotten. But, I ask those of you who read this, that still have a conscience left, to please do something constructive. You ask, what can I do? It is still a Democracy back there, and the saying goes, "The pen is mightier than the sword". So, take up the pen and write letters to the Congressmen and Senators of our state, indicating your opinions very truthfully on the trial and also on the war here in Vietnam.

Stand up once again and be counted as an active member of our society, trying to bring about a peaceful change to the problems confronting our nation today, so there may be a better nation for tomorrow.

Let there no longer be, "A SILENT MAJORITY".

notes from the governor

For more than two months now I have been touring this state of ours in a concerted effort to increase public understanding of the budget I presented to the Minnesota Legislature on January 27.

Last week I visited Worthington and Fairmont in southwestern Minnesota. That trip was the last one I will make for the specific purpose of discussing my budget and answering citizens' questions concerning its provisions.

New taxes are never popular, and I have recommended new taxes for many Minnesotans. I knew my budget would be criticized in some quarters, and it has been. But I also knew that without public understanding, we would never achieve our goal of reducing high, regressive property taxes on the one hand, and adequately funding vital services such as education on the other.

On each of my tours to out-state Minnesota, throughout this give-and-take process with the people, I have repeatedly stated that at some point our critics must provide something more than criticism.

I have said that at some point they must produce their alternative.

Most of all, they must tell the people of this state just where they intend to raise the money to accomplish their objectives. They must explain, in detail, their alternative tax program.

I believe the time has now arrived for the presentation of that alternative. I do not believe, with little more than thirty working days remaining in the regular session, that adequate public scrutiny and discussion can be given to the Republican tax plan unless it is unveiled now.

I invite GOP members of the Legislature to present their plan—now.

We believe our budget is fair and equitable, and stands the test of public scrutiny. I hope you have the opportunity soon to decide whether the Republican alternative does.

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

One of the major concerns of the people in the state of Minnesota is the increased use of drugs. The use and misuse of drugs has increased very substantially in the last two years all over the state of Minnesota.

According to the bureau of Criminal Apprehension, the district courts in 25 Minnesota counties heard drug cases in 1969. In 1970 district courts in 50 counties heard such cases.

Recently Governor Anderson focused attention on the growing problems of drug abuse in a special message to the State Legislature. I was personally pleased to see that the Governor centered the bulk of his recommendation on programs similar to those suggested by a special interim committee which has studied this problem for the past two years.

Many of the Governor's specific proposals have already been introduced into the Legislature and have been sponsored by Conservatives. It is this kind of cooperation between the Governor and the Legislature that is going to insure a viable drug abuse program.

One prime recommendation of the interim committee study calls for the identification of one single agency to have full responsibility for drug abuse programs. It is suggested that the community health center which is currently operating in 25 areas of the state be charged with this responsibility.

The committee of the Legislature also recommended the establishment of a Governor's commission on drug abuse. This group would have the prime responsibility of developing all drug abuse prevention and education material for use throughout the state. The State Department of Education would be charged with developing educational programs from kindergarten through senior high school focusing on the use and misuse of drugs.

Because of the serious drug problem I hope the legislature will see fit to enact laws that will provide the guidelines to control the drug problem. One bill that is under consideration addresses itself to drug education and the other towards lowering the penalty from a felony to a misdemeanor for possession of marijuana. The reason is to make the penalty more realistic and fitting to the crime.

Perhaps it is inconsistent to have a penalty to have possession of LSD be a misdemeanor while marijuana possession is a felony. Since a felony sentence involves loss of citizenship, voting rights, etc., very few judges have found violators guilty or when they have the sentence was suspended or the violator was put on probation.
